Promoter Tom O'Rourke, of New York, has signed Ad Wolgast for three bouts at his club.

Dick Nelson, the Dane, came to life in London the other night and knocked out Jack Goldswain in 12 rounds.

The Australian game has been so soft for Ed McGoorty that Jimmy Clabby has decided to try his luck in the Antipodes. Jimmy sails for "down yonder" early next month.

Seems to be a hitch somewhere in the proposed bout between Champion Willie Ritchie and Jimmy Duffy, of Lockport. Ritchie claims to know nothing about the match.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Independent baseball deserves a trial in this section just at the present time and indications just now point to the organization of several fast clubs in Central New Jersey to take part in week end competition this spring and summer. Home talent will be catered to in the main this season in Dunellen, Westfield and Plainfield and products of the sand lots will be given an opportunity to display their wares. Infants in the sport have been clamoring for an opportunity to break into fast circles and the proposition to organize combinations composed of local stock will no doubt be welcomed by these recruits. There is sufficient material hereabouts for the formation of several speedy clubs and it goes without saying that Plainfield will be right on top this season in Central New Jersey baseball circles. The disbandment of the league that has operated hereabouts for the last two years comes as a big surprise, but the independent competition promised will make up for this loss to a large extent if present plans are carried out as proposed.

Plainfield comes to the fore in another championship winning event. Russell Miller, of Union street, is the latest title snatcher. While captain of the University of Pennsylvania gymnastic team he holds the unique distinction of being the holder of two titles, having captured the intercollegiate and Middle-Atlantic handles without much exertion on the flying rings. Ray Dutcher, another Plainfielder, is the present holder of the amateur club swimming championship. The Queen City is also a leader in other lines, many Plainfield boys being present holders of intercollegiate and amateur titles. Miller goes after his second intercollegiate title tomorrow night and carries with him the well wishes of a host of admirers in this city. Go to it, "Rus."

The links of the Plainfield Country Club will once again be the rendezvous for a gathering of junior golfists when the Metropolitan Junior Championship will be held at that place in June. Plainfield has become a center for the juvenile wielders of the brassie and niblick and some skillful exhibitions were given here by the boys during the first annual tourney held last year. The P. C. C. links were selected for a second time after much deliberation by the committee and it is expected that full 100 youngsters will take advantage of a chance to get into competition here in June.

Baseball has been taken up in France with great enthusiasm and will soon be a popular sport there, according to W. H. Burgess, president of the Vesinet, France, Baseball club, who arrived in New York on the steamer La Lorraine the other day. Recently 3,000 French fans witnessed at Dieppe a game of the Vesinet team with the home players, said Mr. Burgess, and evinced the greatest interest. The French baseball players, he added, had taken to lighter garb, resembling somewhat that of the American track runners.

One afternoon each year the senior students of the Plainfield High School get an opportunity to take a few wallops at members of the faculty and at the same time are fully protected by the law. No matter how severe the blows may be handed out in the Senior-Faculty clash the guilty parties cannot be prosecuted by their class room superiors on this occasion. Go to it, school children, get your just dues while you have the chance.

"Hub" Stine is handing out a little advice baseballically to those North Plainfield High School team aspirants during his vacation days. "Hub" may be all right as a leader of an assault on a round piece of horsehide, but when it comes to teaching baseball to infants, Stine, like the other Springfield grads, cannot be counted upon as a producer of results.

A glimpse at that Y. M. C. A.-Springfield clash in the Association gym tomorrow morning will be well worth your while. Give those collegians the "once over" while they are being trimmed by the youngsters of Plainfield.

Why not a basketball clash between the North Plainfield and Plainfield High School Noah Websters? Some real "inside views" of the popular indoor game would probably be exhibited if this conflict was staged.

Watch the relics that are unearthed by those P. H. S. pedagogues as fighting regalia for that frolic Monday afternoon. Some rare scenery will be presented on that occasion as the teachers are taking advantage of every feature to scare the youngsters with.

Someone who was evidently laboring under an illusion started a rumor in circulation through the sporting columns of another local newspaper Monday afternoon generously offering the use of the Plainfield High School gymnasium on certain afternoons each week to the North Plainfield High School athletes for indoor practise. This offer, has been found, was made by an individual and was unauthorized by the P. H. S. Athletic Association. Captain Smalley, of the borough team, called at this office last night to verify the rumor and upon investigation it was found that the offer had no foundation. The author mentioned the name of Coach Ralph Patch in his wild display of geneorsity, but the P. H. S. athletic leader had nothing to do with the launching of the decree as far as can be learned at the present time. False alarm, Smalley, old man. Such things will happen, however, and you and your charges will probably fully recover from the shock before the diamond season opens.

It must have been a rude shock to the expert who selected that Interscholastic Leagus all star feminine quintet to see his favorites trounced by the second team yesterday afternoon. It might be well to make several shifts in that All Star combination.

THERE ARE WISE PEOPLE aplenty who are of the opinion that the bicycle is the ony means of locomotion that combines outdoor exercise of lasting benefit with the exhilarating joy of rapid motion. The wheel has a lot to do with the pleasure part of it and we want you to see what we show. Prices as easy as the wheels' running.

SPRING FOOTBALL FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE CAMERAIST

Holy Cross football players will open another era in athletics here next Saturday afternoon, when the warriors will appear on Cricket Field in full regalia and rehearse their signals and series plays of last fall.

No opponents will be on deck on this occasion to furnish the opposition and shadow football will be on the program. Henry Brynarski will be on the field armed with a motion picture camera and the athletes will be snapped as they exhibit the plays that brought them victory in a majority of their battles last season.

SILENT WORKERS WANT GAMES.

The Silent Workers, of Trenton, whose basketball team played here and was defeated by the Y. M. C. A. last month, will put a baseball team on the diamond this season and will be ready to take the field against all comers in about three weeks. Manager Marshall has had his team fitted out in brand new uniforms, this being the first time in the history of the school that enough interest has been taken to uniform the team. Teams desiring to arrange games with the Silent Workers are requested to address challenges to Manager Marshall, care of the New Jersey Deaf Mute School, Hamilton and Chestnut avenues, Trenton, N. J.

THOMPSON IS MANAGER.

J. Archibold Thompson has been elected manager of the Trinity Sunday-school baseball team, which will take part in Sunday-school league competition during the coming season. Frederick Smith, who was announced as manager in these columns yesterday, is secretary of the league, and therefore could not accept a position as the head of a school team, according to the constitution of the league.

TIGERS AFTER DENT.

Elliott Dent, who pitched a game here for the Plainfield baseball club last summer, is being sought by Harry Smith, manager of the Newark International League champions, of which he was formerly a member. He is at present twirling for Billy Smith's Crackers, champions of the Southern League.

MULLIN COACHING PITCHERS.

Tommy Mullin, the speedy little shortstop, who will go South in a few days, is spending his spare time in working out with the North Plainfield team. Mullin has taken the pitchers in hand and is giving them a few hints in how to break them over the pan.

CADY TURNS DOWN FEDS.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 25.—Cady, the Boston American League catcher, announced last night that he had refused a Federal League offer of $12,500 a year and a bonus of $5,00 to sign with the Pittsburgh club of the new league. Cady already has signed a Boston contract.

MICHIGAN WHIST CONGRESS.

Detroit, Mich., March 25—The annual meeting and tournament of the Michigan Whist Association began in this city today with devotees of the game in attendance from many parts of the State. The gathering will continue three days.

FAST BASE RUNNING SORT FOR N. P. H. S.

Second Day of Practise Featured by Fly Chasing and Sprinting.

The second day of outdoor practice went off successfully yesterday afternoon, with the full squad of N. P. H. S. ball tossers out chasing flies under the direction of George Becker, the N. P. H. S. star of '08. The afternoon's work consisted of running and judging flies, which was difficult because of the wet and slippery field. The squad was divided into two nines, all of the regulars in one bunch and the rookies in the other. The rookies showed up well and Coach Becker was well pleased with the showing they made.

Ernest Stahl appeared at practice yesterday for the first time since he hurt his arm and worked out a few kinks. There has been no batting practice as yet, and it is possible that the team will take to the Cricket Field for a few days if permission can be secured. A new feature has been added to the preliminary practice and workouts, in the lines of running and the art of getting a quick start from the bat and while on the bases.

John H. Green, an old time runner who in his time ran for the New Jersey Athletic Club, took the team after the regular practice to the school-yard and gave it instructions in starting off. This line of work will be continued every day and better base running is expected this year, which always plays a prominent part in the game.

BASEBALL NOTES

"Rube" Marquard has been doing some fine flinging for the Giants on the spring trip.

Pitcher Nap Rucker, the Brooklyn star, attributes his fine early-season condition to handball, which he played regularly all winter.

First Baseman Williams, of the Yanks, received a gold watch from his friends in Galveston, which is his home town, when the Yankees played there recently.

A pitcher named Cotton, hailing from Iowa, paid his own expenses to the Senator's camp to be given a tryout by Manager Griffith.

Outfielder Chappell has proved to be the heaviest hitter among the White Sox in the games on the Pacific Coast.

Newark is to have continuous baseball, now that the Long Branch team of the New York and New Jersey League has been transferred there.

"Molly" Mollwitz, understudy for Vic Saier, is showing considerable big league stuff at first base for the Chicago Cubs.

Manager Charley Dooin, of the Phillies, will carry four catchers besides himself this season. But even with so many backstops, the Phils canot afford to lose Killifer to the Feds.

With Konetchy at first, Viox at second, Wagner at short and Mowry at third, the Pittsburgh Pirates will begin the season with what looks to be the strongest infield in the National League.

Infielder Joe Judge, who is showing such speed with the Boston Red Sox, is only twenty years old. He jumped from the amateur ranks to the big show in one leap.

Cnonie Mack's Philadelphia champions are playing in tiptop form this early in the season and other American League managers are beganing to sit up and take notice. The Mackmen are a hard outfit to beat.

The Chinese ball players who recently landed in San Francisco, have mapped out a seven months' tour, in the course of which they will play in all parts of the United States and wind up with a few games in Cuba.

The absence of Johny Bates from the Cincinatti lineup may cripple the Reds. John is kept at his home in Steubenville by the serious illness of his wife. It probably will be several weeks before he will be able to rejoin his team.

SOME GOOD SCORES SET UP IN BARACA CLASS TOURNEY

Two man teams rolled on the Baraca Class alleys, last night, in connection with the Dunellen tournament and the following scores were hung up during the evening:

B. Gill	123	126
G. Vliet	125	147
	248	273

SECOND GAME OF SERIES.

The second game of the series between the All-Springfield team and the P. H. S. freshman, will be played tomorrow morning in the Y. M. C. A. gym at 10 o'clock. The Springfield team will probably lineup as follows: C. Line and S. Line, forwards; Stine, center; Bingeman and Townley, guards.

Y. M. C. A. PRACTICE.

The Y.M.C.A. basketball team will hold its regular Wednesday night practice in the gym tonight. Captain Glover would like everybody out, as a hard game is expected Saturday when the team will lineup against the Scotch Plains quintet.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The Owissa Camp Fire Club of the Young Women's Christian Association will hold a marshmellow social tomorrow evening. Plans will be taken up by club members for the spring work, for raising money for outings and sending girls to the summer camp and conference.

Miss Ethel Cadoo, of Summit, has been a guest at the Y. W. C. A. for a few days.

The evening division of the membership committee will hold its meeting Friday evening.

Mrs. Robert Lowry will read aloud at the song services Sunday afternoon.

MAINE DEMOCRATS CONVENE.

Portland, Me., March 25—Many delegates have arrived in Portland for the Democratic State convention which is to be held tomorrow. As the primary system will be used this year in the nomination of the State ticket the principal business of the convention will be to adopt a platform and select State, district and county committees. Congressman Daniel J. McGillicuddy has been selected as temporary chairman of the convention.

TO DECIDE METHOD.

Nashville, Tenn., March 25—A meeting of the Democratic State Committee will be held here Friday to decide upon the method for naming candidates for Governor and other State officers to be voted for in the next election. Opinion is divided on the question as to whether the convention or primary plans should be adopted.

OBSERVE THEIR SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wilson Entertain Many Friends in Honor of the Event.

COUPLE IS WELL KNOWN

Were Married at Basking Ridge, Bride Being Miss Ada Stryker—Mr. Wilson Former Borough Police Chief.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wilson, of Somerset street entertained a large party of friends at their home, last night, in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. An appropriate program of vocal and instrumental music, together with congratulatory addresses and other diversions, was enjoyed until a late hour. The parlor and dining room and hall were tastefully decorated with plants and flowers and a delightful supper at midnight was a pleasant termination. Both celebrants were showered with congratulations for the past and well wishes for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were married at Basking Rridge on March 24, 1889, the latter being Miss Ada Stryker, who always resided in this vicinity.. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Rankin, and a number of those in last night's gathering were among the wedding guests.

Mr. Wilson is a native of Plainfield and at the present time is one of the best known men in the two Plainfields, due to his likeable personality and the prominence of the positions he has held. He succeeded the late John Van Horn as police chief in the borough in 1894 and held that office for four years, being followed by William Campbell. Later he was baggagemaster at the North Avenue station for five years and his courteous treatment of the hundreds of people with whom he came in contact served to strengthen his popularity. He is now a member of the local army of commuters, being engaged in business at Elizabeth.

The only child of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Miss Saidie Wilson, was married last fall to Raymond Payne, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Watson M. Payne, of Clinton avenue, by the Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, now of Sherman avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Payne reside on the estate of his father who has a large holding on Clinton avenue.

The company last evening was delightfully entertained. Music was furnished by Naylor's orchestra. The gifts were almost exclusively silver and cut glass. The congratulatory address was delivered by the Rev. C. W. F. Attlee.

Among those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. John Lant, Miss Mabel Lant, Peter Lant, Mr. and Mrs William Lant, Mr. and Mrs. Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. Coddington, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Kline, Mr. and Mrs. Giddes, Miss Renniman, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kettenring, Mr. and Mrs. Hayne, Mr. and Mrs. Scheelein, Mr. and Mrs. Lunger, Mr. and Mrs. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. M. Watson Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Payne Mrs. Kitchel Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Bert Wilson, Mrs. William Clawson, Mrs. Sturges, Mrs. Spier Miss Hattie Squires, and the Rev. and Mrs. C. W. F. Attlee, all of Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, of Paterson; Mr. ano Mrs. Crane, of Elizabeth.

JOHN F. RUTLEDGE.

John F. Rutledge, age dtwenty-one, of Franklin avenue, the borough, died this morning of pneumonia after an illness of ten days. Mr. Rutledge was a past officer of Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., in which he was actively engaged for some time. He was an employe of Charles M. Raybert, plumber, of West Second street. Beside his father, the young man is survived by three brothers of this city. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

SNOW IN TENNESSEE.

James McClinton, of South Second street, who is at present in Knoxville, Tenn., as an erector for the Potter Press Works, writes to local relatives that Plainfield is not the only place experiencing late winter weather. At the date of writing, Sunday he says there was seven inches of snow in Knoxville and the atmosphere is anything but indicative of spring. The natives, he adds, declare the past winter has been the most severe they have undergone in many years.

G. O. P. OF MICHIGAN.

Detroit, Mich., March 25—Members of the Michigan Republican State Committee have assembled here to arrange for a State convention and make other preparations for the party campaign this year. It is expected the convention will be held late in the spring, either in Detroit or Grand Rapids.

MAYOR BOYD RECOMMENDED.

Congressman William E. Tuttle has decided to recommend Mayor Charles C. Boyd as postmaster of Kenilworth. The name of S. S. Ruth was sent in, but it was learned that he is not a resident of the place.

CAST SELECTED FOR SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The final tryout for the play, "If I Were King," by Justun McCarthy, to be given by the senior class of the Plainfield High School, was held yesterday afternoon. This play has been dramatized by Samuel B. Howe, formerly teacher in the High School. The leading part, "Francois Villon, was awarded to Cortland Fleming, and the leading female part, "Lady Katharine," to Miss Elizabeth Doig.

POLICE BELIEVE THEY HAVE CLUE TO MURDER

County Physician F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, last night, performed an autopsy on the body of Stefano Millerino, who was found murdered, Monday night, in Elizabeth, with a hatchet sunk in his head. The body is at present awaiting a claimant.

What the police believe will be a clue to the slayer was found today, when Patrolman Brennan, of the Elizabeth force, arrested John Egan, thirty-two years old, as a material witness. According to Brennan, he was informed by Egan that he was in the neighborhood where the murder was committed and heard some talk regarding it. The police, however, refuse to give out any information.

Prosecutor Stein has been kept busy questioning Italians regarding the murder but he also refuses to make a statement.

RAINEY RESOLUTION UP IN HOUSE TODAY

Representative Rainey's resolution calling on the President for information regarding protection of lives and property in Mexico is expected to come up in the House today. The Foreign Affairs Committee is expected to report adversely on the resolution on the ground that it would be unwise to enter into a public discussion of the situation at this time.

The cruiser Annapolis now at the Mare Island yard, has been ordered to proceed to west coast Mexican waters for patrol duty.

APPROACHING WEDDING.

Announcement is made of the approaching wedding of Miss Inez Tolles, daughter of former Councilman and Mrs. Ralph I. Tolles, of Westervelt avenue, and Arthur Hazeltine, formerly of this city, but now of Westfield. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride-elect's parents the latter part of April.

WOMAN'S CONFERENCE.

Winchester, Ky., March 25—Winchester is entertaining for several days the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Kentucky Conference of the M. E. church, South. Many prominent women, including several members of the National council, were in attendance at the opening of the proceedings today

PATTERN MAKERS MEET.

The local Pattern Makers' Union held an open meeting at Trade Council Hall last evening, during which a smoker was the feature. Refreshments were served at a late hour. Endeavors along the line of broadening the union's work was the question of interest discussed.

WEDS BRITISH OFFICER.

London, March 25—St. Paul's church, Knightsbridge, was the scene of a brilliant military wedding today, when Miss Harriott Hutchinson, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hutchinson, of New York, became the bride of Major W. C. Paleologue, of the Indian Army.

CITY EMPLOYES SALARIES CUT.

Boston, March 25—A five per cent. reduction in salaries of all officials and employes of the public works department receiving $1,000 or more a year has been ordered by Mayor Curley. The Mayor estimates the annual saving to the city by this order of $55,000.

IMMIGRATION TALK BY A MISSIONARY

Current Event Circle of the First M. E. Church Entertained Yesterday.

The Current Events Circle, of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Methodist church, met in Vincent chapel, yesterday afternoon, Miss Alma Matthews, a missionary from Ellis Island, giving a very graphic and dramatic account of her work on the island, especially in the hospital.

She pointed out how the immigrants were met immediately upon landing and how this made it possible for the missionaries to Americanize them. She spoke of how the workers dealt with the foreigners held in the hospital and how little kindnesses in the way of a card, or flower helped them to gain their confidence and bring them in touch with American interests. She told how people from countries like Russia, where they were held in check, were impressed when any favors were bestowed upon them and how it stimulated them to look into American ways and how the missionaries on the island often obtained positions for them after they had left the island. She also pointed out how by these means they had been able to save many of the girls from vicious men.

The second speaker was Miss Mabelle Phillips, secretary of the Charity Organization of Plainfield. Her subject was "The Poor and How We Help Them." She stated that the great majority of the poor of Plainfield were immigrants who had passed through Ellis Island and many of whom Miss Matthews probably knew.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, the new pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will occupy the pulpit for the first time on Sunday.

Rev. Herbert Shipman, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, of New York, will preach at the Church of the Holy Cross tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to al lwho wish to hear this clergyman.

The cake sale which was announced to be held at the W. C. T. U. on Friday has been postponed to Friday, April 3.

RATE MEETING.

San Francisco, Cal., March 15.—Final decision on the rates to prevail from eastern points to San Francisco and San Diego during the exposition period next year is expected to be made at the meeting begun here today by the Transcontinental Passenger Association. The association represents practically all of the important railroad and steamship lines west of Chicago. In addition to the question of reduced rates the meeting is to consider anti-ticket scaping laws, a minimum charge for meals on dining cars, methods of preventing the abuse of baggage privileges and a curtailment of the practice of holders of mileage tickets who check their baggage on steam roads and travel by electric railways.

DEPART FOR EUROPE.

Mrs. J. P. Truitt, of "Tunlaw," and her nephew, J. Alexander Wilson, of Grove street, sailed from New York this afternoon, on the White Star line steamer, "Carmania," for a three months' trip in Europe. They will visit the British Isles and the principal cities of the continent before returning. A large party of friends saw them off at the pier.

300 LINEMEN SNAPPED.

Armed with a camera, Paul R Collier, of East Front street started out on an early morning expedition this morning, and snapped 300 linemen engaged in repair work in this vicinity. The men are repairing the long distance trunk lines which were put out of commission during the recent storm.

ENSIGN BURTIS RECALLED.

W. H. Burtis, ensign of the U. S. S New Jersey, who has been spending a ten days' furlough with his parents on Fairview avenue, has been suddenly called aboard ship for duty pending its sailing to relieve a ship in the first division of the fleet at Vera Cruz.

DEATH OF INFANT.

Robert Casey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Casey, of Spooner avenue, died yesterday afternoon, at the home of the parents at the age of three months. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon and the interment will be at St. Mary's cemetery.

L. O. O. M. DANCE.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, L. O. O. M., will hold a dance and ball at Saengerbund Hall on Easter Monday.

THE DAILY PRESS IN BOUND BROOK will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon by Hoagland, Union News Stand at station, and A. Aaron, newsdealer.

TORREON TAKEN, IS REBEL RUMOR

Report Says Villa Has Captured City.

HUNDREDS SLAIN IN FIGHT

Federals Made Brave Effort to Check Rebels and Were Outnumbered Almost Two to One—Both Sides Lost Heavily—Villa Directs Forces.

Juarez, Mexico, March 25.—Torreon has been captured by General Villa, according to a report received here by rebel officials.

General Manuel Chao, in command of the rebel garrison here, said that, although he had not yet received any official information from Villa regarding the rebel victory, he believed it true from advices received earlier from Gomez Palacio.

The federals under General Refugio Velasco had made a desperate last stand at the outskirts of the city after Villa's men had captured two of the barracks, but the arrival of General Urbino, with rebel re-enforcements from the east, compelled the defending force to retreat.

The National railways line to Mexico City is still open, and the survivors of the Torreon garrison will be able to escape that way, as the rebels have been unable to completely surround the city.

Gomez Palacio, State of Durango, Mexico, March 25.—Sweeping aside all federal resistance after the most sanguinary fighting in the history of the present Mexican revolution, General Francisco Villa today began his final assault on the city of Torreon itself, the last stronghold of the Huerta government in northern Mexico.

After a desperate forty hour battle, in which heavy losses were sustained by both sides and the issue remained long in doubt, the federal garrison of this place at daylight was driven back upon Torreon in a complete rout.

The federal retreat began in good order, but was converted into a disorderly flight when the Constitutionalist cavalry, in a frenzy of excitement as the result of their success, charged repeatedly into the ranks of the defenders.

The resistance offered by the federal garrison of Gomez Palacia was heroic at times. Outnumbered almost two to one and overwhelmed at nearly all points by the ferocity of the rebel attack, General Velasco's troops fought stubbornly.

Villa Everywhere In Fight.

General Villa, coming up from Lerdo during the night, took personal command of the rebels. Except for a brief period, when he ran up to Bermejillo, he was in the saddle all night long, covering a remarkably wide territory in his rides over the field to get personal reports from his commanders.

Despite the handicap under which they fought, it is believed that the federals succeeded in getting all their artillery into Torreon, with the exception of a number of small mountain guns, which they were compelled to abandon on the precipitous slopes of Cerro del Pilar, the fortified mountain which guards the approach to Torreon. To the rebel soldiers the mountain offered no terrors. They ascended its slope at the double quick and fairly overwhelmed the federal artillerymen before they could fire their pieces or flee.

How many men the federals lost is problematical. Many of their troops were cut off and taken prisoners during the fighting about Gomez Palacio, and General Villa himself estimates that Velasco has lost 1,500 in killed, wounded and captured. This is merely a guess, however, as confusion is so great that accurate estimates are impossible.

As this dispatch is sent the main rebel body has succeeded in getting into Torreon itself, and a general assault by the rebels is in progress all along the line.

A report received from General Eugenio Benavides states that his forces have driven the federals in from every outpost to the east of Torreon and that he is in complete possession of all the lines of railroads leading from Torreon to the east. Benavides said he hoped to meet Villa and his staff at dinner in El Cafe de Gambrinus, Torreon.

Constitutional Headquarters, El Verjel, State of Durango, Mexico, March 25.—The downfall of Gomez Palacio brought the heaviest fighting since the Torreon campaign began. The combined forces of Generals Urbina, Hernandez and Rodriguez, personally commanded by General Villa, occupied Lerdo after scarcely more than a perfunctory resistance. Immediately Villa threw a large portion of this force, mostly cavalrymen, into the battle at Gomez Palacio, relieving the strain that had been placed upon the column headed by General Torribio Ortega.

FLIER MAKES HEIGHT RECORD

German Aviator Rises 18,050 Feet With a Passenger.

Berlin, March 25.—Linnekogel, a German aviator, set a new world's record for altitude with a passenger at Johannisthal, driving his monoplane to a height of 18,050 feet.

The previous record for altitude with a passenger was 16,270 feet, made by the late Edmond Perreyon on June 3, 1913.

WOMAN TELLS WHY SHE SHOT CALMETTE

Mme. Caillaux Gives Full Details of Murder.

Paris, March 25.—Mme. Caillaux told on the stand in the Palais de Justice the detailed story of how she killed Gaston Calmette and the causes which drove her to the act. In the course of the examination she said she took upon her shoulders the burden of avenging her husband for the attacks on his honor and integrity because she believed his country needed him, and she was willing to sacrifice herself for his sake.

Mme. Caillaux refused to take advantage of the twenty-four hours interval between examinations to which prisoners are entitled and underwent the third interrogation in the office of Magistrate Boucard. The examination lasted five hours.

When Mme. Caillaux arrived at the Palais de Justice from St. Lazare she found the photographers again waiting with cameras. They had to be driven away yesterday at her request, but she evidently realized the impossibility of escaping the camera brigade and retained her equanimity as several snap shots were taken while she was entering the Palais. Mme. Caillaux exclaimed, "Now I hope you are satisfied."

The murderess wore the same dress and hat in which she appeared yesterday and was again heavily veiled. Her three lawyers, Maitre Labori, his stepson and M. Lebeau, were in attendance.

When the interrogation began Magistrate Boucard asked Mme. Caillaux to describe fully her actions on Monday, March 16, the day Calmette was shot. The prisoner answered in a very collected manner, laying stress on each point which tended to prove her assertion that she had no intention of killing Calmette.

BOY BANDIT IN GUN BATTLE.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 25.—Earnest McWilliams, aged fifteen, was such a nice little fellow that when he was arraigned a week ago for stealing corn he impressed the probation officer and two detectives that he was truly good, and they procured his discharge.

For five hours he held at bay twenty policemen, firing perhaps a hundred shots and being fired at through the glass door and windows of Ed Tetzel's gun shop, which he had entered to commit robbery. He did not surrender until after the officers had hit him six times, but the bullets happened to strike him in the legs and arms, and none caused a fatal wound.

POLICEWOMAN HAS TWO GUNS

Secret Where She Keeps Them—Here For Girl Prisoners.

New York, March 25.—Policewoman Lulu Parks of the Chicago department arrived to get Marie Stopper, who is charged with running off with $500 belonging to her father's firm, by which she was employed.

Miss Parks reached headquarters too late to see the lineup of crooks. To reporters she said:

"I carry two revolvers, one a 32 caliber and the other a heavier weapon."

"Where?" asked a reporter in the background.

"It is enough for you men to know that I carry them," was her reply. She said there ought to be policewomen in New York.

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

A COVER FOR THE LIVING-ROOM TABLE

This attractive design of conventionalized pine-cones, may be embroidered in unpadded solid work in shades of green and brown on natural colored green or brown linen or pongee silk. It may also be carried out as a stencil and the same stencil might be used on the curtains, portiers, couch-pillows and chair-cushions of Russian crash, denim or any inexpensiv drapery fabric. Cut leather is perhaps the most beautiful way of carrying out a design such as this and a most serviceable table-cover might be made from skin either brown, tan or d Cut out the design with a v pointed knife and back w or kid of a contrasting co should be pasted to the u of the leather.

This transfer pattern 146 includes the four corners, by ten inches, and a center an elderberry design 20 i diameter, can be supplied t on receipt of price, 15 cents.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Part of the Speech of Miss Alice Stone Blackwell at a Congressional hearing on appointment of Special Suffrage Committee in the House of Representatives:

"The argument has been made over and over again that you ought not to appoint this committee, because there is not a sufficient public demand, and because the number of women who oppose it is greater than the number who favor it.

More Women in Favor.

"It is an actual fact that we represent a very much larger number of women than the opposition. The opponents say that only 8 per cent. of the women of this country favor suffrage. But it is a fact that less than 1 per cent. of the women of the United States have expressed any objection to equal suffrage. Appeals have been sent out over the country for years urging all women to protest, and yet less than 1 per cent. are protesting again having the suffrage 'thrust upon them.'

More States Organized.

"The anti-suffragists claim to be organized in seventeen States. The suffragists are organized in forty-seven States. The only State without an organization is New Mexico. Until recently South Carolina and New Mexico were the only two. South Carolina now has a number of suffrage clubs.

More Suffrage Papers.

"The anti-suffrage movement in the United States maintains only three periodicals—two monthlies and one quarterly. The suffrage movement maintains seven weekly papers, one fortnightly, and four or five monthlies.

More Suffrage Petitioners.

"You must have noticed how much larger an attendance there was in this committee room when the suffragists made their argument than when the anti-suffrage argument was presented. The experience is the same everywhere. In every State where petitions for suffrage and remonstrances against it has been sent to the Legislature, the petitions have always outnumbered the remonstrants,—and have generally outnumbered them 50 or 100 to 1.

"At the time of the last New York constitutional convention, the suffragists obtained more than 300,000 individual signatures to their petitions. Suppose only one-half of those were women, that would make 150,000. At the same time the anti-suffragists obtained only 15,000 signatures.

"In Chicago, a few years ago, 104 organizations, with an aggregate membership of more than 100,000 women, petitioned for a municipal woman suffrage clause in the new city charter, while only one small organization of women petitioned against it.

Results of Straw Vote.

"The only time an official referendum was ever taken among women on this subject was in Massachusetts in 1895. The anti-suffragists say that only 4 per cent. of the women of the State expressed themselves in favor of it. They neglect to say that less than one-sixth of 1 per cent. expressed themselves opposed. The women's vote stood: Yes, 22,204; no, 861.

"We admit that there are many who do not care. But of those who do care the vast majority are in favor. This has been demonstrated wherever the matter has been brought to a test.

"When constitutional amendments desired by men are submitted to the voters, it is only necessary to show that more men favor the amendments than oppose them. It is not necessary to show that those who favor the amendments outnumber both those who are opposed and those who do not care.

Suffrage and Chivalry.

"I once heard Miss Heloise Hersey of Boston, say in a public address against woman suffrage that she believed the workingmen of America would be better off without the ballot, because then their employers would feel a sense of chivalry toward them. This is the argument against woman suffrage carried to its logical conclusion. Everyone sees that it is foolish when applied to men. The organized working-women think it is equally foolish in regard to them.

"We do not claim that the ballot is the only factor affecting industrial warfare, but it does have a direct influence and weight when you are trying to get better hours or better sanitary conditions. In the matter of wages it has only a more remote and indirect influence."

He Put the Book Before Him.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Eagles Who Were Always Still.

"IN the house where Kenneth lived there was a chair which had always fascinated him. It was a very, very old chair, and Kenneth's mother and daddy were very proud of it," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn.

"Kenneth's daddy had bought it at a sale of old and curious things. It was a Roman chair, and on either side were two heads of eagles. These four heads in all always made Kenneth wonder, for they looked so very lifelike. He used to imagine that even little wooden eagles must get very tired of always being just the same.

"Really it often made Kenneth quite sad to watch them. One afternoon Kenneth went to a party. A little school chum of his had given it. It had been a very nice party. But, oh, he did feel so tired, for they had played blind man's buff, bull in the ring, squat tag and other games.

"When Kenneth came home from the party it was not quite his bedtime, and secretly in his heart he was hoping it would come soon, for he had made up his mind that he wasn't going to bed until his bedtime.

"He got a book from the library shelf. It was full of pictures of sailors and pirates and ships, because if anything would keep awake that would. He sat in a big chair and put the book before him on the Roman chair.

"Strangely enough, though, after a moment or two, he didn't seem to see pirates, and the sea began to look very much more like the surface of a chair. Soon the pirates disappeared entirely, and the four eagles of the Roman chair were looking at him steadily.

"'You're terribly tired, aren't you?' said the first eagle.

"'Yes; I'm a little tired,' Kenneth admitted.

"'Well, you're not as tired as we are,' said the second eagle.

"'No, indeed!' said the third eagle. 'You're only tired because you've played so many games. We're tired because we're always still.'

"Kenneth listened eagerly because he'd so often thought just what he was hearing. 'Yes,' said Kenneth very sympathetically; 'I should think you would be very dull. I've often thought that. Have you been there a long time?'

"'Oh, ages and ages!' replied the fourth eagle, who up to this time hadn't spoken. 'We were very old before your daddy got us. We've been on this chair so long. We can't remember how long. And what makes us feel so sad is that we are called eagles and should fly and yet are forever glued to this chair.'

"'Kenneth, Kenneth,' cried Kenneth's mother, 'it's long past bedtime!'

"'Oh, I am not so tired as the eagles are!' said Kenneth. And Kenneth's mother wondered if he was talking in his sleep."

Serving the Public

TELEPHONE POLES AND WIRES AFTER THE STORM.

The popularity of the telephone girl has increased some thousands per cent during the past month, and the forces of the Plant Department have run a close second. While the Storm King stayed his wintry hand and the business of life flowed on uninterrupted the public gave but little thought to these omnipresent ministrants and guardians of the telephone lines.

Some mistaken souls, who reckoned without knowing, even dreamed false dreams of how the operators could be dispensed with and began to vent their surplus energy upon attacking the system which was running so successfully that its very smoothness and perfection were misunderstood and were thought vulnerable.

When old Boreas unchained his blizzards in February and March, however, the disillusion came.

When all transportation was tied up and business and professional men remained away from their offices on account of the severity of the weather the faithful operators struggled to their exchanges to serve the public. The indefatigable and intelligent operators performed wonders in rendering service after they had endured hardship in reaching their exchanges and demonstrated again the utter helplessness of the public in such an emergency without them.

The plant men risked life itself to restore the broken lines of communication.—New York Telephone Review.

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER II.

MR. REYNOLDS came back soon and reported the house quiet and in order.

"But I found Peter shut up in one of the third floor rooms," he said. "Did you put him there?"

I had not and said so, but as the dog went everywhere and the door might have blown shut we did not attach much importance to that at the time.

Well, the skiff was gone, and there was no use worrying about it until morning. I went back to the sofa to keep warm, but I left my candle lighted and my door open. I did not sleep. The dead cat was on my mind, and as if it were not bad enough to have it washed in at my feet about 4 in the morning Peter, prowling uneasily, discovered it and brought it in and put it on my couch, wet and stiff, poor little thing!

I looked at the clock. It was a quarter after 4, and except for the occasional crunch of one ice cake hitting another in the yard, everything was quiet. And then I heard the stealthy sound of oars in the lower hall.

I am not a brave woman. I lay there, hoping Mr. Reynolds would hear and open his door. But he was sleeping soundly. Peter snarled and ran out into the hall, and the next moment I heard Mr. Ladley speaking. "Down, Peter," he said. "Down. Go and lie down."

I took my candle and went out into the hall. Mr. Ladley was stooping over the boat, trying to tie it to the staircase. The rope was short, having been cut, and he was having trouble. Perhaps it was the candle light, but he looked ghost white and haggard.

"I borrowed your boat, Mrs. Pitman," he said, civilly enough. "Mrs Ladley was not well, and I—I went to the drug store."

"You've been more than two hours going to the drug store," I said.

He muttered something about not finding any open at first and went into his room. He closed and locked the door behind him and, although Peter whined and scratched, he did not let him in.

He looked so agitated that I thought I had been harsh and perhaps she was really ill. I knocked at the door and asked if I could do anything. But he only called "No!" curtly through the door and asked me to take that internal dog away.

I went back to bed and tried to sleep for the water had dropped an inch or so on the stairs, and I knew the danger was over. Peter came, shivering, at dawn and got on to the sofa with me. I put an end of the quilt over him, and he stopped shivering after a time and went to sleep.

The dog was company. I lay there, wide awake, thinking about Mr. Pitman's death, and how I had come by degrees to be keeping a cheap boarding house in the flood district and to having to take impudence from everybody who chose to rent a room from me and to being called a she devil. From that I got to thinking again about the Ladleys and how she had said he was a fiend and to doubting about his having gone out for medicine for her. I dozed off again at daylight, and being worn out I slept heavily.

At 7 o'clock Mr. Reynolds came to the door, dressed for the store. He was a tall man of about fifty, neat and orderly in his habits, and he always remembered that I had seen better days and treated me as a lady.

"Never mind about breakfast for me this morning, Mrs. Pitman," he said. "I'll get a cup of coffee at the other end of the bridge. I'll take the boat and send it back with Terry."

He turned and went along the hall and down to the boat. I heard him push off from the stairs with an oar and row out into the street. Peter followed him to the stairs.

At a quarter after 7 Mr. Ladley came out and called to me: "Just bring in a cup of coffee and some toast," he said. "Enough for one."

He went back and slammed his door and I made his coffee. I steeped a cup of tea for Mrs. Ladley at the same time. He opened the door just wide enough for the tray and took it without so much as a "thank you." He had a cigarette in his mouth as usual and I could see a fire in the grate and smell something like scorching cloth.

"I hope Mrs. Ladley is better," I said, getting my foot in the crack of the door so he could not quite close it. It smelled to me as if he had accidentally set fire to something with his cigarette and I tried to see into the room.

"What about Mrs. Ladley?" he snapped.

"You said she was ill last night."

"Oh, yes! Well, she wasn't very sick. She's better."

"Shall I bring her some tea?"

"Not here!"

"Good heavens!" he snarled. "Is her going away anything to make such a fuss about? The Lord knows I'd be glad to get out of this infernal pig wallow myself."

"If you mean my house"— I began.

But he had pulled himself together and was more polite when he answered: "I mean the neighborhood. Your house is all that could be desired for the money. If we do not have linen sheets and double cream we are paying muslin and milk prices."

Either my nose was growing accustomed to the odor or it was dying away. I took my foot away from the door. "When did Mrs. Ladley leave?" I asked.

"This morning, very early. I rowed her to Federal street."

"You couldn't have had much sleep," I said dryly, for he looked horrible. There were lines around his eyes which were red, and his lips looked dry and cracked.

"She's not in the piece this week at the theater," he said, licking his lips and looking past me, not at me. "She'll be back by Saturday."

I did not believe him. I do not think he imagined that I did. He shut the door in my face, and it caught poor Peter by the nose. The dog ran off howling, but although Mr. Ladley had been as fond of the animal as it was in his nature to be fond of anything, he paid no attention. As I started down the hall after him I saw what Peter had been carrying—a slipper of Mrs. Ladley's. It was soaked with water. Evidently Peter had found it floating at the foot of the stairs.

Although the idea of murder had not entered my head at that time, the slipper gave me a turn. I picked it up and looked at it, a black one with a beaded toe, short in the vamp and high heeled, the sort most actresses wear. Then I went back and knocked at the door of the front room again.

"What the devil do you want now?" he called from beyond the door.

"Here's a slipper of Mrs. Ladley's," I said. "Peter found it floating in the lower hall."

He opened the door wide and let me in. The room was in tolerable order, much better than when Mrs. Ladley was about. He looked at the slipper, but he did not touch it. "I don't think that is hers," he said.

"I've seen her wear it a hundred times."

"Well, she'll never wear it again." And then, seeing me stare, he added: "It's ruined with the water. Throw it out. And, by the way, I'm sorry, but I set fire to one of the pillow slips; dropped asleep, and my cigarette did the rest. Just put it on the bill."

He pointed to the bed. One of the pillows had no slip, and the ticking cover had a scorch or two on it. I went over and looked at it.

"The pillow will have to be paid for, too, Mr. Ladley," I said. "And there's a sign nailed on the door that forbids smoking in bed. If you are going to set fire to things I shall have to charge extra."

"Really!" he jeered, looking at me with his cold, fishy eyes. "Is there any sign on the door saying that boarders are charged extra for seven feet of filthy river in the bedrooms?"

I was never a match for him, and I make it a principle never to bandy words with my boarders. I took the pillow and the slipper and went out. The telephone was ringing on the stair landing. It was the theater, asking for Miss Brice.

"She has gone away," I said.

"What do you mean? Moved away?"

"Gone for a few days' vacation," I replied. "She isn't playing this week, is she?"

"Wait a moment," said the voice.

There was a hum of conversation from the other end, and then another man came to the telephone.

"Can you find out where Miss Brice has gone?"

"I'll see."

I went to Ladley's door and knocked. Mr. Ladley answered from just beyond.

"The theater is asking where Mrs. Ladley is."

"Tell them I don't know," he snarled, and shut the door. I took his message to the telephone.

Whoever it was swore and hung up the receiver.

All the morning I was uneasy—I hardly knew why. Peter felt it as I did. There was no sound from the Ladleys' room, and the house was quiet, except for the lapping water on the stairs and the police patrol going back and forth.

At 11 o'clock a boy in the neighborhood, paddling on a raft, fell into the water and was drowned. I watched the police boat go past, carrying his little cold body, and after that I was good for nothing. I went and sat with Peter on the stairs. The dog's conduct had been strange all morning. He had sat just above the water, looking at it and whimpering. Perhaps he was expecting another kitten or—

It is hard to say how ideas first enter one's mind. But the notion that Mr. Ladley had killed his wife and thrown her body into the water came to me as I sat there. All at once I seemed to see it all—the quarreling the day before, the night trip in the boat, the water soaked slipper, his haggard face that morning—even the way the spaniel sat and stared at the flood.

Terry brought the boat back at half past 11, towing it behind another.

"Well," I said from the stairs, "I hope you've had a pleasant morning."

"What doing?" he asked, not looking at me.

"Rowing about the streets. You've had that boat for hours."

He tied it up without a word to me, but he spoke to the dog. "Good morning, Peter," he said. "It's nice weather—for fishes, ain't it?"

He picked out a bit of floating wood from the water, and, showing it to the dog, flung it into the parlor. Peter went after it with a splash. He was pretty fat, and when he came back I heard him wheezing. But what he brought back was not the stick of wood. It was the knife I use for cutting bread. It had been on a shelf in the room where I had slept the night before, and now Peter brought it out of the flood where its wooden handle had kept it afloat. The blade was broken off short.

It is not unusual to find one's household goods floating around during flood time. More than once I've lost a chair or two and seen it after the water had gone down, new scrubbed and painted, in Molly Maguire's kitchen next door. And perhaps now and then a bit of luck would come to me—a dog kennel or a chicken house, or a kitchen table, or even, as happened once, a month old baby in a wooden cradle, that lodged against my back fence and had come forty miles, as it turned out, with no worse mishap than a cold in its head.

But the knife was different. I had put it on the mantel over the stove I was using upstairs the night before and hadn't touched it since. As I sat staring at it, Terry took it from Peter and handed it to me.

"Better give me a penny, Mrs. Pitman," he said in his impudent Irish way. "I hate to give you a knife. It may cut our friendship."

I reached over to hit him a clout on the head, but I did not. The sunlight was coming in through the window at the top of the stairs, and shining on the rope that was tied to the banister. The end of the rope was covered with stains, bright with a glint of red in them.

I got up shivering. "You can get the meat at the butcher's, Terry," I said, "and come back for me in half an hour." Then I turned and went upstairs, weak in the knees, to put on my hat and coat. I had made up my mind that there had been murder done.

I looked at my clock as I went downstairs. It was just 12:30. I thought of telephoning for Mr. Reynolds to meet me, but it was his lunch hour, and besides, I was afraid to telephone from the house while Mr. Ladley was in it.

Peter had been whining again. When I came down the stairs he had stopped whimpering and was wagging his tail. A strange boat had put into the hallway and was coming back.

"Now, old boy!" somebody was saying from the boat. "Steady, old chap! I've got something for you!"

A little man, elderly and alert, was standing up in the boat, poling it along with an oar. Peter gave vent to joyful yelps. The elderly gentleman brought his boat to a stop at the foot of the stairs and, reaching down into a tub at his feet, held up a large piece of raw liver. Peter almost went crazy, and I remember suddenly that I had forgotten to feed the poor beast for more than a day.

"Would you like it?" asked the gentleman. Peter sat up, as he had been taught to do, and barked. The gentleman reached down again, got a wooden platter from a stack of them at his feet and, placing the liver on it, put it on the step. The whole thing was so neat and businesslike that I could only gaze.

"That's a well trained dog, madam," said the elderly gentleman, beaming at Peter over his glasses. "You should not have neglected him."

"The flood put him out of my mind," I explained, humbly enough, for I was ashamed.

"Exactly. Do you know how many starving dogs and cats I have found this morning?" He took a notebook out of his pocket and glanced at it. "Forty-eight! Forty-eight, madam! And ninety-three cats! I have found them marooned in trees, clinging to fences, floating on barrels, and I have found them in comfortable houses where there was no excuse for their neglect. Well, I must be moving on. I have the report of a cat with a new litter in the loft of a stable near here."

He wiped his hands carefully on a fresh paper napkin, of which also a heap rested on one of the seats of the boat, and picked up an oar, smiling benevolently at Peter. Then suddenly he bent over and looked at the stained rope end tied to the stair rail.

"What's that?" he said.

"That's what I'm going to find out," I replied. I glanced up at the Ladleys' door, but it was closed.

The little man dropped his oar and, fumbling in his pocekts, pulled out a small magnifying gloss. He bent over, holding to the rail, and inspected the stains with the glass. I had taken a fancy to him at once, and in spite of my excitement I had to smile a little.

"Humph," he said and looked up at me; "that's blood! Why did you cut the boat loose?"

"I didn't," I said. "If that is blood I want to know how it got there. That was a new rope last night." I glanced at the Ladleys' door again, and he followed my eyes.

"I wonder," he said, raising his voice a little, "if I come into your kitchen if you will allow me to fry a little of that liver. There's a wretched Maltese in a tree at the corner of Fourth street that won't touch it raw."

I saw that he wanted to talk to me, so I turned around and led the way to the temporary kitchen I had made.

"Now," he said briskly when he had closed the door, "there's something wrong here. Perhaps if you will tell me I can help. If I can't it will do you good to talk about it. My name's Holcombe, retired merchant. Apply to First National bank for references."

"I'm not sure there is anything wrong," I began. "I guess I'm only nervous and thinking little things are big ones. There's nothing to tell."

"Nonsense. I come down the street in my boat. A white faced gentleman, with a cigarette, looks out from a window when I stop at the door and ducks back when I glance up. I come in and find a pet dog, obviously overfed at ordinary times, whining with hunger on the stairs. As I prepare to feed him a pale woman comes down, trying to put a right hand glove on her left hand and with her jacket wrong side out. What am I to think?"

I started and looked at my coat. He was right. And when as I tried to take it off he helped me and even patted me on the shoulder—what with his kindness and the long morning alone, worrying, and the sleepless night, I began to cry. He had a clean handkerchief in my hand before I had time to think of one.

"That's it," he said. "It will do you good, only don't make a noise about it. If it's a husband on the annual flood spree don't worry, madam. They always come around in time to whitewash the cellars."

"It isn't a husband,' I sniffled.

"Tell me about it," he said. There was something so kindly in his face and it was so long since I had had a bit of human sympathy that I almost broke down again.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

This little frock, which is slightly draped, has a novel sleeve and ragian drop-shoulder. There is also a draped collar, to follow out another new idea which is becoming strongly favored this season. The Gladstone collar, which stands away from the throat all around, is one of the season's most popular novelties; it may be made separately of organdy, thin muslin or batiste and is very effective when worn with a dark dress of this description.

Any of the soft silks, taffeta, silk poplin, crepe de chine or faille may be used with this design (8263) as well as cotton crepe or one of the other new cottons. The suggestion of drapery in the front of this skirt renders it dressy enough for almost any afternoon affair.

For size 36 this design requires 4⅞ yards in 36 inch material. Pattern is cut in six sizes, 34 to 44.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

PREPARE FOR REFERENDUM VOTE AT OCEAN GROVE

Ocean Grove, March 25—Steps are already being taken for holding the referendum election here Tuesday, May 5, when the question as to this place becoming a borough will be voted upon. Some persons think that all property owners, local as well as out-of-town, and femals as well as male, should be given the right to record their wishes. It is said, however, that only the legal voters will be permitted to ballot at the election, the registry of voters being the same as that used at the last general election. There will be a sitting of the Board of Registry and Election, April 28, to revise and correct the list.

The respective forces, borough and anti-borough, are lining up for a decisive battle. It is estimated in certain quarters that the election May 5 will settle the fate of the borough definitely; that if it is carried in the affirmative the threat of Dr. Ballard to take the matter into the courts on appeal will never materialize, but will be quietly dropped and the boroughites left in undisputed possession of the field.

It is also generally believed the threat to curtail or cut off the summer services will not be carried out in the event of Ocean Grove becoming a borough.

PLAN TO CLOSE OPEN-AIR SCHOOL

Anti-Tuberculosis League May Be Forced to Take This Step.

BIG DEFICIT TO MEET

Possible That a Benefit Circus May Be Conducted to Raise Funds to Carry on the Work During Next Year.

Plainfield's open-air school, which has been conducted under the auspices of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, is to be closed for two months this summer and it is possible that it may be closed indefinitely. This action is made necessary by the fact that there is a big deficit to meet and contributions are slow in coming into the league. The executive committee of the league met last night and decided that something must be done to lighten its burden.

Acting on the opinion of the directors of the school that as children are out of doors in summer anyway the school sessions could be dispensed with with the least retardation in the convalescence of the pupils the executive committee decided to suspend school sessions for two months and save probably $340. The fact is that Plainfield narrowly escaped having the school closed once and for all. One member suggested that course and he was backed by the others, who have been earnest workers in supporting the school.

"The school was established to educate the Board of Education and the public," said a member. "The board certainly knows by this time that open air schooling has advantages that can be given unhealthy children in no other way. And some part of the public, too, knows as much. Open air schools are no longer an experiment. All new school buildings in Newark are being constructed to afford open air study quarters. If the Anti-Tuberculosis League must economize let us drop a feature of our work that has accomplished its purpose."

"We have done our duty, the Board of Education knows the value of open air schools," said another member. "That such a school is a public necessity cannot be more thoroughly demonstrated if we keep on with our trying and disagreeable task of raising contributions to maintain the school. It is now up to the Plainfield public and to the Board of Education."

The medical director of the school said that forty children had had the benefits of a sanitarium treatment in the ten months the open air school had been in operation. Those who opposed closing the school said that the prestige of the league would suffer and that those who had contributed in the past would resent the termination of the project which they had been asked to support. Moreover the interest of a group of women who were willing to aid the school would be sacrificed.

The treasurer of the league reminded the committee that it must face the fact that the budget for 1914 was way ahead of the estimated income and it was urged that the league proceed upon a course within its income. There was offered only one substantial hope of relief from the financial stringency which pervaded the meeting. One of the committee told of a Spring Lake community project by which a circus and committee of citizens arranged a benefit performance by which the Spring Lake Hospital was helped over a period of financial stress. One of the trustees was authorized to arrange a contract with a circus proprietor by the terms of which the circus man would take chances on the weather, some day next May, and with the league arousing local interest and selling tickets a benefit performance be given to help the league treasury.

MISS JANET RICHARDS TO GIVE ANOTHER LECTURE

Miss Janet Richards, of Washington, who has been giving a series of lectures at the Hartridge Auditorium, this winter on current events, will give her last talk of the regular series this afternoon, when she will cover events in general, but arrangements have been made for Miss Richards to give a supplementary lecture, which will be the last one for the season, on Thursday afternoon, April 2, when she will speak entirely on foreign affairs.

These lectures have been largely attended during the winter by women who have thoroughly enjoyed them. Miss Richards is exceptionally well informed at all times on affairs of world-wide interest and she always brings the latest news concerning world happenings.

UNDER CONDITIONS A LIE IS JUSTIFIABLE

That under certain extraordinary conditions a lie is justifiable was the concensus of opinion of those who attended the mid-week prayer meeting at the First Baptist church, last night. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, the pastor, was in charge of the meeting and directed the line of thought, on the subject: "What is a lie and is it ever justifiable?" The general definition of a lie, that it is an untruth, was accepted by those present, but as to whether it is ever justifiable, furnished a topic for an interesting debate lasting nearly two hours. More than two hundred persons were present at the meeting.

Among those who spoke on the topic, at the request of the pastor, were George H. Batchelor, J. Henry Crane, Mrs. Louis Matlack, Howard Parry, Randolph N. J. Chandler, Stanley Robins, Miss Harriet O. Mattison, Henry C. Krebs, superintendent of schools of Somerset county; former Mayor Charles Place, of North Plainfield; Frank W. Jones, Mrs. Sarah W. Brown and Arthur M. Harris.

The speakers viewed the subject from vastly different angles, and while it seemed to be the belief that on general principles a lie is never justifiable, there are conditions or circumstances when to save a life or spare someone great harm or injury, that a lie is justifiable. There were many apt illustrations to prove this, while a few of the speakers took the view that the truth should be spoken at all times no matter what the result.

MRS. WILLIAM H. SAMPSON PASSES AWAY IN WESTFIELD

Mrs. William H. Sampson, aged seventy-three years, for many years a resident of East Fifth street, this city, died yesterday at her home in Westfield, following a three weeks' illness. She had been living in Westfield about a year. While a resident of this city, Mrs. Sampson was prominently identified with the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and a regular attendant at the services. Since going to Westfield she united with the Presbyterian church of that place by letter.

There survives a husband, one daughter, Mrs. John C. Ketcham, of Westfield; two sons, Albert R. Sampson, of Metuchen, and Walter M. Sampson, of Westfield, and one sister, Mrs. Cornelia H. Clark, of Elizabeth. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late home. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery, this city.

FRANKLIN COUNCIL'S ANNUAL DANCE ENJOYABLE EVENT

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., held its annual dance at Debele's Hall, last evening. The hall was decorated attractively with flags and bunting. Old-fashioned dances were popular during the evening. There were about one hundred couples on the floor, and the affair was an enjoyable one.

The committee was as follows: George Townley, chairman; Thomas Leacock, floor manager; Charles Wilson, refreshments, and Fren Winn, assistant in charge of refreshments. Naylor's orchestra of four pieces furnished music for the occasion.

LECTURER WILL DISCUSS BENEFITS OF HOME TRADE

Under the auspices of the Business Men's Association and the Public Recreation Committee, O. A. Charles will deliver a lecture in the Washington School Auditorium next Thursday evening, on "The Deserted Village." This talk will be given in connection with the People's Forum.

Mr. Charles, in his talk, calls attention to the duty of the men and women to their community interests He advocates home trade and describes the benefits in dollars and cents that will come from dealing in home towns, thus keeping the trade away from the big stores in larger cities.

MISSIONARY ANNIVERSARY.

The anniversary of the Women's Missionary Societies of the First Baptist church will be held Friday afternoon, March 27, at 3 o'clock, in the lecture room. Interesting exercises will be held, with an address by Miss Grace Daland, of New York. All are cordially invited.

REAL ESTATE AGENT INDICTED FOR FRAUD

William Newcorn, Counsel for Defense, and Morris Abrams is Bondsman.

Samuel Swartz, agent for the Twin State Realty Company, owners of tracts of land in South Plainfield, entered a plea of not guilty before Judge Daly, in New Brunswick, yesterday, on an indictment charging him with fraud. Frederick Kulin is the complainant, who alleges that two men sold him a lot on Plainfield Terrace for $150 and that he paid $75 down to bind the bargain. When the deed was delivered to him it was for a lot in Plainfield Park, South Plainfield, according to Kulin, worth about $50, and he contends that one lot was pointed ou to him and other one deeded.

William Newcorn, of this city, is counsel for Swartz, and Morris Abrams, a local shoe dealer, furnished $500 bonds for the defendant's release. Mr. Schwartz was indicted jointly with one Henry Mangel, but the latter was not in court.

The investigation of the alleged land frauds at South Plainfield occupied the attention of the Middlesex Couny Grand Jury for nearly an entire day at one of their sessions, when ten or twelve witnesses, mostly residents of Hoboken and Jersey City, were examined.

FINAL HEARING IN DREIER WILL CASE

Mrs. Bertha Senger Files Sixty Exceptions to the Accounting.

Elizabeth, March 26.—The final hearing on the exceptions to the accounting of the Samuel Dreier will, which has been in the courts for the past three years, is up before Judge James C. Connolly in the Union County Court, today, and will probably be concluded late this afternoon. There are sixty exceptions filed by Mrs. Bertha Senger, a daughter of Samuel Dreier, in which she objects to the accounting of the estate by Harry Dreier, her brothers, who are executors of the will.

Mrs. Senger claims that work done under the terms of the will was not properly done and in many instances unnecessary. William R. Wilson, of Elizabeth, represents Mrs. Senger, while William Newcorn, a son-in-law of the late Mr. Dreier, appears as counsel for the executors. The estate comprises considerable real estate in this city and elsewhere, in addition to money, and Mrs. Senger is endeavoring to secure a settlement more favorable than allowed by the executors. According to the will the estate is to be divided at the expiration of twenty years from the time of Mr. Dreier's death.

VACANCIES TO BE FILLED IN FIELD HOSPITAL CORPS

Following an order by Wilbur E. Sadler to increase the Field Hospital Corps of the National Guard, of New Jersey, to war strength, there are many vacancies for young men of good character and of sound health in the Second Regiment at Elizabeth.

A fully equipped field hospital consists of eight army wagons, fifty horses and mules, thirty tents, a fully equipped operating table, dispensary, labratory, kitchen and a large supply of dressings and drugs. It is reported that the entire eighth division will partake in the manoeuvers in Virginia this summer.

Major H. D. Curbusier, of this city, who is attached to the Second Regiment at Elizabeth, desires that any one interested in outdoor life of this character, should communicate with him at the armory any Monday evening or at his home at 612 Park avenue.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF CLARENCE FRANCISCO

The funeral service for Clarence Francisco was conducted at his late home on West Second street, yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Harris C. Rush, of the Grace Episcopal church, officiating. There were numerous floral tributes from friends and relatives. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

The pall-bearers were six friends of the young man, Herbert Reynolds, Robert Sherwin, Edward R. Keen, Charles Lambert, Nelson Peterson and James Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Steiner have removed from 814 Leland avenue to 904 West Sixth street.

E. C. UPDYKE ENDS LIFE IN A HOTEL

After Committing Deed He Leaves Letter Asking Forgiveness.

E. C. Updyke, a carpenter, of Somerville, who was well-known here, committed suicide Tuesday night in a hotel at Akron, Ohio. A bellboy going to his room to awaken him found him dead on the floor with a bullet in his brain and a reviver by his side. In his pocket was a letter to his wife stating that he intended to kill himself and asking her forgiveness.

According to his wife's statements he had gone to the home of his brother-inlaw until he got work and would send for her, but no word was heard from him since he left.

Updyke disappeared for weeks on several occasions. About ten years ago he disappeared from his home, went to Trenton, and there gashed his throat with a knife in a stable. After spending weeks in a Trenton hospital he returned home. According to his family he was cheerful when he left home and wanted them to follow soon. Mrs. Updyke was making preparations to move to Akron this spring.

JOSEPH W. GAVETT TO ERECT HANDSOME DWELLING

Joseph W. Gavett, of Third place the well-known crockery man, has given the contract for a handsome Colonial house to be erected on his property on the Washington Valley road, opposite the Moldenke estate. The structure will cost about $8,000 and will be one of the most complete residences in that rapidly growing section. Martinus Thompson, of Johnston's Drive, will do the carpenter work and John Higgins, of Stone street, the masonry. A. L. C. Marsh is the supervising architect.

The site of the house is on a tract of land comprising seventy-seven acres, which Mr. Gavett purchased some years ago. He has already wrought many changes on the place, one of them being the setting out of 500 apple trees in a new fruit orchard. The property has a frontage on both sides of the Washington Valley road.

PROF. B. P. STOUT TO SING AT REVIVAL SERVICES

Beginning Sunday night and continuing for several weeks, Prof. B. P. Stout, of Pasedena, Cal., known as the "gospel singer," will assist Rev.

Professor B. P. Stout.

Gabriel Reid Maguire in special services to be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church. Prof. Stout has been conducting services in Trenton, where he has had great success. It is said hundreds of people have been turned away from the meetings.

Rev. Mr. Maguire will preach each night at the special services and Prof. Stout will assist by singing gospel songs, for which he is noted.

POLICE AFTER PARROTT.

The police of this city are looking for one Marvin E. Parrott, until recently an employe of a local newspaper, who, when apprehended will be prosecuted on a charge of passing worthless checks. Complaints have been sworn out by William J. Kitchen, manager of the Kensington Hotel, and Mrs. Catherine Larsen, who conducts the "Plainfield" on Park avenue. The checks aggregated $40.

FUNERAL OF JOHN RUTLEDGE.

The funeral of John Rutledge, who died yesterday morning at his home on Franklin avenue, of pneumonia, will be held from Grace M. E. church, Saturday afternoon at 2:30. The interment will be made at Hillside cemetery.

VOSSLER TO TENDER HIS RESIGNATION

Supervising Principal to Make Official Announcement Monday Night.

Investigation of the rumor published exclusively in the Plainfield Press, yesterday, has brought to light the information that Supervising Principal Arthur B. Vossler, of the North Plainfield High School, will officially tender his resignation to the Borough Board of Education at its monthly meeting, Monday night. When confronted with the question yesterday, members of the board and Mr. Vossler were reluctant to discuss the subject but admitted that "the resignation would be officially announced to the public following the April meeting of the Borough Board."

The announcement comes as a complete surprise to Mr. Vossler's friends and associates in North Plainfield's educational circles and is a source of regret as he has been considered an efficient head of the borough schools. The retiring principal will not discuss his plans for the future at the present time and as far as can be learned the board has chosen no successor.

Mr. Vossler came to North Plainfield last year, when Benjamin Phelps was principal and has been supervising principal of the borough schools for two terms. Albert Earley succeeded Mr. Phelps.

FORTY LIVES LOST AS SHIP BLOWS UP

Explosion of Boilers on Mairu Results in Terrible Disaster.

Honolulu, March 26.—Between thirty and forty lives are believed to have been lost by the blowing up of the inter-island steamship Maui, while off Pearl Harbor.

From Fort Kamehameha soldiers observed that the steamship apparently was on fire. A few minutes later the vessel was seen to blow up and immediately sink.

More than thirty men, including the crew and a number of laborers, mostly Hawaiians, were aboard.

Rumors are current that the Maui struck a mine, but the general opinion is that a boiler explosion caused the disaster.

With the aid of searchlights from Fort Kamehameha tugs and Japanese sampans are searching the sea for any survivors that were able to keep afloat.

The loss of all on board the vessel is indicated, as it is believed she sank so quickly that there was no time to launch small boats.

The Maui was a steel vessel of 631 tons, owned by the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, and was used in the island trade. She was built in 1898 at San Francisco.

The Maui left this port Wednesday for Kauai with a cargo consisting mostly of explosives. It is regarded as probable that the fire observed on the vessel ignited the explosives and caused the vessel's destruction.

JR. C. E. LEADER HONORED.

Mrs. Grace P. Williams, who conducts the Junior Society of Christian Endeavor of Hope chapel, was remembered at their meeting yesterday afternoon, when a bouquet of pink carnations was presented to her. The presentation was made by Miss Agnes Leighs. Appreciation of the work accomplished by Mrs. Clarence LaRue, the assistant superintendent, was expressed by the speakers of the afternoon. Many of the mothers of the children were in attendance.

DEATH OF E. M. MANSELL.

Edward Marsh Mansell died today after a short illness at the home of his brother-in-law, Dr. F. F. Wilcox, on Crescent avenue. Mr. Mansell is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mansell, of Trenton, and two brothers, Harry Mansell, of Bayonne, and Roy Mansell, of Vermont. The funeral services will be on Saturday at Trinity church, Bayonne. Interment is to be made at Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

FUNERAL OF HOWARD SCOTT.

The funeral of Howard Scott, the nineteen-year old son of Mrs. Sarah Scott, of South Second street, who was killed in a collapsing building in Philadelphia last Friday, was held yesterday afternoon, at the home of the mother. Rev. Preston Ross, of Westfield, officiated, assisted by Rev. G. W. Mailey, of this city. Burial was made in the Methodist cemetery.

SMALL FIRE IN BOROUGH.

A small fire occurred at 7:45 this morning in the grocery store of Louis Goldstein, of Grove street, resulting in damage to the extent of $25. The borough fire department responded to a call and extinguished the blaze.

ELKS CONDUCT LODGE OF SORROW

Exalted Ruler Charles Otto, and seventy-five members of Elizabeth Lodge, No. 289, B. P. O. E., paid a fraternal visit to Plainfield Lodge, last night. The visitors conducted initatory ceremonies for a class of eighteen candidates, the work being accomplished in a most satisfactory manner. In the course of the exercises, Past Exalted Ruler Abe J. David, of 289, gave an appropriate address on "Elkdom."

Preceding the regular business session, the members of 885 conducted a lodge of sorrow in memory of the late David J. Carney, for many years a member of the order and active locally. The ceremonies were in charge of Exalted Ruler Frank H. Smith, while Past Exalted Ruler William N. Runyon gave a stirring oration. He took occasion to refer to the many likeable traits and personal qualities that made Mr. Carney one of the most popular Elks in the city. Selections were rendered during the memorial by Elmer D. Cutting and John V. Todd.

SIX MONTHS' OLD CHILD RESCUED FROM THE FIRE

A small fire was discovered in the kitchen of the frame dwelling located at 719 East Second street shortly after noon today, and although the house filled rapidly with smoke chemicals extinguished the flames after a call had been sent in from box No.53. The house was occupied by Josephine Spearman.

The occupants of the house, all women, rushed out into the street forgetting in their excitement a six-months' old infant which was asleep on the second floor. When the crowd began to gather one of the women suddenly remembered the infant and Jacob Schlick, of Jackson avenue, made his way through the smoke and brought the child to safety.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER S. P. C. A. WORK

The Plainfield branch of the S. P. C. A., at its meeting this week at the Y. M. C. A., decided to delegate a great deal of the routine work to the executive committee, thereby doing away with the necessity of referring everything to the whole society. It was agreed that there are many things that come up from time to time that can be disposed of by the executive committee, the members being in a better position to keep in touch with the society's affairs.

Plans for the summer work were discussed and Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, the society's agent, presented an interesting report as to what is being done in this vicinity to further the work of the organization and protect animals from abuse.

MRS. MAURICE FLETCHER DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Word was received by local relatives and friends, yesterday, of the death in New York of Mrs. Maurice Fletcher, a native of Plainfield and resident for many years. Her home recently has been in Chicago and she came from there to New York seeking medical advice for a nervous affliction from which she had been suffering. Her death came as a great surprise.

Mrs. Fletcher was formerly Miss Ella F. Laing and was a sister to Eugene A. Laing, the well-known real estate man. Allen B. Laing, of Watchung avenue, is a nephew. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made, but they will probably be held in this city.

FUNERAL OF MRS. MORAN.

The funeral service of Mrs. Mary Moran, of North Plainfield, was held at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock this morning. Father Poli was in charge and Father W. H. Miller, the pastor, made a short address, referring to the Christian life of the departed. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the bearers were Richard A. Boice, William Leahy, Richard McCullough, Cormick McDonough, Thomas Duffy and Frank Day.

"COUNTRY POSTOFFICE."

The time honored "Country Post Office" will be reproduced tomorrow night at Trinity Reformed church under the auspices of the Loyal Band, Class No. 24, of the Sunday school, for the benefit of the Church fund. Tickets may be procured from any member of the class or at the door.

$28,399 VERDICT TO BE APPEALED

J. D. Loizeaux and John E. Dunn Will Carry Case to Highest Court.

IN TIMBER LAND CASE

James T. Mount Claimed Local Men Had Persuaded Him to Invest in Newfoundland Timber Company, and Wants Them to Refund Money

J. D. Loizeaux and John E. Dunn, of this city, will appeal the verdict which was given against them yesterday for $28,399.17, in the Supreme Court Circuit, the plaintiff being James T. Mount, a retired banker of East Orange. Messrs. Loizeaux and Dunn were represented by Lindabury, Depue and Faulks, of Newark, and William R. Codington, of Plainfield. The trial lasted eight days, and it took the jurymen two hours to reach the verdict. In talking about the matter this morning, Mr. Loizeaux said that his attorneys advised him that the verdict was directly opposite the evidence submitted, and the appeal will be taken to the Court of Errors and Appeals. The verdict in no way affects the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, being brought against Mr. Loizeaux and Mr. Dunn as individuals.

Mount sued on the ground that the defendants had got him to purchase $25,000 worth of stock in the Gander River Lumber and Pulp Company and fraudulent representation regarding the company's lumber on a tract of 600,000 acres in Newfoundland. He claimed that they had told him that there was an abundance of pine on the property. On the strength of this he purchased the stock, he declared. Foresters from the United States Forestry Service later looked over the lands and, according to Mr. Loizeaux, they testified that there were 155,000 cords of pine on the tract.

The defense contended that Mount, before purchasing, investigated and had his son, Raymond T., who is a forester, pay a visit to the company's tract to look after the proposition. It was after this visit that the purchase was made. They contended that there had been no attempt to defraud. Jerome D. Gedney, of Orange, represented Mr. Mount.

Eight well-known local men are included among the stockholders of the company, and all seem to be satisfied with the prospects of the company in the future. The land in dispute covers a tract 600 miles long.

OPENING OF A NEW AND EXCLUSIVE HAT SHOP

Albert L. Eames & Brother have leased the store at 239 West Front street opposite Proctor's Theatre, at which place they will open up with an up-to-date and exclusive line of men's hats on April 4. The Eames Brothers will bring to this city an experience of ten years in both the manufacturing and retail ends of the hat business, and will be in position to give the trade a first-class place to purchase their headgear, as well as furnish satisfactory service.

They will carry the celebrated union made line of F. Berg & Co.'s hats in various grades, also a strong line of caps, in fact everything that tops a man's head. A special feature in connection with the business will be, the fitting of the hard to fit, and the filling of orders made specially to conform to the heads of particular customers, and carrying out their ideas. The public is requested to see the opening display and wait for our special offer on opening day before making Easter purchases.

JOHN THOMPSON DIES IN NEW BRUNSWICK, AGED 72

John Thompson, aged seventy years, a former resident of this city, but more recently of New Brunswick, died at St. Peter's Hospital at the latter place, Tuesday night, from infirmities of old age. Mr. Thompson came to this city over thirty years ago from Waterbury, Conn., and for fifteen years was in the employ of the Potter Printing Press Company as a skilled mechanic.

From this city, Mr. Thompson went to New Brunswick where he held an important position with a manufacturing concern. He was a native of Manchester, England, where he left several relatives. Two nephews residing in this country survive him. The funeral services will be held from 402 Park avenue tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will be made at Hillside cemetery.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Alice Lloyd, who is making her third American tour, assisted by Frank Fogarty, "The Dublin Minstrel," and seventy-five high class entertainers under the management of William Morris, will be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening. Mr. Morris has arranged an attraction for Miss Lloyd that is something out of the ordinary for local theatregoers; in fact, an exact reproduction of an English music hall, such as offered at the Empire Theatre, London, and the "Follies Marigny," Paris. The feature of this monster entertainment will be Miss Lloyd and her company in "Dance Mad." Every form of dancing, including sensational X-Ray dance by artists who have the greatest respect for the terpsichorean. The scene of this big feature is a realistic glimpse of the famous Jardin de Danse, atop of the New York Theatre, New York, together with a vivid interpretation of the cabaret life in New York and Paris. Frank Fogarty, "The Dublin Minstrel," will be another big feature with the show. Mr. Fogarty has the reputation of being one of the best entertainers in the show world today. The first half of the entertainment will be devoted to Miss Lloyd in her song repertoire, including "My Night Out," "Lady Policeman," "Stockings on the Line," "Tourist and the Maid," "The Girls I Left Behind Me" and others; Frank Fogarty, Ed Latell, Sidney Wood and the Doraine Sisters, "The Act Beautiful," and the Cowboy Minstrels. The show promises to be a bigger and better attraction than any one of its kind to visit this city this season.

BAPTISTS REVIEW SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Annual Meeting of Church is Preceded by An Enjoyable Supper.

A large number of the members gathered last night at the Park Avenue Baptist church, when the annual meeting and supper of the church and congregation was held. The supper, which preceded the formal meeting, was arranged by the Ladies' Aid Society. At the supper, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the church, acted as toastmaster, while short addresses were made on "Church Unity" by the following: Rev. F. St. John Fitch, Rev. Dr. William W. Pratt, district superintendent of the Baptist Publication Society; D. M. Runyon, representing the board of deacons; George Place, representing the board of trustees; Willard M. Maxim, of the Sunday-school; T. H. Cummings and Benjamin F. Hadley.

The business portion of the meeting was taken up largely with reports received from the various organizations, all of which showed considerable progress made during the course of the past year. The report of the church clerk showed a membership of 365 and substantial balances in both the fellowship and benevolent funds. The Sunday-school reports were very interesting and showed an increase in membership and that $210 had been raised for benevolent purposes.

The Women's Missionary Society reported the largest amount raised of any o fthe societies,having $735 used for mission purposes during the course of the year. The Ladies' Aid Society also presented a very creditable report which showed a great deal of activity on the part of the organization. The Young People's Association, with a membership of fifty, and the Junior Society of Christian Endeavor, with a membership of thirty, both reported the results of their work.

The following were elected to the board of deacons to succeed themselves for a term of two years: D. M. Runyon, Benjamin F. Hadley, John H. Doane and A. L. Heyler, while Chester Gaskell was elected for a period of one year to fill the unexpired term of the late William M. Tallman. Charles B. Heyler was re-elected as treasurer of the benevolent funds, while Howard S. Mason was re-elected church clerk.

LEHIGH BUILDS THREE LARGE STEEL CARS

Intended for Transportation of Heavy Material, Especially Machinery.

The three biggest steel flat cars in existence have recently been designed and built by the Lehigh Valley Railroad. They are what are known as "well-cars," as there is an open space in the middle. They are meant for the transportation of heavy steel material, particularly machinery, and will be used chiefly to transport extra heavy shipments from the Bethlehem Steel Works Each car has a capacity of 110 tons, and can support that great weight even if it is all in the middle of the car.

As the well is over twenty-six feet long, the whole weight has to be supported by the sidebeams, and these are by far the strongest ever used in the construction of a car of this type. The cars are also low, the height of the floor above the rail level being a trifle over three feet. The center plate of one of these cars is also only twenty-three inches above the rail, and this was made possible by the design of F. N. Hibbitts, superintendent of motive power of the Lehigh Valley, which provides for carrying the deep flanges of the truck bolster down on either side of the center axle.

POSTMASTER GAVE PART OF PAY FOR PARTY FUND

York, Pa., March 26—Revelations have been made public that candidates for the postmasterships in York and Adams counties have had to sign agreements to pay five per cent. of their salaries to the Democratic State and county committees.

The postoffice department some time ago received affidavits to this effect and the disclosures are expected to bring about action. Allen M. Zeitz, former chairman of the York County Democratic Committee,speaking of the payments, said it was the only way the committee could get money.

LARGE EXHAUST FAN.

In order that the patrons of the Lyric theatre may be comfortable during the summer months, the management has arranged for the installation of a large exhaust fan with a capacity of about sixty-five thousand cubic feet of air per minute. The temperature in the theatre will be at least twenty degrees cooler than outdoors in the hottest days. The feature today is a first run Edison reel, "All For His Sake."

PRESBYTERIAL SOCIETY MEETING

Thirtieth Annual Session to Be Held at Rahway Tomorrow.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Interesting Addresses and Reports to Be made Covering Work for the Past Year — Officers to Be Elected.

It is expected that at least 200 delegates will attend the thirtieth annual meeting of the Elizabeth Presbyterian Home Missionary Society for Women to be held in the Second Presbyterian church, Rahway, tomorrow morning, at 10 o'clock. This society draws from not only the six Presbyterian churches of Elizabeth and the two from Rahway, but from all those in the Presbytery, extending from Basking Ridge and Liberty Corner Lamington and Califon, through all the towns along the Central Railroad from Clinton and Plainfield to Elizabeth and to Metuchen, Woodbridge and Perth Amboy.

The opening devotional service at 10 o'clock will be in charge of Mrs. Grace Petrie Williams, of Plainfield, and an early attendance at this meeting is very desirable.

After the annual reports of officers, an address upon the "Uplift of the Negro" will be given by Miss Roberta C. Barr, assistant secretary of the Freedmen's Board, of Pittsburgh, Pa. Having visited all the schools supported by the Presbyterian women in the Southland, during the fall and winter, her address will have the advantage of the near view.

Mrs. Charles L. Thompson, of East Orange, president of the State synodical society, will be present and explain the work for the new year.

The president of the local society entertaining the convention, Mrs. George H. Bush, and the pastor's wife, Mrs. Frederick W. Johnson, will be hostesses at the luncheon at 12 o'clock and will cordially welcome all the delegates. It is not an elected body. All women interested are welcome.

At 1:15 o'clock the Missionary Education Movement will hold an illustrated talk in the Sunday-school room concerning the most modern ways of "doing things missionary" and show how and where to get these appliances.

The afternoon session at 2 o'clock, will have several most interesting and helpful features. Miss Helen C. Crane, of Elizabeth, will give impressions of the summer school at Northfield and reasons why young women and older should attend.

A number of young women of the Westminster Guild Chapter, of the First Presbyterian church, of Elizabeth, will show in a playlet "How Not to Run a Missionary Meeting."

Mrs. Marshall C. Allaben, superintendent of the mission schools and academies under the Women's Board of Home Missions, from Alaska to Porto Rico, will tell of the work visited this last winter in the Spanish speaking States of Arizona and New Mexico and of the work in Utah, California and Alaska.

Some changes in the officers who carry on this work will be necessary by reason of resignations, but the present officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Augustus S. Crane, of Elizabeth; vice presidents, Mrs. I. C. Pierson, Plainfield; Mrs. W. I. Steans Westfield; Miss C. P. Dwight, Roselle; Mrs. H. F. Mooney, Rahway; Mrs. W. H. Gulick and Mrs. J. E. Keron, of Elizabeth; corresponding secretary and Freedmen secretary Mrs. J. A. Frazer, Elizabeth; recording secretary, Mrs. G. E. Ludlow Cranford; young people's secretary Mrs. Adrian Lyon, Perth Amboy, and treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Coleman, of Elizabeth. The total amount of money given last year for home missions from this society was $7,114.30.

PASTOR AT YELLOW FRAME HEARS SON DIED IN WEST

Newton, March 26—A telegram has been received by Rev. Isaac H. Condit, pastor of the Yellow Frame church, advising him of the death of his son, James Condit, who went West four years ago and took up a section of land in Minnesota. Further details of the death of the son, who was thirty-two years old, are lacking.

Certain circumstances indicate that the young man had been dead some time. He visited his father at Yellow Frame in February. After his return nothing was heard of him until the receipt of the telegram.

The young man's family wrote to him at his address several weeks ago. Recently the letter was returned to Mr. Condit by the postoffice department, marked undelivered. The telegram was received by Mr. Condit, Saturday, that his son was dead.

Besides his father and stepmother, young Mr. Condit is survived by a brother George, who has started West to bring the body home, and by two half-brothers, Paul and Blair Condit, students in Newton and Blair Academies, respectively.

RELIGION IN THE SCHOOLS.

A plan satisfactory to the churches in one city at least, has at last been found for the teaching of religion in the public schools. The plan has had its origin in New York city and just now it is being tried out there, but it is equally applicable in every other community, from the largest city to the smallest rural school. The experiment will be watched with a great deal of interest by educators and parents, as well as by church people, the country over. Indeed, it is to be hoped that it will receive the general commendation of churches everywhere and that, as a result, one of the greatest contentions between the two paramount fundamentals of life—religion and education,—may be removed and the two be brought into their proper relationship in the service to mankind.

The New York plan is not the idea of any one mind. Like movements of so great import, it has just grown because it could not help it. Some 1,300 Catholic teachers in the public schools of that city realizing that there were a number of Catholic school children growing up without religious training volunteered their services to teach the youngsters their catechism after school hours. The plan was a little unusual, but it met with the ready commendations of Cardinal Farley, of the church, and of Superintendent Maxwell, of the schools.

The same method of teaching Christianity to the Protestant children in the same schools, who do not go to Sunday-schools, has been taken up now by the Protestants who are evolving a method of giving religious instruction to their children. The Baptist Ministers' Association has named a committee of five to consult with other Protestant denominations to work out the methods to be pursued. For those pupils without any religious preferences, some arrangement will be made. So far all sects seem to be very well satisfied and heartily in sympathy with the movement. And why shouldn't they, for the plan does take religious training to school children who otherwise must grow up without such a training. Moreover, the plan is bringing sects and churches into a closer relationship and, naturally, into a closer sympathy for one another.

Whatever else may be said, there has been a gratifying change in the attitude of the Board of Education in the matter of taking the people into its confidence during the past few weeks. Every step in connection with the sale of the Kensington avenue tract and the purchase of another on Evergreen avenue has been publicly announced and now the plans which are being made for the erection of a new school on the latter tract have all been given to the local public. There is no governing body which loses anything by publicity. Telling the voters who pay the bills the why and wherefore of each act developes confidence, and often quiets the kickers. Some people are objecting to the Evergreen avenue tract being used for a school, and of course they have sound arguments against it from their point of view, but one thing is sure—there must be a school, and no delays can be tolerated in getting it under way. We have referred to the great success of the Mendham Board of Education in taking the people into its confidence, thereby procuring the needed money to better the educational system, and the Plainfield Board can do no better than to follow that method. It may be that the local body is "loosening up" with information because its new secretary is a former newspaper man, and if such is the case we extend our congratulations to that official.

True to their promise the Democratic leaders have had a Plainfielder appointed to the County Tax Board. W. A. Coddington's selection speaks well for both the party and Governor Fielder. There were a number of other men of excellent character and reputation who were suggested for the place, but some one had to be disappointed and in that disappointment it is gratifying to know that one of such great ability and character should have been chosen. Mr. Coddington has been recognized for many years as a leader in the county Democracy, having been elected city judge in Plainfield, and several times sought nomination in the party and lost by close figures. As one of those who favored another for the County Tax Bard said yesterday: "Judge Coddington is as good a man as they could get for the job, for he knows real estate as well as any man in town. I was opposed to him, but the appointment is nevertheless a good one." With his hundreds of other friends in town we extend congratulations.

Rev. Frederick J. Hubach's selection as district superintendent of the Elizabeth district of the Methodist Church will meet with the hearty approval of those who have the good fortune to know that clergyman. It is also pleasing to know that Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, whom he succeeds, will continue to reside in Plainfield and will carry on the work where Mr. Hubach left off at the Monroe Avenue church. Both have a large circle of friends and admirers in Plainfield, and their presence in the community is of distinct benefit. It is also gratifying to the members of their congregations and their friends to have Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson and Rev. C. C. Cain returned to their respective charges.

Governor Fielder says that Nugent and Baird are working together. That's nothing new. There never was a time when the bosses of the two old parties would not get together for self-protection in the matter of killing legislation which might be of benefit to the whole people, but at the same time interfere with the proper working out of some scheme of the politicians. The Governor surely has had enough experience as a Senator to know all this.

It is no credit to the telegraph company that Plainfield, a city of 30,000 inhabitants, twenty-four miles from New York, was cut off from direct wire service for 23 days following the storm of March 1, and then was only given partial service. The leased-wire news service to the Daily Press has not been resumed as yet, and no promise is given as to when it will be, but we hope to have it by the time the baseball season starts.

The question, "What is a lie, and when is it justifiable?" may not have been definitely decided last night, at a local church meeting, but there are a whole lot of people who find it an ever present help in time of trouble.

The merchants of the city are deserving of congratulations for their excellent displays of spring goods, both in the windows and within the stores.

Spring is surely here. The circus posters are up.

THE FORUM.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

In Tuesday's issue of the Plainfield Press under the heading, "Nugent Attacked by Governor Fielder," where the Governor charges team-work to defeat his bills, it is surely amusing to me to read such stuff and my sympathy surely goes out to the Governor in his dilemma, for such it must be to him, who went up and down the State in the campaign last fall telling us poor mortals that bossism in New Jersey had totally disappeared under that all-wise boss killer, Woodrow Wilson, our President, who to my mind, has done more bossing than all our small-fry bosses combined, and makes them look like "pikers," to use a slang phrase. Now about that deficiency in the State treasury. Aside from the political side of it, is it not a bad thing, don't you think, that a whole lot of the extravagance that has been practised in this State, also in our local communities, come from the fact that the people are really kept in ignorance of the fact that what the State turns into the local municipality really comes indirectly from the people, in one way or another. Now, personally, I am opposed to economy and always have been, particularly the brand that they use in Warren township, but if the Governor really wants to economize, let me give him a few suggestions about where to begin. Now, of course, this is a new one that has never been in any political platform. Take sealed bids for all positions in the State service, advertise well all vacancies. All persons to be eligible to bid must pass an examination as to ability, the Governor to be the judge of the moral fitness, and you will have money to burn. This talk of not being able to get men of calibre for any less salary is "all rot." What sane man in this State but knows that there is plenty of clerks in all the State departments doing practically all the work, that are just as well qualified or a trifle better, than their superiors, who are not drawing only about one-fifth of the salary and don't get three or four months' vacation in the summer time either. Now one more matter and I am done. Why all this talk about school funds now? I know I am treading on dangerous ground, but I have had this in mind a good while and someone must make a start, but if the State needs money to run its legitimate business why not take it from the school trust as any other trust, for there is no doubt in my mind that there exists and has existed in this State for a long time a school trust, made possible by a fear of anyone to say or do anything against the advance of education. Now, no doubt, some critic will say the writer is crazy, possibly I am, but I want to say that our people are surely going crazy on this school question. While a lot of high priced educators are "getting away" with the goods under the guise of better schools, but don't let us deteriorate if we need money to efficiently run the state. Don't let our dependents suffer; don't let our schools suffer; don't let any of our State institutions suffer, and don't believe that every man holding a job under the State is a grafter, because there is a few sinecures that any of us would like to have.

FOREIGN TRADE AT ITS ZENITH

Fiscal Year of 1913 Set a Precedent in United States Commerce.

COMPARATIVE FIGURES

Large Increase in the Valuation of Various Groups of Merchandise—No Corresponding Increase in Quantities.

Washington, D. C., March 26—According to the Department of Commerce, the foreign commerce of the United States made its highest record in the fiscal year 1913. Imports, both free and dutiable, were larger than ever before, and exports, both domestic and foreign, were also the largest on record. Imports were 1,813 million dollars, against 1,654 million in the fiscal year 1912, and exports were 2,466 million dollars, against 2,204 million in 1912.

The changing character of our foreign commerce is illustrated by a comparison of the figures of 1913 with those of earlier years. Imports show in recent years a much more rapid gain than exports. While imports increased but 27 per cent. in the twenty-year period from 1880 to 1900, they increased 113 per cent. in the shorter period from 1900 to 1913. On the other hand, exports, which increased 67 per cent. in the twenty-year period from 1880 to 1900, gained only 77 per cent. in the period from 1900 to 1913. Imports formed in 1900, 37.8 per cent. and in 1913, 42.4 per cent. of the total foreign commerce. Foodstuffs imported in 1900 aggregated 231 million dollars and, in 1913, 406 million; manufacturers' raw materials imported increased during the same time from 276 million to 635 million dollars, an increase of 534 million dollars in the value of foodstuffs and raw materials imported during this period. On the other hand, foodstuffs exported during the period under consideration show a decline of 44 million and raw materials an increase of 406 million, a net increase of but 362 million dollars in foodstuffs and raw materials exported, compared with an increase of 534 million in foodstuffs and raw materials imported.

In manufactures, however, the growth in exports has exceeded that in imports. Imports of manufactures for further use in manufacturing increased from 134 million dollars in 1900 to 349 million in 1913, and finished manufactures from 203 million in 1900 to 408 million in 1913; while on the export side manufactures for further use in manufacturing increased from 153 million dollars in 1900 to 409 million in 1913, and finished manufactures from 332 million to 778 million, the increase in manufactures imported during the period having been 420 million dollars and in manufactures exported 702 million dollars.

The largest increase in the valuation of the various crops of merchandise imported and exported in recent years does not represent a corresponding increase in quantities. In a large proportion of the articles forming international trade, prices in recent years are much higher than those in the earlier years of the period under consideration, and the increases in quantities are in many instances less than the increases in total values, this being especially true of foodstuffs and manufacturers' materials.

In finished manufactures the determination of prices is much more difficult, though for a limited number of articles prices may be ascertained, and these show in most cases a less advance than that in raw materials or foodstuffs.

A brief but thorough analysis of this foreign trade is to be found in the monograph "Annual Review of the Foreign Commerce of the United States, 1913," Miscellaneous Series No. 14, of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, just published. Notable features of the import and export trade, such as trade by grand divisions and principal countries, sources of leading articles imported, distribution of leading articles exported, increased imports of raw materials, increased exports of manufactures, etc., are clearly and concisely given. Copies of the monograph may be obtained by any one interested upon application to the Department of Commerce.

SENATORIAL CONTESTS NOW IN PROSPECT

Thirty-two Are to Be Elected By Direct Vote of the People.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 26—Between now and the end of the year thirty-two United States Senators are to be elected by direct vote of the people. The election by direct vote is expected to bring about some changes in the upper house, for among the members whose terms are to expire next March are several who probably could be returned if the election was still in the hands of the legislature but who will find it pretty difficult to win in a popular primary.

One of the most notable Senators who will retire a year hence is Elihu Root, of New York. Mr. Root is one of the most commanding figures on the Republican side, and should his party return to power he would be the recognized leader of the upper house. But between the Democratic and Progressive opposition his re-election is very doubtful.

Penrose, of Pennsylvania, is another Senator who will retire next March unless he is re-elected. If he wins the Republican nomination in the primary next month he will have to defeat A. Mitchell Palmer, Democrat, and Gifford Pinchot, Progressive, at the polls in November.

Albert B. Cummins, one of the "big" men in the Senate, will face the mixed Republicans and Progressive sentiment in Iowa. Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, is another notable Republican who will haev a hard race for a return.

Joseph L. Bristow, of Kansas, also has a hard fight on his hands. Six aspirants are now in the field for his seat, among them such well-known political figures as former Senator Charles Curtis, Republican, and Victor Murdock, Progressive.

The venerable Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, a leader among the Stand Patters, is not likely to return. The election of a Democrat to succeed him is among the possibilities.

Senator Bradley, of Kentucky, is another Republican who will probably be succeeded by a Democrat, either Governor McCreary or former Governor Beckham.

Senator Stephenson, of Wisconsin, now in his eighty-fifth year, is not expected to be a candidate for re-election, though he has made no announcement to that effect. Several candidates to succeed him are already in the field; among them Governor McGovern and Lieutenant Governor Morris.

James H. Brady, of Idaho, will have to overcome formidable opposition if he returns. Four Republican candidates, as well as Democrats and Progressives, are now striving for his seat.

The case of Senator Clarke, of Arkansas, was practically settled in the State primaries this week and two weeks hence the Alabama primaries will decide whether Underwood or Hobson will be sent to the Senate. At the same time Alabama will choose a short-term Senator.

Of the Democrats whose terms will expire one of the most notable is Hoke Smith, of Georgia, who expects to return. Gore, of Oklohoma, also expects re-election, though he has a hard fight on his hands. Another able Democrat who will seek re-election is Senator Newlands, of Nevada. He is popular in his State, but whether he can win out in a general primary remains to be seen. Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, appears to have a good chance to return, although a number of opposition candidates are already in the field.

According to the reports received the path to re-election will not be altogether a smooth one for Senators Sherman, of Illinois; Shively, of Indiana; Stone, of Missouri; Jones, of Washington; Dillingham, of Vermont, or Gronna, of North Dakota.

The other members of the United States Senate whose terms will expire next March and the majority of whom appear reasonably sure of re-election are F. B. Brandegee, of Connecticut; J. R. Thornton, of Louisiana; C. S. Thomas, of Colorado; Coe I. Crawford, of South Dakota; Reed Smoot, of Utah; D. W. Fletcher, of Florida; M. A. Smith, of Arizona; Lee S. Overman, of North Carolina; J. W. Smith, of Maryland; G. C. Perkins, of California, and J. D. Smith, of South Carolina.

The present membership of the Senate stands 51 Democrats, 43 Republicans and 1 Progressive. The body is certain to remain Democratic until March 4, 1917. The elections of Senators to take place this year will not detract from the Democratic majority, and, in fact, may add one or more to the voting strength.

A MAN'S GAME WHICH DELIGHTS WOMEN AND CHILDREN

By special arrangement with the publisher, the Daily Press will distribute to its readers the new, up-to-date and interesting game known as

CHANCE BASEBALL.

The game is a scientific arrangement of nearly fifty different plays in baseball. Practically every play arising in the National game including the famous "Squeeze Play" of the Champion Athletics, and the spectacular "Double Steal" of the New York Giants. It is so simple that a person with only a smattering of baseball knowledge can play it and the person who knows nothing about baseball can learn the game in a short time and in a practical manner.

THE WAY IT WORKS.

Walter Johnson is pitching. Ty Cobb at the bat. Ty hits for a single. Watch him steal second. Then down to third on a sacrifice. Now what do you think of that "dub?" He's out napping at third. The plays are all there and you're sure to make 'em.

GET IN THE GAME.

MAKE A HIT

With the folks by obtaining one. You'll make an error if you don't. It is as much fun for the grown-ups as it is for the youngsters. Get a grand stand seat for the price of a score-card and make rooters out of the entire family.

VILLA BEATEN IN TORREON FIGHT

Army Driven Back After a Fierce Attack.

BATTLE STILL CONTINUES.

Federal Troops Make a Brilliant Stand. Hundreds Killed In Engagement. Rebels Also Lose Gomez Palacio. Battle Is Still Going On.

Juarez, March 26.—General Villa has suffered a decided repulse in his attack upon the outlying federal positions at Torreon.

He sent General Chao, the military governor here, a message saying that his forces had been driven back out of Gomez Palacio by federals, who had crossed the river from Torreon and retaken the town. Villa is now at Elvergel, ten miles from Torreon, with his command of 4,000 men.

Villa's dispatch stated that a fierce battle was raging around Torreon and Gomez Palacio as his message was filed, both federals and rebels using cannon and machinue guns effectively. The federals were occupying Gomez Palacio as their base, while the rebels had fallen back on Lerdo and El Verjel.

Villa declared, however, that he had the federal garrison surrounded and that he was confident of being able to retake Gomez Palacio and capture Torreon.

The rebel leader's telegram shows that the claims put forward by the rebels here that Torreon had fallen were false and that General Refugio Velasco's troops drove them out of Gomez Palacio either Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

Washington, March 26.—General Villa has met with a repulse in his attack on Torreon, according to a cable message from Mexico City received at the Mexican embassy here. The message was made public. It reads:

"The rebels were repulsed in an attempt to reach Torreon. General Velasco well prepared for attack."

Carranza Rushes to Aid.

El Paso, Tex., March 26.—General Venustiano Carranza, first chief of the Mexican Constitutionalists, will not come to Juarez, according to information received here. He has suddenly changed his mind and is hurrying toward the battle front at Torreon, with his escort of 2,000 troops, to reenforce General Villa's army. The information was that Villa had been repulsed and had asked Carranza's aid.

El Paso, Tex., March 26.—The conviction that General Francisco Villa's Constitutionalist army has met a serious check at Torreon is growing as the result of the ominous silence of Villa himself regarding the battle and the receipt of disquieting private telegrams here.

J. H. Smith, a wealthy American with large interests in Mexico, received a message from his partner at Mexico City stating that General Refugio Velasco, the federal commander at Torreon, had repulsed the rebel assault and had driven the enemy out of Gomez Palacio. More than 500 Constitutionalists have been slain, the telegram said.

The Constitutionalist officers here are evidently worried. Although it was learned that they had been in direct communication with Villa's field headquarters, they refused to give out any information regarding the battle. Last night they boasted that Villa had captured Torreon itself, but they would not even say he had retained possession of Gomez Palacio.

Rumors regarding the fate of the federal stronghold are numerous, but all are unconfirmed. Villa absolutely controls the telegraph facilities.

SAGUE APPOINTED APPRAISER

President Selects Anti-Tammany Man For New York Post.

Washington, March 26.—President Wilson sent to the senate the nomination of John K. Sague, formerly mayor of Poughkeepsie, for appraiser of merchandise for the port of New York. The nomination was made on the recommendation of Senator James A. O'Gorman. It is regarded as an anti-Tammany nomination.

At the Syracuse convention of 1912, when William Sulzer was nominated for governor, Mr. Sague made a speech in which he spoke harshly of Charles F. Murphy, the leader of Tammany. At that time Mr. Sague was a candidate for the nomination for governor.

Albany, N. Y., March 26.—Bootblacks will be prohibited from working after 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoons if Senator Boylan's bill, passed by the upper house, is acted upon favorably in the assembly and signed by Governor Glynn.

Attempts to have New York city exempted failed. The vote was 34 to 6.

Robbers Tortured Victim.

Is Playing Important Role In Present Ulster Crisis.

English women of high rank, always a strong force in politics, are playing important roles in the present crisis over Ulster. One of the most influential is the Marchioness of Londonderry, wife of the marquis, a leader of the Ulsterite opponents of home rule. Friends of home rule accuse her of influencing the king against their cause.

STRIKERS IN DEPEW FIRE ON THE TROOPS

Bullets Sing Over Heads of State Militiamen.

Buffalo, March 26.—Bayonets of the state militia, which is in control of the town of Depew, near here, dispersed a crowd of Gould Coupler company strikers when a work train bearing strike breakers from Buffalo pulled into the town. For a few moments trouble seemed certain, but the stern band of the soldiers quelled all opposition and the crowd melted away.

Three hundred more troops, the third battalion of the Seventy-fourth regiment, arrived at Depew to aid in controlling the strike situation and to maintain a constant patrol for a mile about the factories.

All through the night there was considerable shouting near the plant. A volley of bullets crashed through the east gate of the factory and just before daylight a similar volley sang past the heads of the soldiers on guard at the west entrance. No one was hit and it was too dark for the troops to see who fired the shots.

The International Foundrymen's association and the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway employees are more than likely to become involved in the trouble here. James Corfs of the former body arrived here and will meet representatives, with the probability that the foundrymen's funds will be used to back the strikers up in their fight.

President W. D. Mahon of the Street Railway employees is expected here from Detroit, Mich. He will investigate trouble which arose when conductors and motormen of the International railway here refused to operate special cars carrying soldiers to Depew. These conductors and motormen were dismissed, but were reinstated pending Mahon's investigation.

WILSON'S FRIENDS DEFEAT ATTACK

Assembly In Disorder Over Toll Repeal Resolution.

BANK TAX BILL CHANGED

Governor's Measure Likely to Pass With Reduction From 1 Per Cent to .0075 Rate—Essex County's Attack on President Met by Adherents, Who Hit Back at Assemblyman Foley.

Trenton, N. J., March 26.—Wild scenes of disorder attended an attempt by Assemblyman Frank A. Foley of Essex county, an anti-Wilson Democrat, to put the assembly on record as opposed to the national administration's attitude on the Panama canal tolls question. Mr. Foley's resolution was referred to the judiciary committee, this action being equal to killing it.

The Democratic floor leader, Branegan of Hudson, then offered a resolution protesting against meddling in affairs of the United States government. This was defeated by the decisive vote of 43 to 14. Quigley, another anti-Wilson man of Essex, then moved to relieve the judiciary committee from further consideration of the Foley resolution and this precipitated the warmest fight of the present session. He was declared out of order, and McDermott of Hudson, seeking to help him, arose to a point of order. Speaker Beckman promptly ordered McDermott to sit down and McDermott refused.

"The gentleman will be seated or I will order the sergeant at arms to remove him from the assembly chamber," shouted the speaker.

"I have a right to be on the floor of this house," yelled McDermott in reply as he still refused to be seated.

The sergeant was summoned and he grabbed McDermott, dragging him unceremoniously to the rear of the hall. Excitement reached a high pitch and many members leaped from their desks. The row was further complicated by a motion to adjourn. It did not prevail, however, and order was finally restored. The speaker then apologized, saying he had no right to order a member removed.

The assembly substitute for the Pierce bank stock taxing bill was further compromised as the result of conferences during the day, and it now seems certain that the measure will pass with a flat rate of three-quarters of 1 per cent instead of 1 per cent, as the governor desired.

The New Jersey ship canal commission, which will die May 2 next, when the term of the commissioners end, unless further legislation be enacted, is composed of Mayor Donnelly, Walter Wood of Camden, Charles A. McCormack of New Brunswick, James N Reilly of Newark and Worthington M. Jacobus of Rutherford.

GETS SIGHT AFTER 29 YEARS.

Veteran First Feasts His Eyes on Roosevelt's Picture.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 26.—Harry F. Smith, seventy years old, a veteran of the civil war, recovered his sight after being blind for twenty-nine years. Dr. Frederick Frisch performed an operation on one of his eyes and after it was over he asked to see the picture of former President Roosevelt. When had looked at it a second Smith remarked, "He looks just like I thought he would."

One of Smith's eyes was shattered during the war and the other went blind in 1886. Since then the old man has seen nothing until he looked at the picture of Roosevelt. It is thought he will recover the sight of the other eye.

EARTH TREMORS REPORTED.

Atlantic City Misses Shocks Which Suburbs Feel.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 26.—Reports of mysterious earth tremors which shook houses and broke windows were received here from Wildwood, N. J., and Ventnor, a suburb of Atlantic City.

According to the report from Wildwood, the tremors occurred at intervals of one and two minutes for a period of half an hour, while a similar report was received from Ventnor.

No shocks were felt here, and no reports of explosions have been received.

CONDENSED STATE NEWS.

The summer home of Charles E. Williams at Wyckoff was destroyed by fire The loss is about $7,000.

The appointment of John Wahl Queen by Judge Thomas G. Haight of the United States district court to be a United States commissioner was announced in Jersey City.

The new postoffice in West Hoboken will be dedicated on Saturday evening. Congressman John J. Eagan will be the guest of honor. The building will open April 1.

Six of eight members of the Kilkenny Football club of New York who were arrested in Newark last December for attacking Policeman Stoelberger were found guilty. Two others were acquitted.

Edward W. Garrison, superintendent of the public schools of Passaic county, talked so much at the primaries Tuesday that he lost his vote. While denouncing the primary law he absentmindedly handed his unmarked ballot to the clerk, who dropped it into the box.

Great Display In Liberal Arts.

Chief Hardee Invites Manufacturers of the United States to Participate As Exhibitors at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco In 1915.

THEODORE HARDEE, Chief of the Department of Liberal Arts for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco in 1915, is addressing letters to the principal manufacturers of the United States in the various industries classified under his department, inviting their participation as exhibitors.

The Liberal Arts rank high in the Official Classification because they embrace the Applied Sciences, which indicate the result of man's education and culture, illustrate his tastes and demonstrate his scientific attainment, inventive genius and artistic expression. They comprise fifteen groups, divided into 121 classes and cover the equipment, processes and products of these activities:

Typography—Various Printing Processes; Books and Publications—Book Binding; Maps and Apparatus For Geography, Cosmography and Typography; Manufacture of Paper; Photography; Instruments of Precision, Philosophical Apparatus, Coins and Medals; Medicine and Surgery; Chemical and Pharmacal Arts; Musical Instruments; Theatrical Appliances and Equipment; Electrical Methods of Communication; Civil and Military Engineering; Models, Plans and Designs For Public Works; Architecture; Architectural Engineering.

In his invitation Chief Hardee is emphasizing the national character and international significance of the 1915 Exposition as well as the splendid opportunity afforded these manufacturers for a comprehensive display of their products and processes, in which live, working exhibits would prove especially interesting and attractive.

He has also dwelt upon the fact that the exhibits at this Exposition must be SELECTIVE in character, because of the comparative limitation of space, due to the world's more extended productivity and the wider participation than at previous expositions. In view of this situation and as there is no charge for exhibit space, he has suggested the advisability of filing applications for space without further delay.

THEODORE HARDEE, CHIEF OF DEPARTMENT OF LIBERAL ARTS.

The rules of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition confine these applications from the various industries to MANUFACTURERS only, and he is seeking the active co-operation of the press of this country toward inducing thoroughly representative American displays in the Department of Liberal Arts. He aims to have the manufacturers suitably represented at this important celebration of the opening of the Panama Canal—an event that means the inauguration and development of entirely new and profitable avenues of commerce, the extent of which it is impossible to overestimate.

The Chief appeals to the patriotism of the manufacturers in helping to insure the success of our country's great celebration and believes that in doing so they will at the same time maintain the enviable position their great industries occupy in the commercial arena of the world.

As far as possible, the Palace of Liberal Arts will be filled with working exhibits, showing processes as well as products illustrative of the skill and ingenuity of man. As in all other Departments, exhibit space will be free in the Palace of Liberal Arts. Exhibitors are, in return, required to transport their exhibits to the Exposition, erect suitable booths for their installation and properly maintain their displays throughout the nine and one-half months comprising the Exposition period.

Already the applications for exhibit space have far exceeded the amount available in this department. This permits selection of only the most desirable exhibits, so manufacturers of unusually fine products need not hesitate about sending in applications for exhibit space, which will receive the most careful consideration when the allotment of space is made. The preliminary allotment will probably be made this Spring. As the Exposition opens on Feb. 20, 1915, the time for preparation is comparatively short. It is highly advisable, therefore, to file applications without delay, as allotments will be made only from those on file.

Answer—Decidedly not. Ignore both his letter and card and write your girl friend and tell her to see that he stops annoying you.

Sporting Editor:

Query—How would I address a letter to the Secret Service Commission? What is the address of the Interstate Commerce Commission?—A. L.

Answer—Both may be reached by addressing Washington, D. C.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is it true that winters are decreasing in coldness and summers in heat as years pass?—S. R. O.

Answer—No. They vary from year to year. The average temperature of the full year is pretty nearly the same. Local conditions have more or less influence on climatic conditions.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What color is radium?—C. R.

Answer—Radium, when extracted from pitch blende, takes the form of exceedingly small brilliant crystals.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What name would you suggest for an outdoor club for boys and girls being organized in Plainfield?—H. R. O.

Answer—Forest and Field Club might be applicable.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Should a lady remove her hat or just her coat when dining in a restaurant? Should she order the meal, or allow the gentleman to do it?—N. B.

Answer—She certainly should not remove her hat. A gentleman will offer the lady the menu card. If she prefers his choosing from it for both she may do so.

LEAGUE COMPETITION ENDS WITH TWO TEAMS DEADLOCKED

The final games of the Plainfield High School inter-class basketball league were play in the High School gym yesterday afternoon. Much interest has been shown in all the contests throughout the year. The fight for the championship has been close for, had the seniors defeated the freshman yesterday there would have been a triple tie for the lead. As it now stands the seniors and juniors are tied for second place.

Although the freshman team has not won any games it has played fine basketball throughout the year, many of its games being lost in the last few minutes of play.

Team	W.	L.	Pc.
Sophomores	4	1	.800
Seniors	3	2	.600
Juniors	3	2	.600

Hot Springs, Ark., March 26.—Attorneys representing S. H. Camnitz, the Federal League agent, enjoined temporarily last Monday from interfering with members of the Pittsburgh National League team under the State Labor Contract law, yesterday filed a motion in Chancery Court here asking that President Freyfuss be required to produce in court all his players' contracts.

RAID ON HUSTLERS.

Anniston, Ala., March 26.—John Farrell, manager of the Rochester International League team, training here, has learned, it was said yesterday, that Infielder McDonald has jumped to the Pittsburgh Federals. McDonald formerly was with the Boston Nationals. According to Vanden Wayne, secretary of the Rochester club, McDonald already had signed with Rochester and had accepted advance money.

SPEEDY INTERCLASS LEAGUE GAME WON BY JUNIOR FIVE

In a close and exciting game the junior class basketball team of the Plainfield High School inter-class league, defeated the freshman class team by the score of 25 to 22. The freshmen lead most of the way. The score at the end of the first half was 14 to 9 in favor of the freshmen.

The seniors and juniors are now tied for second place in the league.

PLAN SCHEDULE FOR CITY CHAMPIONSHIP

Bowlers Are Busy Making Arrangements For Series to Decide Title.

Three major bowling quintets have come into prominence during the present season as contenders for the city championship and arrangements are now well under way for a series of matches to decide this title. Heretofore the Elks' quintet has had no rival for honors in the city or borough and has been conceded the handle each year.

At the present time the Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, has an especially strong aggregation representing it and the Park Club also supports a team on the alleys. The organization of the Knights of Columbus Bowling League in this part of the State has placed the Watchung Council quintet in the public eye and they are considered lively contenders for the title just now. The Park Club pinners have bowled more or less independently during this and other seasons and will probably put up a strong argument when confronted by the Elks and Watchung Council combination.

The first of the series will be played on the Elks' Club alleys Friday night, April 3, when the Park Club pinners will be entertained. The Elks will visit the Park Club chutes sometime during the following week and in the event of a tie a third game will be played, the alleys being selected by the flip of a coin.

Preparations are under way for a home and home series between the Knights of Columbus pinners and the Elks and the Park Club pin-knights will also try conclusion with the Front street organization. Each of the clubs has exceptionally fine alleys and the series will probably be one of the most interesting staged here in the history of the indoor pastime, locally.

JOE CHOYNSKI GETS FORTUNE FROM CHINK HE BEFRIENDED

Chicago, March 26.—Joe Choynski, former prize fighter and now director at the Pittsburgh Athletic Club, yesterday discovered that $10,000 had been left him in the will of Jim Pon, a Chinese whom the boer befriended years ago.

Jim Pon died a few days ago, and his sons, Ned Ying and Dert Ying, unable to open the safe in their father's restaurant, sent for Choynski. The boxer brought a man who in a few minutes opened the steel doors, disclosing Pon's will. It named Choynski as executor and guardian of Jim Pon's sons.

Choynski's kindness to Pon was in sending his boys to school and otherwise helping them at various times.

Y. M. C. A. PRACTICED.

The Y. M. C. A. held its regular Wednesday night practice last night. A long scrimmage followed the regular drill. The second team played against the first and gave a good account of themselves. The teams lined up as follows:

FIRSTS.	SECONDS.
Moulton, forward	Brandt, forward
Borden, forward	Seals, forward
Gavett, J., centre	Gavett, R., centre
Glover, guard	Berse, guard
Gavett, T., guard	Briggs, guard

P. H. S. GIRLS' GAME.

The Plainfield High School girls' basketball team will journey to South Orange, Friday afternoon, to play the girls' team of that city.

BASKETBALL WARRIORS WHO PLAYED FOR PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL THIS SEASON

Although handicapped by weight and inexperience the Plainfield High School basketball team has just completed a creditable season of competition on the local and suburban scholastic courts and the exhibitions engaged in by the local schoolboys have been fast and interesting in a majority of cases. Defeat came in the Interscholastic League race only after North Plainfield had been tied and treated to a big scare in the second contest.

The team did not rank in the running for the city championship, but gave a creditable account of itself against High Schools of a like strength in this State. Hetfield, Gavett, Sminck and Snyder will be lost to the team by graduation this season and of the regulars Rosenson, McNamee and Wheelan are the only ones who will remain when the 1914-15 season gets under way. Mr. Patch has coached the quintet during the season and although handicapped by the lack of good material he whipped together an aggregation that has done wonderfully well considering the many handicaps that presented themselves early in the season.

PLAINFIELD SCHOOLBOYS WILL HAVE TO GO SOME

Plainfield and Westfield High Schools are included in the revised baseball schedule issued by Manager Harris, of the Pingry High School baseball nine, today, and the teams in the Elizabeth aggregation's list are unusually formidable outfits this season. Many contests are booked prior to the Plainfield clash and some good priming will be put through before the local schoolboys take their crack at Pingry ballists on Parker Field.

Two games have been booked with the Westfield High School athletes and this series, more than any other, will give the followers of Union county scholastic competition, a chance to decide on a title holder for the season.

The games scheduled are listed below.

April 14—Upsala at Kenilworth.
April 18—Kingley at Essex Fells.
April 22—Roselle Park at Roselle.
April 25—Newark Academy at Pingry.
April 29—Rutherford at Rutherford.
May 2—Upsala at Elizabeth.
May 6—Cranford H. S. at Pingry.
May 9—South Side H. S., pending.
May 12—Roselle H. S. at Pingry.
May 15—Carlton Academy at Summit.
May 20—Westfield H. S. at Westfield.
May 23—Roselle Park at Elizabeth.
May 27—Cranford H. S. at Cranford.
May 30—Westfield H. S. at Westfield.
June 1—Plainfield H. S. at Plainfield.
June 6—Alumni at Elizabeth.

JUNIOR BOYS' BASEBALL TEAM FOR THE Y. M. C. A.

Members of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department college league met in the association parlors, yesterday afternoon, and effected the organization of a junior baseball team which will be composed of junior department baseball players. Godfrey Clay was elected captain, and Harold O'Donnell will act as game booker.

Plans are under way to arrange a number of series of games with junior nines in this city and the contests will probably be played Wednesday afternoons and Saturday mornings. Other boys' teams wanting dates are requested to communicate with O'Donnell at the Y. M. C. A.

SENIORS ELIMINATED FROM LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP RACE

The sophomore class quintet of the Plainfield High School won the inter-class championship yesterday afternoon, when it defeated the senior class five by the score of 22 to 16. The game was one of the closest played on the local court this year. If the senior class had won, there would have been three teams tied for the lead in the inter-class league, as the juniors defeated the freshmen yesterday afternoon.

At no time during the first half was either team ahead by more than two points, until in the last few minutes of play two goals in quick succession by Oleary and Hunter gave the sophomores a lead of three points, and ended the half with the score at 11 to 8.

The second half was a repetition of the first with both teams fighting hard.

The score:

AMERICANS IN BIG MEET.

Two American aviators, Lincoln Beachey and "Bob" Fowler, have announced their intention of entering the round-the-world race, to start from the Panama-Pacific Exposition Grounds in San Francisco next year. The formal entry list will not be opened for a month or six weeks, or until after the rules have been finally adopted and promulgated.

P. H. S. OUTDOOR PRACTICE.

Captain Rosenson has issued a call for the first outdoor practice of the Plainfield High School baseball team to be held on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Bob Fitzsimmons has at last found a way to keep the wolf from the door. Bob and his young offspring are performing in a burlesque show on the Columbia Circle and reports have it that they are pulling 400 hard simoleans a week. This ought to be enough to keep the two huskies in bread and milk for a while at least. We also note that Bob has laid aside his hammer and is not taking his usual cracks at the New York Boxing Commission since he discovered the new way to draw some of the loose change that is floating around in this big world of ours. It is a safe bet that the Ruby Cornishman will steer clear of Dunellen diggings as long as he can sport a contract such as the one he is now under. Footlight performing always did have its attractions for lanky Robert and the money and applause he is now getting undoubtedly makes him feel sixty or seventy years younger.

Boxing paid $38,781 into the treasury of New York State during the last year, according to the report of the State Athletic Commission, which regulates the sport, under the Frawley law. This was 5 per cent. of the gross receipts, which amounted to $775,596. Since boxing was legalized in that State $1,994,796 has been paid by the fans to witness bouts, and of this sum the state has received $99,739.80. And yet they tell us some boxers have a habit of starving to death when they can't get any food.

Don't smoke. Don't dance. Don't play pool. Don't swear. Don't drink more than one glass of ale or one bottle of beer. Don't take much sugar in your coffee or tea or lemonade. Don't chew chewing gum. Don't go to bed late at night. Don't drink much water. Don't eat duck, goose, wild fowl, veal, oysters, crabs, lobster, pastry or shellfish. Don't eat many potatoes. Don't go "to father" for advice. If you abstain from partaking in these vices you will some day be fit to take part in a chess tournament.

By way of explanation the individual who started that article in circulation in another paper regarding the proposed division of the Plainfield High School gymnasium during the spring training months is a space writer.

Who do you think will romp off with the Sunday School League pennant this year? With the influx of Westfield and Bound Brook aspirants the situation has become pretty well knotted up.

It's pretty near time those Sunday School magnates started signing up the Central New Jersey League players and building new ball parks. Present conditions indicate that we will have a Federal war all our own before the season opens. The more the merrier.

Those colored athletes who are due to perform against the Plainfield All Stars on the Saengerbund Hall court next week are in the pink of condition, according to Manager Gates. A nefarious color scheme.

Who'll be responsible for the statement that spring has come? If some good samaritan will guarantee a continuance of this weather for a few weeks our little baseballists will be able to limber up stiff joints.

THERE ARE WISE PEOPLE aplenty who are of the opinion that the bicycle is the ony means of locomotion that combines outdoor exercise of lasting benefit with the exhilarating joy of rapid motion. The wheel has a lot to do with the pleasure part of it and we want you to see what we show. Prices as easy as the wheels' running.

PARK AVENUE QUITS S. S. BALL LEAGUE

Strong Combination Will Be Turned Out to Play Independent Baseball.

Manager H. R. Palmer, of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school baseball team, this morning definitely announced that the Sunday-school which he represents will not be one of the contenders for the Sunday-School League pennant this year. This comes as a big surprise in the league circles as Park Avenue was one of the most active members last season and the withdrawal of the school leaves a vacancy which will probably be filled by some aspirants in Bound Brook or Westfield, the towns recently mentioned as competitors on the circuit this season.

Jack Ricketts is acting in the capacity of temporary captain and many candidates have signified their intention of trying out for the team this season. Present indications are that the team will be much stronger than the one of last season but independent baseball will be catered to in the main. Parker Field will be used on alternating Saturdays by the Park Avenue nine and a schedule composed of strong independent organizations is now being compiled by Manager Palmer. He is desirous of hearing from other managers in this section and can be reached by addressing 141 East Ninth street.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR BASEBALL AT RUTGERS

The baseball game scheduled between Rutgers and West Point for Saturday afternoon has been cancelled by the latter team because of the bad condition of the diamond. This places the first contest for Rutgers on April 4, when Princeton will be met at Princeton.

Prospects for a winning team at the New Brunswick institution are bright. The team has lost by graduation Captain Clifford Dennis, pitcher, and Harold W. Schenck, of Plainfield, outfielder, but all of last year's other regulars are still eligible and should form the nucleus for a winning aggregation.

Ronald Acken, of Rahway, who held down the catcher's position last year, is practically assured of the place. He was one of the best pinch hitters on the team and also fielded well. Other candidates for catcher are Dudley Browning, of Perth Amboy, and Ralph Todd, of Tarrytown. Harry L. Jennings, of Hartford, Conn., is the most promising candidate for pitcher. He will probably be supported by Paul Bowen, of Shiloh, and Kingsley Powell, of Metuchen.

The infield will consist of Wainwright Twing, of Riverton, first base; Elroy Steedle, of Riverside, second base; Captain Albert Leeds, of Brooklyn, shortstop, and New Howlett, of Basking Ridge, third base. The two regular outfielders still eligible are Ralph Seiler, of Elizabeth, and Lawrence Gillam, of Mt. Holly. Other promising candidates are George F Wales, of Elizabeth; Raymond Austin, of Rahway, and Harry Watt, of Hamburg.

TAPS FROM THE GAVEL.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., will observe its thirty-third anniversary at its meeting tonight.

Reports of the delegates to the grand lodge session at Los Angeles will be made tonight at the meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., at Coward Hall.

Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A M., will confer the royal arch degree on three members at its meeting tonight at the Babcock building. The assistant lecturer of the sixth Masonic district will pay an official visit to the chapter at this meeting.

Other lodges scheduled to meet tonight are as follows: Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., at Junior Hall; Trafalgar Lodge, No. 506, Sons of St. George, at Coward Hall, and Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, at the Babcock building.

The degree team of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will go to Mt. Bethel on April 1, to perform the degree work for the Council of that place. Stage leaves the front of the lodge room at 6:45 o'clock.

"LIFE'S DREGS."

"Life's Dregs," in four reels, by the author of Quo Vadis, and produced by the Cines Company, of Rome, will be the big feature picture at Proctor's theatre today. It is a powerful drama of society life. Six other features are announced for today. Tomorrow's program will offer Harold McGrath's story "The Adventures of Kathlyn," and on Saturday, "Lost in Mid-Ocean," the big Vitagraph production in three reels, will be the feature.

ASBURY MAKING SUMMER PLANS

Many Gala Events Are Carded for Jersey's Popular Seaside Resort.

BABY PARADE AUG. 26

Elaborate Program is Being Arranged for Visitors During Easter Week—Continuous Schedule of Events Planned.

Asbury Park, March 26—Spring and summer tourists at this famous shore resort will have few dull moments this season. A most elaborate and extensive program arranged for their entertainment has just been announced by Colonel John W. Aymar, president of the Carnival Association. It is the most ambitious proposition ever attempted by the association for the amusement of the thousands who annually go to Asbury Park.

The season will be opened April 11 with a big celebration, and from that date to September 7, Labor Day, there will be a series of entertainments, several times weekly throughout the season.

Asbury Park is making a big bid for the Easter holiday patronage, and if the "weather gods" are propitious this year indications are that the hotels and boarding-houses will be taxed to capacity.

The program for the season, which includes the baby parade and carnival week festivities, follows:

Saturday, April 11—Fireworks on fishing pier at 7:30 o'clock p. m.; varied program of classical entertainers at the Casino at 8:15 o'clock p. m.

Sunday, April 12—Concert at the Casino at 3 and 8 o'clock p. m. by orchestra of fifteen pieces.

Wednesday, April 15, and Saturday, April 18—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Sunday, April 19—Program by Convention of State Charities and Corrections.

Wednesday, April 22—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Saturday, April 25—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Sunday, April 26—Royal Arcanum program; 3 o'clock p. m.; concert at 8 o'clock p. m. by orchestra.

Wednesday, April 29—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Saturday, May 2—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Sunday, May 3—Two orchestra concerts at Beach Casino.

Wednesday, May 6, and Saturday, May 9—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Sunday, May 10—Two orchestra concerts at Casino.

Wednesday, May 13, and Saturday, May 16—Dancing and feature pictures at Casino.

Sunday, May 17—Two orchestra concerts at Beach Casino.

Wednesday, May 20—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Saturday, May 23—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Sunday, May 24—Two orchestra concerts at Casino.

Wednesday, May 27—Dancing and feature pictures, Casino.

Friday, May 29—Carnival ball at Casino, 8 o'clock p. m.

Saturday, May 30—Patriotic fireworks on beach front and beginning of regular night dances at Casino.

Sunday, May 31—Two orchestra concerts at Casino and beginning of regular Sunday musical programs at Casino.

Friday, July 17—Wesley Lake Carnival.

Friday, July 24—Masque fete.

Friday, July 31—Fireworks on beach front.

Saturday, August 8—Daylight carnival, Deal Lake; races.

Friday, August 21—Queen's court ball.

Wednesday, August 26—Baby parade.

Thursday, September 3—Fireworks display on beach front.

Friday, September 4—Firemen's parade.

Saturday, September 5—Masque fete and firemen's contests.

Monday, September 7—Fireworks on beach front.

The program for Easter week, according to the officials of the Carnival Association, exceeds anything ever arranged for a resort. The association has spared neither time nor expense to make the opening of the season a memorable occasion and give the Easter tourists a gala week of pleasure—not only at Easter, but all through the season.

C. E. CONVENTION DATES.

The annual convention of the State Union of Christian Endeavor will be held this year at the Bergen Reformed church, of Jersey City, of which Rev. Dr. Cornelius Brett, a former president of the State Union, is pastor. The dates of the convention has been set for October 7, 8 and 9. The 1915 convention will be held at Elizabeth.

EXONERATE PAGE FOR LONDON SPEECH

Full Text Throws New Light on Talk.

Washington, March 26.—Ambassador Page's own version of his speech of two weeks ago before the London chamber of commerce, for which he was much criticised by members of congress, was made public at the state department. A copy of this address has been sent to the senate by Secretary Bryan in accordance with the terms of the Chamberlain resolution directing him to obtain for the senate the full text of what the American ambassador to Great Britain actually said.

Criticism of the ambassador's speech, which was more or less extemporaneous, centered about his alleged remarks to the effect that the United States was glad that Great Britain would profit most by the canal and that the Monroe doctrine meant that the United States would "prefer" that Europe acquire no more land in the western hemisphere.

While the full text, as made public, disclosed the fact that the ambassador actually made the remarks attributed to him at the time, the context places these remarks in a slightly different light.

It is understood that Secretary Bryan and the members of the cabinet found nothing to object to in the speech when it was read at the White House.

Concerning the canal, the ambassador said:

"I will not say that we constructed the Panama canal even for you, for I am speaking with great frankness and not with diplomatic indirection. We built it for reasons of our own. But I will say that it adds to the pleasure of building that great work that you will profit by it.

"You will profit most by it, for you have the greatest carrying trade.

"I can say a similar thing about the recent lowering of our tariff. We did not lower it in order to please you. It was for purposes that we considered economically sound for ourselves. Nevertheless, it added to the pleasure of doing that to reflect that thereby we should have more trade with you."

MAY BE LIEUT. GEN. GOETHALS

Highest Rank and Nation's Thanks In Joint Resolution.

Washington, March 26.—Representative Calder of New York introduced in the house a joint resolution extending the thanks of congress to Colonel George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama canal.

Accompanying the offer of the greatest honor in the gift of the national legislature was a section authorizing the president to elevate Colonel Goethals to the rank of lieutenant general.

EMPLOYERS OF CHILDREN HELD CRIMINALLY LIABLE

Trenton, March 26—Employers who habitually violate the Child Labor laws relating to the employment of children under sixteen years of age hold themselves criminally liable instead of civilly, under the provisions of a bill which was passed in the Senate yesterday. The bill was introduced by Senator Egan and was passed without much opposition. The bill provides that an employer by habitually violating the law becomes a disorderly person.

Another child labor law passed provides that it shall be unlawful to employ a child under sixteen years of age for more than eight hours in any one day or for more than forty-eight hours a week, and before 7 in the morning and 7 at night.

PROMINENT SUFFRAGISTS ARE SAID TO BE ALIENS

Greenwich, Conn., March 26.—After years of work for woman's suffrage, Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton and Mrs. Herman Pauli; two leaders of the cause, have discovered today that they are aliens, having lost their United States rights by marrying foreigners, neither of whom have become naturalized. Should woman's suffrage win, neither Mrs. Pauli nor Mrs. Seton would benefit by it and could not enjoy the privilege of voting.

The only way the situation can be changed is the taking out of naturalization papers by the suffrage leaders' husbands. Ernest Thompson Seton, the author, was born in Canada and still remains a British subject. He married Mrs. Seton, who is a native of California, in 1896.

BOOKS ON CIVIC SUBJECTS.

Several books covering all sorts of civic subjects and topics of current interest in municipal management and government are now to be found at the Public Library. Those interested in the book will find an abundance of interesting and instructive material at their disposal in these most recent additions to the shelves of the institution.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, will speak tonight at the Rescue Mission.

SEELY RESIGNS; ACCEPTS BLAME

Takes the Responsibility For Ulster Crisis.

ASQUITH IS DETERMINED.

Announces He Will Not Accept Resignation of Minister of War—Storm In the House—Speaker Rebukes Lord of the Admiralty.

Cause of the Agitation.—Opposition of Protestant and industrial Ulster to the proposed home rule legislation under which Catholic and agrarian Ireland would be in control.

Opposing Factors.—The radical parties—Liberals, Laborites, Socialists and Irish Nationalists, known as the coalition—versus the Unionists, also called the Conservatives. Allied with the latter are the army clique and the aristocracy.

Asquith's Peace Proposal.—The partial exclusion of Ulster from the workings of home rule for six years pending settlement of the question by methods not yet outlined. He proposes that the nine Ulster counties vote separately on home rule, they to be excluded for a maximum time of six years if they so desire. The Unionists reject this proposal.

Question Under Immediate Debate.—"Shall the army rule England?"

Possible Results.—If the home rule bill is pushed to passage armed rebellion on the part of 100,000 Ulster volunteers, with resultant civil war, is looked on as a certainty.

London, March 26.—Amid the wildest confusion in the house of commons, during which Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, completely lost his composure and was rebuked by the speaker, the Asquit cabinet fought for its life.

The resignation of Colonel J. B. Seely as minister of war was announced on the floor. Premier Asquith declared that he would not accept Colonel Seely's resignation.

Colonel Seely heatedly declared that suggestions that King George had interfered in any way in the situation growing out of the refusal of army officers to serve in Ulster were without the slightest foundation. Premier Asquith placed the blame for the entire crisis on Colonel Seely and the war secretary publicly accepted full responsibility.

Tremendous cheering greeted the statement of Premier Asquith that the government would not submit to the dictation of army officers.

"The government would never assent to the officers' dictation as to their duties," declared the premier. "This would put the government at the mercy of the army and navy."

Continuing Premier Asquith said:

"The government had no apologies to make on account of the natural and perfectly proper steps taken for the preservation of order in Ireland in view of the fact that Sir Edward Carson claims to have organized and equipped 100,000 men to resist home rule."

Mr. Asquith did admit that there had been discrepancies and misunderstandings regarding the orders to General Sir Arthur Paget. The cabinet, however, he said, had not authorized the last two paragraphs of the council's decision regarding General Gough.

Premier Shields the King.

Premier Asquith and other Liberal leaders endeavored in every possible way to answer the charge that King George had interfered in the administration of the government. Asquith deplored the "improper attempt" to drag the king into the conflict.

"His majesty has observed at all times every rule of a constitutional monarch," the premier declared.

Mr. Churchill admitted when questioned that a squadron of battleships had been ordered to the Irish coast because of possible disturbances, but was later recalled.

The commons was then thrown into an uproar when L. S. Amery asked Churchill if he had not hoped that his "precautionary measures would lead to bloodshed."

"I repudiate the hellish insinuation!" shouted Churchill as he advanced toward Amery.

Mr. Churchill was sternly rebuked for what the speaker termed his "unparliamentary language."

Members were on their feet shaking their fists and rallying to the support of Amery or Churchill before order was restored. Following the announcement of his resignation, Colonel Seely sought to relieve the cabinet of all responsibility for the surrender of the government to the army officers.

SAYS VILLA WAS U. S. SOLDIER

Goulden Tells House Rebel Served Under Name of Goldenbergh.

Washington, March 26.—Pancho Villa, the Mexican rebel chieftain, once served in the United States army, according to a statement made in the house by Representative Goulden of New York. The statement was made while Representative Ainey was attacking the Wilson policy.

Just before he took his seat Mr. Ainey was interrupted by Mr. Goulden, who observed:

"I have been informed that General Villa formerly served in the United States army under the name of Goldenbergh."

COLONEL JOHN D. SEELY.

British Minister of War Who Tendered Resignation.

Shouldering all the blame for the government's surrender to the mutinous army officers who refused to serve in Ulster, absolving King George from the charge of "meddling" and exculpating Field Marshal Sir John French and General Sir Arthur Paget from all blame, Colonel J. E. B. Seely tendered his resignation as secretary of state for war. The premier, Mr. Asquith, refused to sacrifice his lieutenant in the cabinet and declined to accept his resignation. The cabinet had practically decided to "cashier" Colonel Seely in order to save itself from a threatened fall and in the hope of stilling the rising tempest of denunciation over the mutiny in the army.

CARNEGIE ASSAILED IN DEBATE ON TOLLS

Chamberlain Suggests Trying "Laird" For Treason.

Washington, March 26.—The senate plunged into a debate on the question of repealing the free tolls, and for two hours the discussion was acrimonious. It was brought to a close by the intervention of the "unfinished business."

Senator Brandegee forced action on the Chamberlain resolution calling for information from the secretary of war on the traditional policy of the United States in dealing with domestic waterways. Senator Chamberlain asked that his resolution go over until today without prejudice. Senator Hoke Smith objected. This aroused Senator Chamberlain, who retorted:

"I am ready to discuss the resolution. I accept the challenge of the Senator from Georgia."

Then followed a debate that was full of sensational incidents. For example Senator Chamberlain declared that if Andrew Carnegie lived in some countries he would be convicted of treason and his estates confiscated.

"He is obsessed on this matter of an Anglo-American alliance," said Mr. Chamberlain. "He thinks and talks of nothing else and is willing to use his millions in promoting it."

The attitude of former President Roosevelt was dragged into the discussion. Senator Lodge tried to set Mr. Roosevelt right. Senator Chamberlain insisted that Mr. Roosevelt was in sympathy with the free tolls advocates.

Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan read from Mr. Roosevelt's speech of acceptance of the last nomination for president, in which the colonel was quoted as saying that the United States had a perfect right to exempt coastwise ships without violating the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

"Roosevelt was president when the treaty was negotiated," said Senator Smith. "He negotiated it."

PEERLESS ON GRAPE JUICE.

House Stentor Lauds Bryan as Greatest Living Statesman.

Washington, March 26.—Representative Gray of Indiana, who prides himself on having the loudest voice in the house, shouted a tribute to Secretary of State Bryan in the debate on the pending pension bill. This was the tribute:

"I now take the opportunity of saying a few words for that greatest of living statesmen, William Jennings Bryan, our noble secretary of state. He has done more for the peace of the world, for the composition of international difficulties, for the good of humanity—on grape juice—than any of the other fellows who preceded him were able to accomplish with either cocktails or highballs."

Chinese Massacre 250.

Peking, March 26.—An army of brigands under "White Wolf," the notorious Chinese outlaw, today sacked the city of Lungchuchai, in the province of Shensi, killing 250 persons.

ARMY OFFICERS WILL RESIGN, IT IS SAID

English Government Not Out Of Its Trouble Yet It Seems.

London, March 26—While Premier Asquith was generally conceded today to have regained the support not only of the liberals, but of the Irish and labor members of Paliament, the givernment is not considered as being altogether out of trouble yet.

It has to deal with the army officers under the new conditions. It is believed that as soon as the government formally withdraws the guarantees given by Colonel Seely, Secretary of War, and Field Marshal Sir John French, the officers will again resign their commissions and, as one of them said: "If Premier Asquith withdraws the guarantees he will have to throw over the army council and the government will be faced practically with the disruption of the army."

"AMERICAN NIGHT."

American Night, the third of a series of "National Nights," at Hope chapel, will be held tonight in the Sunday-school auditorium. Among the artists to take part will be Mrs. John Briens, a prominent soloist and musical instructor of Brooklyn. Mrs. Briens has sung in several New York church choirs, and more recently has given lectures on musical composition in various cities in this section of the State. William D. Murray, a well known reader, will give several selections from American literature.

MRS. MARY PAIRE.

Mrs. Mary Paire, aged 72 years, a native of Germany, died this morning at her home in Fanwood township. She had been a resident of the township for many years. So far as known the woman had no relatives in this country. The funeral will be private.

TO HOLD A CAKE SALE.

Under the auspices of the Girls' Mission Club of the Congregational church, a cake sale will be held on Saturday in the parish house, from 10 o'clock in the morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.—Adv.

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

A PRETTY DAISY CENTERPIECE

This pretty daisy centerpiece should be embroidered entirely in white mercerized cotton No. 25 on firm, white round thread linen. The daisy petals should be well padded, then worked in solid embroidery and the centers may be done in French knots. The stems may be carried out either in outline-stitch or stem-stitch and the leaves in solid work. The scalloped edge should be firmly padded with stitches running lengthwise of the scallops so that the threads of the material will not fray after the piece has been laundred. Cover the padding with close, firm buttonhole-stitch. This transfer pattern for a centerpiece is 18 inches in diameter and if you wish small doilies to use with it in a set, they can be ordered by pattern number 13481 which includes transfers for four doilies each eight inches in diameter.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Dance In the Aquarium.

They Flopped Around the Tank.

"THERE was a dance given yesterday in the aquarium," said daddy. "I heard that there had been one, for I saw a little girl this morning who told me that she had been to see it. She was on her way to school and was very much afraid she would be late, so she couldn't stop to tell me much about it. I knew you two children would want to hear all about it, so this afternoon I went to see the keeper of the aquarium."

"Oh, daddy," said Evelyn, "you're so thoughtful and so good! We'd love to hear about it. My, but that does sound funny—to think of the fishes having a dance! Do tell us about it!"

"Well, they had a most beautiful time. The great big fishes got it up, and it was a huge success. The water flew about the tanks and covered the floor. In fact, the floor got so wet that it took hours for the keeper to dry it up again, because they all danced with such enthusiasm and they thought it such fun. And, too, they didn't see why they couldn't spill all the water they wanted to. They couldn't possibly imagine why any one should object to walking in the puddles or in getting his feet wet.

"They flopped around and sprang around in graceful attitudes. They danced together; they danced separately. They twisted; they turned. And they did every dance imaginable. They thought it very stupid to keep to one dance where there were so many kinds and variations which they could do.

"Then when they all had danced just as much as they could and were panting for breath an old fish said:

"'Now, when I was young we used to think that a party wasn't a party unless we were all tired out. So I suggest that a dancing competition be started. The one who can dance longest and best will receive the great privilege of having all us old fish do a special dance, an old fashioned one of ours, for him, all in his honor.'

"The young fishes were allowed to rest just a moment, and then the dance began. They danced in pairs, and after every round some of the fishes were put out, and only the best continued.

"Finally only four fishes were left in the competition, then two and at last only one. That was the tango fish. He was almost the favorite of the keeper, who was delighted to have him win the competition, and when he got through he didn't seem so terribly tired, which certainly proved that he was naturally a pretty good dancer.

"But they were all tired enough to have made it seem like a very real party. Then the old fishes did their dance in honor of Mr. Tango.

"And the keeper thought he'd like to help along the party, so he provided the finest of suppers for them."

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. H. E. Parker, chairman; Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. J. L. Evans.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

The new recreation school furniture which will be tried out in one of the High School rooms has many advantages over the old. It is noiseless, movable and adjustable, hence the room can more easily be cleaned. For seeing black-board work, the chairs may be moved to the best position. For mathematics and surveying they may be pushed to one side and necessary floor space obtained.

They are more comfortable, and instead of pupils being obliged to sit so long in one position, they may occasionally move their chairs, which will give them needed recreation, and relax the muscles. Madame Montessori says the old-time school desks are a relic of barbarism. The desk part can easily be removed, leaving a comfortable chair for use in the auditorium. They can all be taken out of a room and the cleared space used for recreation in the evening. They will be thoroughly tested before being adopted.

The third International Congress on the Welfare of the Child, under the auspices of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations will be held in Washington, D. C., April 22-27, 1914.

Some of the topics for discussion will be "Infant Mortality Preventable," "Crime Preventable," "The Home and Child Welfare," "Education for Home Making," "Erring Children," and many other interesting and vital questions. The full program will be published in this column later. The co-operation of national organization doing work for social welfare has been assured. All State branches of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations will be represented.

Psychology is now recognized as the fundamental science, and knowledge of the mind as the basis of educational work. Though psychologists disagree on many minor points, yet they are more generally recognizing the part that the sub-conscious mind plays in the affairs and adjustments of life. If, as some assert, the sub-conscious mind is the storage-house of all impressions received, and a controlling element in our actions, how important then is it that a child's environments should be of such a character that those impressions may be beautiful and good, like a brook running deep between two wooded hills. Were impressions only objective and hence fleeting, their influence on the development of a child would also be brief, but whether the subjective—mind-theory is accepted or not, most persons believe that impressions are tucked away somewhere in the brain, where they unconsciously help to control our thoughts and deeds, and mould character.

Thorndike, professor of psychology in Columbia University, and author of "Elements of Psychology," puts it this way: "Psychology proves and re-inforces the practical conclusion of the wise men of all ages that every thought and act of life counts; that we build the ladder which we climb; that nothing happens by chance. Each mental acquisition leaves its mark; nothing good or evil is ever lost. Balzac somewhere says that if a young man is upright and honorable till he is twenty-five he can never become thoroughly vicious. Every event of a man's mental life is written indelibly in the brain's archives, to be counted for or against him, not at some far-off judgment day, but in every future step of his mental career."

Of course heredity is responsible for much of the good and much of the evil in the world, and inherited bad traits are bad to weed out. Children who are well-born have an undoubted advantage over the children of illiterate or degraded parents, yet such a child with fair mentality, surrounded by uplifting influences, may wholly overcome those objectionable traits. Too many children are being constantly reminded of their faults and deficiencies, when what they need is encouragement and approbation, to help them find themselves. Many young people and older ones too feel the call to something higher, yet grope and stumble in the dark and fail to find the road, because they are discouraged. Social and industrial conditions are not as yet conducive to the best development of all mankind. The "struggle for bread" precludes many from developing their highest faculties.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grade pupils of a town school were recently asked whether they preferred an "all book school" to a part book and part work school, and why. Forty-two pupils handed in written replies which were summarized by the principal of another school, Mr. J. B. Doty, as follows: Every pupil expressed a desire for vocational work. The reasons were: It is easier to do book work after some hand work; it helps one to think better; it helps one to find himself so that he knows better what he desires to do in life; it helps one to do things at home, and gives him an interest there; it helps a fellow to be better in school and out; it helps prepare one for real life; it makes us more industrious and persevering; it rests the eye and mind and arouses one to desire to do something, instead of dream.

The harm done by too much book work was expressed as follows: It injures the eyes; overworks the mind; injures growth of the body, impairs the general health; makes children deamy and lazy; leaves them helpless before the work of life.

Injury to the eyes was given by every pupil. Yet, because the precedent is so firmly established, we'l lcontinue to over-emphasize books and words! words! words! no matter from the heart.

MRS. J. C. EVANS.

PLANS FOR D. A. R. CONGRESS.

Washington, D. C., March 26.—All arrangements are now completed for the twenty-third Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which is to assemble in this city next month. The convention will be the largest in the history of the organization. The meeting will mark the close of the first year of the administration of Mrs. William Cumming Story as president general. Ten vice presidents general are to be elected at the meeting, and some spirited contests are in prospect. Several proposed amendments to the constitution of the organization are also to be considered and acted upon. The local committees are preparing an attractive program for the entertainment of the delegates.

INDIANA TEACHERS' MEETING.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 26.—An army of school teachers captured Indianapolis today and will remain in possession of the city until the end of the week. The occasion of the gathering is the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Southern Indiana Teachers' Association, one of the strongest sectional organizations of teachers in the country. President King, of Oberlin College; President Bryan, of Indiana University; Dr. Albert Shaw, the noted editor, and Dr. Edwin D. Mead, secretary of the World's Peace Foundation, are to address the convention.

TO DEBATE WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Princeton, N. J., March 26.—Woman suffrage will be the topic on which the debating teams of Princeton, Yale and Harvard will dispute in their annual triangular arguments tomorrow night. Each university will be represented by two teams, one at home and the other abroad. Princeton will uphold the affirmative against Harvard at Cambridge and the negative against Yale at Princeton. Harvard will have the affirmative against Yale at New Haven.

ANNIVERSARY OF CAPTURE.

Paducah, Ky., March 26.—Fifty years ago today Paducah fell into the hands of the Confederates. The semi-centennial was not celebrated, but the older residents of the city recalled the capture as the most stirring event of the war so far as concerned this vicinity.

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER III.

I SAT there, with a crowd of children paddling on a raft outside the window, and Molly Maguire, next door, hauling the morning's milk up in a pail fastened to a rope, her doorway being too narrow to admit the milkman's boat, and I told him the whole story.

"Humph!" he exclaimed, when I had finished. "It's curious, but—you can't prove a murder unless you can produce a body."

"When the river goes down we'll find the body," said I, shivering. "It's in the parlor."

"Then why doesn't he try to get away?"

"He is ready to go now. He only went back when your boat came in."

Mr. Holcombe ran to the door and, flinging it open, peered into the lower hall. He was too late. His boat was gone, tub of liver, pile of wooden platters and all!

We hurried to the room the Ladleys had occupied. It was empty. From the window, as we looked out, we could see the boat, almost a square away. It had stopped where, the street being higher, a doorstep rose above the flood. On the step was sitting a forlorn yellow puppy. As we stared Mr. Ladley stopped the boat, looked back at us, bent over, placed a piece of liver on a platter and reached it over to the dog. Then, rising in the boat, he bowed, with his hat over his heart, in our direction, sat down calmly and rowed around the corner out of sight.

Mr. Holcombe was in a frenzy of rage. He jumped up and down, shaking his fist out of the window after the retreating boat. He ran down the staircase, only to come back and look out the window again. The police boat was not in sight, but the Maguire children had worked their raft around to the street and were under the window. He leaned out and called to them:

"A quarter each, boys," he said, "if you'll take me on that raft to the nearest pavement."

"Money first," said the oldest boy, holding his cap.

But Mr. Holcombe did not wait. He swung out over the window sill, holding by his hands, and lit fairly in the center of the raft.

"Don't touch anything in that room until I come back!" he called to me, and, jerking the pole from one of the boys, propelled the raft with amazing speed down the street.

The liver on the stove was burning. There was a smell of scorching through the rooms and a sort of bluish haze of smoke. I hurried back and took it off. By the time I had cleaned the pan Mr. Holcombe was back again in his own boat. He had found it at the end of the next street, where the flood ceased, but no sign of Ladley anywhere. He had not seen the police boat.

"Perhaps that is just as well," he said philosophically. "We can't go to the police with a wet slipper and a blood stained rope and accuse a man of murder. We have to have a body."

"He killed her," I said obstinately. "She told me yesterday he was a fiend. He killed her and threw the body in the water."

"Very likely. But he didn't throw it here."

But in spite of that he went over all the lower hall with his boat, feeling

every foot of the floor with an oar, and finally, at the back end, he looked up at me as I stood on the stairs.

"There's something here," he said. I went cold all over and had to clutch the railing. But when Terry had come and the two of them brought the thing to the surface it was only the dining room rug, which I had rolled up and forgotten to carry upstairs!

At 1:30 Mr. Holcombe wrote a note and sent it off with Terry and, borrowing my boots, which had been Mr. Pitman's, investigated the dining room and kitchen from a floating plank; the doors were too narrow to admit the boat. But he found nothing more important than a rolling pin. He was not at all depressed by his failure. He came back, drenched to the skin, about 3 and asked permission to search the Ladleys' bedroom.

"I have a friend coming pretty soon, Mrs. Pitman," he said, "a young newspaper man named Howell. He's a nice boy, and if there is anything to this I'd like him to have it for his paper. He and I have been having some arguments about circumstantial evidence, too, and I know he'd like to work on this."

I gave him a pair of Mr. Pitman's socks, for his own were saturated and while he was changing them the telephone rang. It was the theater again, asking for Jennie Brice.

"You are certain she is out of the city?" some one asked, the same voice as in the morning.

"Her husband says so."

"Ask him to come to the phone."

"He is not here."

"When do you expect him back?"

"I'm not sure he is coming back."

"Look here," said the voice angrily, "can't you give me any satisfaction? Or don't you care to?"

"I've told you all I know."

"You don't know where she is?"

"No, sir."

"She didn't say she was coming back to rehearse for next week's piece?"

"Her husband said she went away for a few days' rest. He went away about noon and hasn't come back. That's all I know, except that they owe me three weeks' rent that I'd like to get hold of."

The owner of the voice hung up the receiver with a snap and left me pondering. It seemed to me that Mr. Ladley had been very reckless. Did he expect any one to believe that Jennie Brice had gone for a vacation without notifying the theater? Especially when she was to rehearse that week? I thought it curious, to say the least. I went back and told Mr. Holcombe, who put it down in his notebook, and together we went to the Ladleys' room.

The room was in better order than usual, as I have said. The bed was made—which was out of the ordinary, for Jennie Brice never made a bed—but made the way a man makes one, with the blankets wrinkled and crooked beneath and the white counterpane pulled smoothly over the top, showing every hump beneath. I showed Mr. Holcombe the splasher dotted with ink as usual.

"I'll take it off and soak it in milk," I said. "It's his fountain pen. When the ink doesn't run he shakes it, and"—

"Where's the clock?" said Mr. Holcombe, stopping in front of the mantel, with his notebook in his hand.

"The clock?"

I turned and looked. My onyx clock was gone from the mantel shelf.

Perhaps it seems strange, but from the moment I missed that clock my rage at Mr. Ladley increased to a fury. It was all I had left of my former gentility. When times were hard and I got behind with the rent, as happened now and then, more than once I'd been tempted to sell the clock or pawn it. But I had never done it. Its ticking had kept me company on many a lonely night, and its elegance had helped me to keep my pride and to retain the respect of my neighbors. For in the flood district onyx clocks are not plentiful. Mrs. Bryan, the saloonkeeper's wife, had one, and I had another—that is, I had had.

"You are sure you didn't take it away yourself, Mrs. Pitman?" he asked.

"Sure? Why, I could hardly lift it," I said.

He was looking carefully at the oblong of dust where the clock had stood. "The key is gone, too," he said, busily making entries in his notebook. "What was the maker's name?"

"Why, I don't think I ever noticed!"

He turned to me angrily. "Why didn't you notice?" he snapped. "Good God, woman, do you only use your eyes to cry with? How can you wind a clock time after time and not know the maker's name? It proves my contention—the average witness is totally unreliable."

"Not at all," I snapped. "I am ordinarily both accurate and observing."

"Indeed!" he said, putting his hands behind him. "Then perhaps you can tell me the color of the pencil I have been writing with."

"Certainly. Red." Most pencils are red, and I thought this was safe.

But he held his right hand out with a flourish. "I've been writing with a fountain pen," he said in deep disgust and turned his back on me.

But the next moment he had run to the washstand and pulled it out from the wall. Behind it, where it had fallen, lay a towel covered with stains as if some one had wiped bloody hands on it. He held it up, his face working with excitement. I could only cover my eyes.

"This looks better," he said and began making a quick search of the room, running from one piece of furniture to another, pulling out bureau drawers, drawing the bed out from the wall and crawling along the baseboard with a lighted match in his hand. He gave a shout of triumph finally and reappeared from behind the bed with the broken end of my knife in his hand.

"Very clumsy," he said; "very clumsy. Peter, the dog, could have done better."

I had been examining the wall paper about the washstand. Among the ink spots were one or two reddish ones that made me shiver. And seeing a scrap of note paper stuck between the base board and the wall I dug it out with a hairpin and threw it into the grate, to be burned later. It was by the merest chance there was no fire there. The next moment Mr. Holcombe was on his knees by the fireplace reaching for the scrap.

"Never do that under such circumstances," he snapped, fishing among the ashes. "You might throw away valuable— Hello, Howell!"

I turned and saw a young man in the doorway, smiling, his hat in his hand. Even at that first glance I liked Mr. Howell, and later, when every one was against him and many curious things were developing, I stood by him through everything and even helped him to the thing he wanted more than anything else in the world. But that, of course, was later.

"What's the trouble, Holcombe?" he asked. "Hitting the trail again?"

"A very curious thing that I just happened on," said Mr. Holcombe. "Mrs. Pitman, this is Mr. Howell, of whom I spoke. Sit down, Howell, and let me read you something."

With the crumpled paper still unopened in his hand, Mr. Holcombe took his notebook and read aloud what he had written. I have it before me now:

"'Dog meat, $2, boat hire'—that's not it. Here. 'Yesterday, Sunday, March 4, Mrs. Pitman, landlady at 42 Union street, heard two of her boarders quarreling, a man and his wife. Man's name, Philip Ladley. Wife's name, Jennie Ladley, known as Jennie Brice at the Liberty Stock company, where she has been playing small parts.'"

Mr. Howell nodded. "I've heard of her," he said. "Not much of an actress, I believe."

"'The husband was also an actor, out of work, and employing his leisure time in writing a play.'"

"Everybody's doing it," said Mr. Howell idly.

"The Shuberts were to star him in this," I put in. "He said that the climax at the end of the second act"—

Mr. Holcombe shut his notebook with a snap. "After we have finished gossiping," he said, "I'll go on."

"'Employing his leisure time in writing a play,'" quoted Mr. Howell.

"Exactly. 'The husband and wife were not on good terms. They quarreled frequently. On Sunday they fought all day, and Mrs. Ladley told Mrs. Pitman she was married to a fiend. At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon Philip Ladley went out, returning about 5. Mrs. Pitman carried their supper to them at 6, and both ate heartily. She did not see Mrs. Ladley at the time, but heard her in the next room. They were apparently reconciled. Mrs. Pitman reports Mr. Ladley in high good humor. If the quarrel recommenced during the night the other boarder, named Reynolds, in the next room heard nothing. Mrs. Pitman was up and down until 1 o'clock, when she dozed off. She heard no unusual sound.

"'At approximately 2 o'clock in the morning, however, this Reynolds came to the room and said he had heard some one in a boat in the lower hall. He and Mrs. Pitman investigated. The boat, which Mrs. Pitman uses during a flood and which she had tied to the stair rail was gone, having been cut loose, not untied. Everything else was quiet, except that Mrs. Ladley's dog had been shut in a third story room.

"'At a quarter after 4 that morning Mrs. Pitman, thoroughly awake, heard the boat returning and, going to the stairs, met Ladley coming in. He muttered something about having gone for medicine for his wife and went to his room, shutting the dog out. This is worth attention, for the dog ordinarily slept in their room.'"

"What sort of a dog?" asked Mr. Howell. He had been listening attentively.

"A water spaniel. 'The rest of the night or early morning was quiet. At a quarter after 7 Ladley asked for coffee and toast for one, and on Mrs. Pitman remarking this said that his wife was not playing this week and had gone for a few days' vacation, having left early in the morning.' Remember, during the night he had been out for medicine for her. Now she was able to travel and, in fact, had started."

Mr. Howell was frowning at the floor. "If he was doing anything wrong, he was doing it very badly," he said.

"This is where I entered the case," said Mr. Holcombe. "I rowed into the lower hall this morning to feed the dog Peter, who was whining on the staircase. Mrs. Pitman was coming down, pale and agitated over the fact that the dog shortly before had found floating in the parlor downstairs a slipper belonging to Mrs. Ladley and later a knife with a broken blade. She maintains that she had the knife last night upstairs, that it was not broken and that it was taken from a shelf in her room while she dozed. The question is, then, Why was the knife taken? Who took it and why? Has this man made away with his wife or has he not?"

Mr. Howell looked at me and smiled. "Mr. Holcombe and I are old enemies," he said. "Mr. Holcombe believes that circumstantial evidence may probably hang a man; I do not." And to Mr. Holcombe, "So, having found a wet slipper and a broken knife, you are prepared for murder and sudden death!"

"I have more evidence," Mr. Holcombe said eagerly, and proceeded to tell what we had found in the room. Mr. Howell listened, smiling to himself, but at the mention of the onyx clock he got up and went to the mantel.

"By Jove!" he said and stood looking at the mark in the dust. "Are you sure the clock was here yesterday?"

"I wound it night before last and put the key underneath. Yesterday, before they moved up, I wound it again."

"The key is gone also. Well, what of it, Holcombe? Did he brain her with the clock or choke her with the key?"

Mr. Holcombe was looking at his notebook. "To summarize," he said, "we have here as clews indicating a crime, the rope, the broken knife, the slipper, the towel and the clock. Besides, this scrap of paper may contain some information." He opened it and sat gazing at it in his palm. Then, "Is this Ladley's writing?" he asked me in a curious voice.

"Yes."

The slip I had found behind the washstand said "Rope, knife, shoe, towel. Horn"— The rest of the last word was torn off.

Mr. Howell was staring at the mantel. "Clock!" he repeated.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

7656

A most attractive little model for one of the flowered crepes, or any lingerie material, is shown in 7656. The dress shows a set-in sleeve and a bodice with a diagonal closing and square cut neck; this may be left low or filled in with a chemisette of lace or net. There is a one sided peplum which gives the dress a new touch; this may be used or omitted as preferred. The skirt is a straight, three-piece model slightly gathered at the waistline. The new sheer crepes embroidered in shadow or blind embroidery will be very popular for dresses of this sort as well as all the thin silks. It could be used for afternoon very suitably.

To copy this dress in size 36 it requires 5¾ yards 36 inch material. Pattern cuts in five sizes, 34 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

BOARD TO PROBE DISCOUNTS ALLOWED BY GAS COMPANIES

Trenton, March 26.—Following complaints alleging discrimination and rebates on the part of the Elizabethtown Gas Light Company and four affiliated corporations operating in a number of municipalities, the Board of Public Utility Commissioners has decided upon an investigation which will begin with a hearing April 17 at the county courthouse in Newark.

The five corporations involved in the inquiry have a base rate of $1.25 a 1,000 cubic feet. For payment within ten days a discount of thirty-five cents a 1,000 is allowed, making the net rate ninety cents. A number of individuals who have complained to the board charge that the difference between the net rate and the base rate is excessive and savors of unjust discrimination.

The five companies involved are those in which former Senator John Kean and his brother, Hamilton F. Kean, of Elizabeth, are largely interested. Although run as separate corporations, the companies are closely affiliated through stock ownership, directorates and physical connections, the product for all being manufactured at Perth Amboy and Elizabeth. The companies to whom notices have been sent regarding the hearing are the Elizabethtown, Rahway, Cranford, Perth Amboy and Metuchen companies.

LAKES-TO-OCEAN WATERWAY.

Windsor, Ont., March 26.—One of the largest and most influential deputations that ever waited upon the Government at Ottawa left this city for the capital today in the interests of the movement for the lakes-to-the-ocean waterway. The delegation includes representative men from all over western Ontario. The chief purpose of the demonstration is to offset the attempt of the Montreal and Quebec interests to induce the Government to build the Georgian Bay canal.

Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which every one should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat too Much Meat Which Clogs Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Miss Janet Richards Presents Current History Before Large Audience.

PANAMA CANAL TOLLS

Fight for Irish Home Rule, Mexican Problems and Calmette-Cailleaux Affair in France Are Discussed in Interesting Manner.

In her usual comprehensive manner of presenting current history Miss Janet Richards gave an intensely interesting talk at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon, before a large audience of women. She touched on the Panama Canal Tolls Exemption law, Ambassador Page's recent speech in England, the trouble in Ulster Province, Ireland, reviewing in detail the situation in England in regard to Irish Home Rule, passing on to the Mexican problems and the Calmette-Cailleaux affair in France, all of which was of unusual interest to the women present.

Miss Richards in discussing the conflict in Washington between the factions for and against the repeal of the canal tolls exemption law, did not take sides, but simply presented the facts in the case as she understood them from close observation. She did say, however, that Ambassador Page's recent speech in England had had an adverse effect in this country regarding the measure before Congress and had had the tendency to engender a feeling against the British. Mr. Page addressed the United Chamber of Commerce in London, and while it has been admitted that some of the newspapers gave a slightly different version of what he did say, a copy of his speech which was received in Congress this week, indicated that the tone of the speech was somewhat friendly to England.

Touching upon the troubles in Ulster, Ireland, Miss Richards simply gave the facts as they have been reported in the newspapers without making any particular comment. This was also true of her reference to the Calmette-Cailleaux affair in France, expressing no opinion on the subject.

Miss Richards reviewed in a most interesting way some of the latest happenings in Mexico, explaining in a clear and concise way the exact situation at the present time. She referred to the apprehension felt in some quarters as to the position of the United States Government regarding Mexico, and then presented some of the views of those who are supporting President Wilson in his attitude toward Mexico.

Arrangements have been made whereby Miss Richards will give a supplementary lecture, the last one of the season, Thursday afternoon, April 2, at the Hartridge Auditorium, at 3:30 o'clock, when she will give a special talk on "Foreign Affairs," opening with a rather detailed account of David Lloyd George's program for social uplift in England, which has been such an important part of the Liberal program, and the great strength and influence of this fighting Welchman ever since he entered Parliament. The lecture will be open to the public at the popular price of admission.

UNITY LODGE, K. OF P. MARKS ANNIVERSARY

Entertains Members and Friends With a Minstrel Show.

Celebrating the thirty-first anniversary of the organization of Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, many of the members and friends of the lodge gathered, last night, at the lodge rooms and enjoyed an entertainment which was in the nature of an amateur minstrel show. Bernard Colvin acted as interlocutor, while the end-men were traveling under stage names for the occasion. Several good topical songs were well rendered during the songfest of the opening part and were received with hearty applause by the audience. The second part consisted of a tumbling act by VanOrden and Engle, local artists. Prof. Jesse Rogers entertained with sleight-of-hand. Dancing and refreshments followed.

The committee in charge consisted of Victor Lawton, J. D. Anderson, C. W. DeGraw, Jeremiah VanWinkle, Harold Leadbitter, Andrew Crozier and James Steenson.

Unity Lodge was organized in 1883 with a large charter list, many of whom are still active in the work. The lodge is one of the strongest of the order, and has many prominent citizens of the city on its roster. William N. Newcorn made the address of welcome, giving a brief sketch of the history of the organization.

"CURIOSITY" TELEPHONE CALLS HINDER SERVICE

In connection with last night's fire on South Second street, the New York Telephone Company reports that their central office was overburdened with additional calls. In several instances the number of "curiosity" calls, made simply to ask the location of the fire, prevented the speedy completion of emergency calls made in connection with the fire.

"Curiosity" calls made when a fire occurs are a waste of time, as telephone operators have no further information than subscribers. What is of more importance to the general public, they may be detrimental to the rendering of prompt service, as calls for a doctor or additional fire apparatus. It is impossible to distinguish on a telephone switchboard the important calls from those that are unnecessary, so that a number of thoughtless, curious people asking the operator where the fire is may prevent her from giving prompt attention to calls of an emergency nature.

Telephone service is rendered in the interests of all subscribers and is often the means of saving both life and property. To further the best interests of all, the too common practice of hurrying to ask the operator where the fire is should be discontinued, because it hinders the furnishing of a service upon which the whole community depends.

NAMES MISS MAY MERWIN AS CORRESPONDENT

The grounds upon which Mrs. Grace Llewellyn Eaton Schoonmaker has brought suit for divorce from Frank Layng Schoonmaker, formerly of this city, but until a year ago associated with the Stock Exchange firm of Vernon Brown & Co., of New York, became known yesterday. The corespondent is Miss Marie Merwin, an attractive young woman of blonde type, who went to New York some time ago from the West and established herself at 55 East Fifty-sixth street.

It is alleged that one night last week some one knocked on the door of Miss Merwin's apartment and she heard a man say, "Telegram for you." It is charged that as soon as she opened the door half a dozen detectives rushed past her into the apartment and found Schoonmaker inside asleep. Schoonmaker was served with the divorce papers at once.

The Schoonmakers separated last November, when Mrs. Schoonmaker went abroad and her husband established himself at the Metropolitan Club, New York.

LECTURER PRESENTED VIEWS OF HOLY LAND

A large and interested audience was entertained in the Washington School Auditorium, last night, when Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, delivered a lecture on "Palestine" under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association of that institution. The talk was of an instructive nature and the speaker showed numerous stereopticon views of that country.

Dr. Herring spoke in a graphic way of the habits of the natives and described the industries that prevail in the Holy Land at the present time He took his audience through the places frequented by tourists and his views showed the historic places of Palestine. Dr. Herring also displayed a number of curios which he collected while on a trip through that country and described the use they were put to by the natives.

EVONA CHAPEL HAD A PROSPEROUS YEAR

Encouraging Reports Presented and Officers Elected at Annual Meeting.

Reports showing the completion of an excellent year's work were read at the seventh annual meeting of the Evona chapel, last night. They revealed the fact that the membership and attendance have enjoyed a material growth and the fiscal twelemonth closes with a balance in the treasury.

The meeting was called to order by Robert Love, superintendent, and he was made chairman, with Harry H. Pennoyer, secretary. The reading of reports was called for and were given by the officers in charge of the various departments. The secretary's report showed a total attendance during the year of 5,002, a very satisfactory figure to all concerned. The treasurer reported that all bills had been paid and $4 60 remains clear. Brief addresses were made on the work as the meeting progressed and all felt enthusiastic over the prospects for the coming year. The chapel is non-denominational and has filled a long felt want in the section of the city in which it is located.

These officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: Superintendent, Robert Love; assistant superintendent, Harry H. Pennoyer; treasurer, Louis Mattox; secretary, Louis Casenove; superintendent of primary department, Mrs. Louis Casenove; superintendent of cradle roll department, Mrs. Harry H. Pennoyer; superintendent of home department, Mrs. Joseph E. Taylor; organist, Miss Dorothy Bowden; assistant organist, Mrs. Harry H. Pennoyer; flower and sick committee, Mrs. Margaret Carter, chairman; Mrs. F. L. Lancaster and Mrs. Ella Patterson.

MISS BILLIE BURKE SCORES IN NEW COMEDY

An audience that filled the Plainfield Theatre to its capacity, last night, witnessed the performance of "Jerry," in which the versatile Miss Billie Burke appeared, and was treated to an evening of entertainment such as this little star alone can provide. Impersonating a lively young woman hailing from Chicago, Miss Burke was the central figure in a love story—two of them in fact—and displayed a remarkable piece of clever acting that won encore after encore. The popular little artist was forced to respond to rapturous applause after each act.

She appears as a positive young person, used to having her own way and this being a habit with her, naturally she wants a man she has fallen in love with for her own exclusive property. He happens to be engaged to marry another woman, her own aunt, but that doesn't deter her for a moment. Matters were brought to a happy conclusion, as is usually the case, when it finally turned out that her aunt and the man do not love one another. Billie Burke, playing the role of "Jerry," wins out and gains the man for whose hand she had been striving. The play will open an engagement in the Lyceum Theatre, in New York, tomorrow night.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 56 degrees; 11 a. m., 68 degrees; 1 p. m., 75 degrees.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

Suffragists of Union County Confer Here as to Most Effective Methods.

THE POLITICAL ASPECT

Mr. E. F. Feickert Urges Women to Keep Themselves Well Informed as to Legislature Proceedings and Their Representatives.

The suffragists are planning to wage a most effective campaign in this section as well as throughout Union county. With this in mind, a conference of county suffragists of all organizations was held at the Plainfield Public Library, yesterday afternoon. There were large delegations from Elizabeth, Nutley, Cranford, Westfield and Rahway, who met with members of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, president of the State organization, presided, and Miss Elizabeth Pope, of Jersey City, State chairman of press work, was elected secretary pro tem. Of the local league present were Mrs. Champlain L. Riley, president; Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, Mrs. Stephen Haff and Mrs. C. E. Rider, vice presidents, Mrs. Arthur B. Jones, chairman of enrollments; Mrs. Kranz, and many others.

A large delegation from the Women's Political Union, of Westfield, was headed by its president, Mrs. Strugis. From Rahway came Mrs. R. B. Halley, president of the league of that place, well supported. With the Nutley contingent came Mrs. R. C. Newton, its president, who is also a member of the legislative committee of the State, of which Mrs. Everett Colby is chairman. Mrs. Colby expected to be present, but was detained.

Mrs. David B. Currie, of Cranford, brought with her the notice of a large mass metting to be held in the Presbyterian church of Cranford, at which Mr. Poling, national vice president of the Society of Christian Endeavor, is to speak on the suffrage question, the subject of his address being, "Mothers of Sons."

Although the Elizabeth League was well represented, Miss Esther G. Ogden, its president, was prevented from attending and sent a letter of regret which was read by the chairman. A telegram of good wishes for the conference was also received and read from Mrs. McClary, of Rahway.

Mrs. Feickert opened the meeting by explaining the reason for calling the conference and stated that now the propaganda stage of the work in Union county was passed and it was necessary for suffragists to direct their attention to the political aspect of the question and keep themselves informed of legislative proceedings and the attitude of their own assemblymen and voters in particular.

Referring to the almost daily requests from the anti-suffragists of Plainfield for the exact numerical strength of the State, Union county and Plainfield suffragists respectively, she stated that reports from canvassers in different sections do not all get in for months. Returns have been coming in at the rate of a thousand a month, but accurate daily reports are obviously impossible to obtain.

The chairman of the enrollment committee of the local league said that following the meeting at which Miss La Follette spoke, a Plainfield tailor asked her for twenty-five enrollment slips, which he returned the next day signed by men. He then asked for fifty more slips upon learning that the names of women were also desired. Two days ago another Plainfield man asked Mrs. A. B. Jones for fifty enrollment slips for people he knew who wished to join the movement.

Other testimony of the same sort was given by members present in regard to factory workers and trade organizations. Mrs. Feickert then introduced Miss A. Josephine Vermilye, who compared the efficiency of two methods of campaign work in suburban towns, speaking from personal experience as an organizer in New York State.

Following this, an informal discussion took place, after which Mrs. M. J. Reynolds, State organizer for the Women's Political Union, gave suggestions from the work of that body in other lines of activity. Miss Elizabeth Pope then spoke on press work and urged the leagues to send her news items. She afterward introduced for discussion a suggestion of hers and Miss Esther Ogden's favoring the election of a campaign chairman in each county to act under the jurisdiction of the legislative committee.

A lively discussion, led by Mrs. R. C. Newton, of Nutley, followed, until the matter was threshed out. Mrs. Champlain L. Riley then made a motion in favor of the proposition, which was carried without a dissenting vote, it being understood that the conference merely favored the proposition

DEBATE THE QUESTION OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Mrs. E. F. Feickert and Mrs. O. D. Oliphant Present Strong Arguments.

A lively debate on "Woman Suffrage" took place at the South Plainfield Baptist church, last night, when Mrs. E. F. Feickert, of this city, and Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, of Trenton, took sides on one of the most important questions of the day. Rev. J. J. Allen, pastor of the church, presided and introduced the speakers of the evening.

Mrs. Feickert spoke in a general way in support of the question, during which she praised Mrs. Pankhurst and advanced the statement that the actions of the English militant were often justified. Mrs. Oliphant met the arguments of the opposition in a masterly way, bringing out the thought that many of the followers of suffrage confused the question with "taxation without representation was tyranny.'

A large audience was in attendance, many from this city and North Plainfield being present. Both the suffrage and the anti-suffrage leaders secured several signatures after the close of the meeting.

RESULT OF ANNUAL MEET A QUESTION

Russell Miller Relinquished Flying Ring Championship To Rival.

Although it was announced in the metropolitan papers this morning that New York University had won the intercollegiate gymnastic championship for the year 1914, over Pensylvania University, there still remains a possibility that the Jenn gymnasts will gain the coveted title. The annual championships, held in the Yale gymnasium at New Haven, last night, resulted as had been anticipated, Pennsylvania and New York taking the lead, but a number of the decisions were unusually close, and in some cases questionable, and will be gone over carefully before a final decision is announced.

Russell Miller, of this city, captain of the University of Pennsylvania team, came in second in the flying rings, relinquishing the intercollegiate championship, which he won last year, to Wolf. The rings at New Haven are of a peculiar variety and Miller experienced considerable difficulty in performing his stunts, something that he has anticipated since the Pen-Yale meet of last week. Miller resigned as president of the Intercollegiate Association last night, he being a senior in Penn this year and not one of the eligibles for competition next season.

Although the totals last night gave New York University the championship by a score of 17 to 15 over Penn matters may be reversed when the records are gone over by experts. One of the closest incidents of the meet was the awarding of the all-around championship to Cremer, of N. Y. U., who won out over Clark one of Miller's teammates by one-tenth of a point.

MISS MADELINE PENNINGTON VICTIM OF A PICKPOCKET

Miss Madeline Pennington, of Monroe avenue, who is employed in New York, was the victim of a pickpocket in the subway jam at Forty-second street, last evening. She felt a tug at the pocket of her jacket as she was boarding a downtown car and making an investigation as soon as possible, found that her vanity bag had been taken. It contained her communtation ticket and $3.85 in money. The fact she had sufficient change in another pocket to pay her fare to Plainfield is all that saved her from an uncomfortable predicament.

TOWNSHIP APPEALS TO STATE TAX BOARD

Wants Mt. St. Mary College Taxation Matter Reviewed.

The North Plainfield Township Committee, through Chairman W. de La R. Anderson, has filed an appeal with the State Board of Taxation relative to the assessment of taxes on the Mt. St. Mary College property. The petition cites that the Somerset County Board of Taxation denied a hearing in the matter, neither did it take any testimony regarding the question of taxing this property. The committee asks that the $25,000 assessment for exemption be removed.

Mr. Anderson, in speaking of the matter today, said that he considered the County Tax Board was to blame for all the trouble in not making a report of its action, if any was taken, to the Township Committee, and added that if it is decided that the property is exempt from taxation he is willing to abide by such decision.

Mr. Anderson stated that the appeal was made at the suggestion of Frank B. Jess, chairman of the State Board. Semi-officially it is said that the time to assess and collect taxes from Mt. St. Mary was while the building was in course of construction in 1913, but that no effort was made to do so by the taxing authorities.

SAMUEL ROTHBERG IS OBSERVING ANNIVERSARY

Samuel Rothberg, the enterprising and hustling clothing merchant, is celebrating his second anniversary today, and is receiving the congratulations of a host of friends and business associates upon the success that has attended his well-directed efforts. By way of surprise, Mr. Rothberg today introduces William C. Freeman, advertising director of the New York Globe, to the people of Plainfield. Mr. Freeman, who is a past-master in the art, is the author of Mr Rothberg's page advertisement in the Plainfield Press, and it is well worth reading.

"Sam," said Mr. Freeman, "wanted me to write an anniversary advertisement for him. He wanted to pay me for it. I told him that he couldn't pay me a cent. Then he said, 'Why should you write an advertisement for me for nothing?' and I answered, 'Because I believe in you and I want to see you succeed. I will write an advertisement for you if you will let it appear in your Plainfield newspaper just as I write it.' 'All right,' said Sam. So here is the advertisement."

Mr. Rothberg has always lived in Plainfield and during the two years he has been in business has been successful. Those who call at his store will be presented with flowers.

MRS. MAURICE FLETCHER WILL BE BURIED HERE

The funeral of Mrs. Maurice Fletcher, whose death occurred yesterday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph P. Knapp, of 247 Fifth avenue, New York, will be held at that address Sunday noon. The body will afterward be brought to this city for burial in Hillside cemetery.

As told in yesterday's Daily Press, Mrs. Fletcher was formerly Miss Ella Laing, of this city, having been away from here about fifteen years. She had been living in Chicago recently and came from that place to New York in quest of medical advice for an ailment from which she had been suffering a long time. Physicians advised that she be taken to the Adirondacks for treatment and preparations were being made when death took place. Mrs. Fletcher is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Knapp and Mrs. Carrie Zeigler, of Denver, Col., and one brother, Eugene A. Laing, of this city.

TWO-ALARM FIRE IN FATED MILL

Old Cadmus Property Swept by Flames Discovered Early Last Night.

TOTAL DAMAGE $1,000

Over-heated Boiler Causes Blaze in Structure That Has Been Ravaged by Flames on Several Different Occasions—Fireman Injured.

One of the most threatening fires the local department has had to fight in months was discovered in the boiler room of the Commercial Mills on South Second street at 7 o'clock last night, and required two hours of hard battling to subdue. During the time the flames spread through the structure damage estimated to reach $1,000 was done and some good work on the part of the fire fighters was the only thing that saved the place from total destruction. The blaze was discovered by Councilman Charles Graves, who was passing the place at the time and noticed smoke issuing from the rear of the mills. He sent in an alarm from box No. 45.

When Chief Doane and his men arrived on the scene the flames had assumed such headway that a second call was turned in which brought out the entire corps of fire fighters from the central portion of the city. A freight car that was standing on a trestle just outside of the engine room of the mills caught fire from the flames that were shooting from the building and for a time it appeared as though the entire structure was doomed to destruction.

Three streams of water were played on the fire from the new engine and after a stubborn fight the firemen finally got it under control. Several frames buildings in the immediate vicinity of the mills were threatened and a stream of water was played on these buildings to protect them. The situation of the burning buildings made the use of the searchlight on the new engine out of the question and the firemen experienced considerable difficulty in getting at the heart of the flames. The fire was caused by an overheated boiler. Several similar fires have occurred during the past three years in the Cadmus building, in which the mills are located, and in each instance the total structure of the building was threatened.

While wielding an aze in the boiler room of the building, William Jaeger, one of the firemen, met with a painful injury when a pole fell on him, striking him squarely between the eyes. Jaeger was dazed for an insant but gamely stuck to his post and had the wound dressed after the recall sounded.

In answering the first call, the hook and ladder truck, in rounding the corner at Plainfield avenue and West Third street, struck a man whose identity could not be learned. In trying to avoid the individual who blocked the roadway the tillerman lost control of the wheel. In order to place the apparatus in running order again it was necessary to jack it up in the thoroughfare for emergency repairs.

LONG LITIGATION TO BE TERMINATED

Counsel for Mrs. Senger Will Have to File a Statement in Seven Days.

A hearing that is expected to terminate the long litigation over the admission of the account for alleged unnecessary and indiscriminate repairs to real estate included in the $100,000 estate left by the late Samuel Dreier, was conducted before Judge James C. Connolly in Elizabeth yesterday. Testimony was taken at that time on the sixty exceptions filed by Mrs. Bertha Senger, of this city, on the above account which was submitted by her two brothers, Garret and Harry Dreier, the latter of this city.

The allegations made were to the effect that the executors had caused painting, papering and repairs to be made on certain houses when not needed and had paid more than the work was worth. She also alleged that charges for work never performed were shown in the account. William R. Wilson, of Elizabeth, represents Mrs. Senger, and was given seven days to file causes for the exceptions. William Newcorn, a son-in-law of the late Mr. Dreier, is counsel for the executors.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING.

There will be a meeting of a Parent-Teacher Association in the Franklin School, Tuesday evening, March 31, at 8 o'clock, with an address by Miss Noel J. Bullock. There will be vocal and instrumental music.

Now===300 Women's Mannish Spring Suits Majority in Dark Blue, at $17.75

"If I had my way, a woman would wear suits of dark blue—and only dark blue—in Summer—make dark blue the Summer color just as men do," said a noted fashion expert recently.

Nine-tenths of this large special purchase are dark blue, the good shades, while the remainder are checks and black.

Revers are hand-turned; sleeves are kimono or gathered at the wrists; collars are manishly modeled or tuxedo fashion; skirts are entirely feminine with plain fitted tunics. Serge, gabardine, wool crepe, and woolens, combined with taffeta. Every stitch and button just so; splendidly built suits.

They come from a manufacturer with a large output. He cuts up materials in readiness for orders, and when orders fall off even for two or three days, it means a surplus which, in this particular case, he has disposed of to us at considerably below market price.

Every suit in the three hundred is as good as any we have seen this season at $25.

A Paquin Suit Has Been Copied for Young Women to Sell at $23.50

It has the new long straight overskirt open in front and bound with silk, a smart little short coat fulled a bit in the back and bound too, and a black moire collar.

Such a suit is equally smart in black and white check, navy blue, Labrador blue, green and black and is absolutely different from any suit shown this season.

New suit at $25 has white satin vestee and a white satin collar which may be taken off if desired.

1700 New Easter Hats at $5 to $12

ready for your choice, tomorrow, Saturday.

Hats with Roman stripes.

Hats of every pretty kind and every color, "the best hats at $5 to $12 in the city," many customers tell us.

Ready—a Great Offering of Hosiery and Underwear at Less than Regular Prices

The Spring and Summer readiness of the Wanamaker Hosiery and Underwear Store is a pretty big kind of readiness. It is the readiness of a great buying power to offer the biggest and broadest kind of service—the highest quality obtainable at any given price.

This is its normal, ordinary, everyday habit of life. But once in a while it betters its best—it out does its normal self in a big way. This is one of the once-in-a-while occasions when the ordinary is forgotten and when opportunity shines out like the sun on a bright June day.

Nearly seventy-five people gathered in the Parish House, last evening, and listened to an interesting lecture entitled "Ireland in Song and Story," by William H. Armstrong, of New York city. Mr. Armstrong told the history of the Emerald Isle. Throughout the lecture he laid stress on the lack of national government, showing how in early times it caused Ireland's downfall. He told of the first invasion by barbanic tribes from Spain down through the Richards and Henrys, and Elizabeth of England to the time when England made the island part of the United Kingdom. Mr. Armstrong sang old Irish songs and ballads at different times. He sang "Irene LaRue" in the ancient Gallic language which was greatly appreciated by the audience. Mr. Armstrong was assistted by his wife at the piano and sang the following songs: "The Passing Glories of Tarta," "Dear Little Shamrock," "Irene LaRue," "O'Donald Abrue," "The Wearing of the Green," "Kitty of the Cowes" in connection with the history of Ireland. He also sang "The Minstrel Boy," "Rory O'Moore" and "Killarney."

"EVENING OF MUSIC" GIVEN BY CHURCH QUARTET

"An evening of music," given by the quartet choir of the First M. E. church, at the church, last night, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist and choirmaster, was enjoyed by an appreciative audience. It was the first time that an opportunity has been given to hear the excellent quartet in secular music, and the selections were well chosen and given in a delightful manner. Miss Gabrielle Drosse, soprano, and Alex MacGowan, tenor, were both suffering from an effection of the throat, but notwithstanding their work was of the highest order.

There were quartet and solo selections, and in both the singers were well received. The numbers were of a popular order, allowing an excellent opportunity for good work. A feature was the playing of Adolph Bock, violinist, who was given much applause. Mr. Braider was at the piano and assisted largely in making the affair a success. The singing of Miss Ethel Kinnaman, contralto, and Edgar A. Cole, baritone, were pleasing features of the program.

CITY GETS BALANCE OF RAILROAD TAX

Final Apportionment of 1911 Levy From State for County Schools.

PUT INSIDE.....P

Plainfield's balance of the railroad tax for school purposes amounting to $726.58 was received yesterday, from County Collector Nathan S. Leavitt. This is the balance of the 1911 railroad tax, amounting in all to $4,684.23. The money has been divided according to the apportionment made by County School Superintendent Johnson.

This money was due the county as the result of the litigation caused by the railroads opposing the assessments in 1911. Pending the outcome they paid taxes only according to what they considered they should be taxed. The decision of the courts did not sustain the valuations fixed by the railroad companies and therefore they were obliged to make additional payments.

Following are the amounts each school district received from the county share: Clark township, $7.10; Cranford, $169.16; Elizabeth, $1,993.13; Fanwood, $67.38; Garwood, $59.41; Hillside $57.27; Kenilworth, $34.51; Linden, $121.53; Mountainside, $7.38; New Providence, $40.36; New Providence township, $30.74; Plainfield, $726.58; Rahway, $341.92; Roselle, $145.46; Roselle Park, $199.38; Springfield, $55.49; Summit, $237.46; Union, $91.35, and Westfield, $298.62.

Plans for the big national suffrage demonstration on May 2 were talked over. A general discussion of questions raised by individual members followed, and the conference was adjourned. Cards were passed advertising another campaign conference under the auspices of the Women's Political Union, to be held in the Third Presbyterian church, of Newark, Monday, April 6, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, at which Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and other distinguished speakers will discuss campaign methods for Essex county. All suffragists are invited.

NEW YORK BEGINS A BIG CELEBRATION

Tercentenary Event to Continue Over Period of Six Months.

New Yark, March 27—The chartered commerce of New York, and in fact, practically that of the North American continent, began three hundred years ago today, when the United Netherlands granted the first charter for regular commerce with what is now New York. The tercentenary is to be observed with a celebration in keeping with the importance of the event. The celebration will continue over a period of six months and its various features will commemorate the history and progress of the nation and particularly commercial achievements.

The celebration was formally opened with services of thanksgiving held in the churches today. During the spring and summer the program provides for commemorative exercises in the public schools and a series of exhibitions of the material resources of the entire country.

September has been selected as the most suitable month for holding the outdoor features of the celebration. Early in the month a great musical festival will be held to commemorate the one hundred years of peace between the English-speaking peoples. The latter part of the month will be given over to elaborate parades and pageants. One of these will be a pageant of States, in which each State is expected to have a float illustrating its history and its resources. There also will be a great naval parade similar to that seen during the Henry Hudson celebration. A great industrial parade is also to be a feature.

Interspersed in the program are arangements for various local features, including celebrations at all of the cities along the Erie Canal, the Hudson river and the southern tier of counties in New York State.

DUNBAR CLUB MEETING.
The Dunbar Club will hold its regular meeting this evening at the Washington School. There will be round and old-fashioned dances of every description. The John Taylor Quartet will render several selections. In the near future John Taylor will take charge of directing the glee club made up of members of the club.

Charles Downs, of Hackettstown, is a guest for a few days at the home of C. J. Rice, of Westervelt avenue.

WHY NOT A MUNICIPAL BAND?

Frequent references have been made in these columns to the various activities of the Public Recreation Committee, including among other things the municipal orchestra, which during the early part of the winter was a pleasant feature of the work. Of late, however, this orchestra has discontinued rehearsals, and what promised to be a great feature of the civic centre work has been dropped. Now that the spring days are here, people are already turning their thoughts to out of doors, and music always is one of the most popular attractions of the summer season.

The success of the municipal orchestra, while it was continued, leads to the thought that a municipal band might be a fine thing, either with amateur or paid musicians. There is not one of us, even if city born, who does not recall hearing at one time or another in the past, one of the country village bands. Many fond memories lurk behind that thought, and to hundreds the dreams of childhood are revived by the very suggestion. Those bands were everywhere—in the Decoration Day and Fourth of July parades, giving "concerts" in the public park or village square, at the old opera house, at picnics, and, once in a while, in the slow march to the final rest. It was the greatest band we ever heard. Its music then excelled to our way of thinking the masterpieces of Sousa. There was nothing like being a boy in those days. Circuses, Hallowe'ens, family reunions, Fourth of July picnics—all vanish before the vision of the village band, to play the bass drum in which or carry the music book was a higher ambition than to be a second Washington or Abraham Lincoln!

Cities have a feeling of superiority over the towns but they have no village band. When they grew up, they forgot to take it with them. Music hath charms but it was allowed to make its own way as best it could. It would be better otherwise. Cities need music—municipal music—as much or more than the towns. We have been satisfied, however, to occasionally hire a band for our city work. Why not own one like they did in the little town of our boyhood? Cities are because they grant increased comforts and happiness, but there is nothing which makes so for community happiness as the village band.

Denver has just set aside the sum of $26,500 for the organization and maintenance of a city band and Frederick Neil Innes, the band leader, has been employed as city band-master to organize it and direct the musical activities for the city for one year. Best of all, it is to be an all-year-around municipal band. It will give 128 concerts in the city parks during June, July and August, but it also will furnish a score of mid-winter concerts in the Auidtorium next winter. The whole city is backing the project; labor organizations have heartily approved it.

Plainfield has plenty of talent for the formation of a band under the auspices of the Recreation Committee. Perhaps a way could be found to hire a trained musician as a leader at a fixed salary during the summer months, who would devote all his time to helping the development along musical lines of those who need instruction and encouragement. The band might not be a Sousa or Pryor aggregation, but it could give concerts during the summer that would provide entertainment for hundreds of the residents of the city, to whom even a trip to recreation parks nearby is denied. The new community spirit manifesting itself throughout the country calls for greater wholesome enjoyment of life by the greater number of people, and there is no way of estimating the pleasure that music gives to everyone. It is worth considering.

Among the features of this paper which should prove interesting to many of our readers is the lodge column, which has been inaugurated under the caption of "Taps From the Gavel." In connection with this column, we solicit the co-operation of the lodge secretaries. We will print in a condensed form all local, State and national items which are of interest to the fraternities of this city. The success of this latest feature depends entirely with the lodges themselves.

Speaking of the latest French shooting tragedy a local man remarked today that Madame Caillaux would undoubtedly be placed in an insane asylum and two yearse later by some means or other get out. Yes, probably "Thaw" out. Call the keeper.

The editorial for tomorrow's Press has been written by Elliott T. Barrows, a member of the Plainfield Board of Health, and in it he reviews the splendid work being done by that body.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Mrs. Robert Lowery will read aloud at the song services Sunday evening. Supper will be served at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. A. D. V. Honeyman and her committee are making plans for a supper to be given Monday evening at which Mrs. Frederick Mead will give a talk on the journey that she has planned to take to China and Japan.

The G. Y. M. Club girls will hold their montnly business meeting tonight and Miss Marion Blair and Miss Margaret Hawkins will serve supper.

There will be no mission study class Monday evening, but on Monday, April 6, a new course of study will be taken up on Japan with Mrs. Herbert Case as leader.

The girls of the Kitchikiniwa Camp Fire Club will hold a meeting and supper at which one of the girls of the club will be given a "shower."

The girls of all the local stores and factories are cordially invited to bring their lunches at noontime and make use of the back porch.

PERSONAL.

Miss C. H. Kettenring, of Grove street, removed today to her new home at Manville.

Mrs. Donald Lefferts, of Passaic, sister of John B. Judson, is visiting at his residence on John street for a few days.

United States Senator James E. Martine, William L. Saunders, Dr. Frederick J. Hughes and Leslie R. Fort, of this city, attended the annual dinner of the Legislative Correspondents' Club at Trenton, last night. Senator Martine was one of the speakers.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley and County Tax Commissioner W. A. Coddington were Trenton visitors yesterday.

Mrs. O. L. Pearson, of East Front street, who underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, is improving.

Andrew Stiglitz, of North Plainfield, has given up his position in New York and returned to The Plainfield Trust Company, where he was formerly employed.

FEATURES AT COMING DANCE.

Under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital, a dance will be given Friday night, April 24, at the Columbus Auditorium. The affair will be for the benefit of the hospital. Mueller's orchestra will furnish the music and plans are now being considered to secure specialty dancing for the occasion.

BARNES TELLS OF PARTY'S HISTORY

CHAIRMAN IS OPTIMISTIC

"Party Has Been Secure In Its Conviction and It Has Never Been Lacking In Courage to Fight For Them," Says Leader.

New York, March 27.—William Barnes, chairman of the Republican state committee, read the future of his party from its history at the Republican club banquet. The party must go on, said Mr. Barnes, in a spirit of constructive criticism, conservative and yet not hidebound, taking a middle course between radicalism and retrogression.

"The spirit of Republicanism as I see it in the light of history," he said, "should meet present day problems as it has met present day problems in the past—critically, with resistance to class legislation and to what is economically unsound. It should with energy urge constructive legislation, which specifically applied does not violate that great fundamental principle of individual liberty, equality and opportunity upon which the American government was founded and has always rested. If this principle is denied by the people who have been secure in its benefits and who must be the ultimate tribunal to pass upon their own welfare that government will not endure."

Mr. Barnes went at the record of Abraham Lincoln as shown in his speeches to show that Lincoln was not a radical. He pointed out that Lincoln got into trouble with the abolitionists because he would not free the slaves all at one time and had trouble, too, with the slave holders because he was not for keeping the slaves as property forever.

Continuing he said:

"At St. Louis in 1896, after the representatives of the Republican party had hesitated on the silver question, under the Harrison administration, the national convention firmly and in absolutely certain terms resisted the widespread silver sentiment in the party. It placed itself firmly upon the gold standard and defied its opponents. Well I remember the appeal of Senator Teller in behalf of the silverites, the quaver in his voice when he realized the defeat of his cause and the sad departure when he led his band of silverites out of the convention to leave the Republican party forever.

"And now we come to 1912 and again the power of resistance within the Republican party was demonstrated.

Speaks on Roosevelt.

"At Columbus, O., in that year Mr. Roosevelt declared that he favored what would create an absolutely new form of government in America. The doctrine which he advanced is popularly known as the recall of judicial decisions. It provides that when a legislature shall pass a law which is in violation of the guarantees granted to individual citizens of the United States in the bill of rights of the constitution and the citizen secures through the courts recognition of his rights which have been thus assailed by the legislature, then the electorate of the political division represented by the legislature shall pass upon the question whether the citizen is entitled to the rights guaranteed to him by the people through the adoption of their constitution. In other words, Mr. Roosevelt proposed that no man in America should be secure in his life, his liberty or his property if assailed by a legislative body, unless he could get the vote of the electorate to support him. Thus he would have no rights that the representatives of the people were bound to respect.

"The projection of a candidacy for the presidency upon this violent and radical proposal met resistance at Chicago. The result was the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt for the nomination.

"I have gone into the history of the Republican party for the purpose of showing that no matter what mistakes may have been made by individual Republican presidents, Republican congresses or by men who have used the party in the days of its ascendancy in such way as to abuse it, this stands out as the primal fact of its history: It has been secure in its convictions and it has not been lacking in courage to fight for them."

PASS BILL AIMED AT O'DWYER

Senate Also Takes a Jab at District Attorney Whitman.

Albany, March 27.—The state senate by a vote of 46 to 3 passed Senator Boylan's bill providing that justices of the New York city court shall hereafter select annually a chief justice of the court. Justice Edward F. O'Dwyer, president of the Democratic club, who was responsible recently for dropping Charles F. Murphy from the club for nonpayment of dues, is now chief justice of this court and will serve until his present ten year term expires unless the bill becomes a law.

CLASS PRESENTS PICTURE TO MRS. RAYMOND WHITFORD

The monthly social of Mrs. Richard's class of the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school, last night, was in the nature of a surprise party in honor of Mrs. Raymond Whitford, of Prospect avenue, Dunellen. The surprise was complete and a very enjoyable time was held in playing games. Refreshments brought the affair to a close.

Before the departure of the guests, a steel engraving suitably inscribed was presented to Mrs. Whitford by the class, Mrs. David, chairman of the social committee, making the presentation address. The next social of the class will be held late in April.

"AMERICAN NIGHT" IS ENJOYED AT HOPE CHAPEL

The series of "National Nights," which have been held at Hope chapel during the past season, came to a close, last evening, when an entertainment under the head of "American Night" was given under the auspices of the ways and means committee of the chapel.

Mrs. John Brines, the well known singer and musical lecturer of Brooklyn, sang several songs, and gave an interesting history of American music. This portion of the program was well received by the audience. William D. Murray read several selections from American authors, in an enjoyable manner, while violin numbers were rendered by Prof. Gottschalk, of this city.

BRAKEMAN KILLED.

Howard Fredericks, of Elizabeth, a conductor on a Jersey Central freight train, was killed at Westfield, this morning, being hit by a drill engine which had been acting as a pusher for the train. County Physician Dr. F. W. Westcott viewed the body and issued a permit to have it removed to the undertaking parlors of George W. Coles, of this city.

R. M. HONEYMAN WILL CONDUCT A REVIVAL HERE

R. M. Honeyman, of Norristown, Pa., will conduct a series of evangelistic services at Hope chapel beginning next Thursday evening and continuing through Easter Sunday, April 12. He will address meetings at the Y. M. C. A. on both Sunday afternoons that he will be in town.

Mr. Honeyman has had many years of successful experience as an evangelist, having spent five years as secretary of the Bowery branch of the Y. M. C. A. As a speaker he is said to be strong, earnest and convincing.

ADDRESS TO TEACHERS ON HABITS OF CHILDREN

Miss Addie Parker Jackson, superintendent of physical instruction in the public schools of the city, gave a most interesting lecture before the school teachers of the city at the Washington School, yesterday afternoon, speaking of the importance, especially to growing girls, of proper habits of standing, walking and sitting during school hours.

The lecture was illustrated by a number of lantern slides, showing many incorrect positions frequently assumed by the pupils, and the bad physical results from them. Of especial interest were some statistics showing how curvature of the spine was created by carrying books on the hips and by wrong positions at the study desks. Miss Jackson stated that owing to the attention recently given to these matters in the public school curriculum a noticeable improvement has been made in the physical condition of all pupils in the higher grades of the public schools, especially among the girls.

Samuel Rothberg

STYLISH

RELIABLE

Sam asked me to write an Anniversary Advertisement for him. He wanted to pay me for it. I told him that he couldn't pay me a cent. Then he said, "Why should you write an advertisement for me for nothing?" and I answered, "Because I believe in you and I want to see you succeed. I will write an advertisement for you if you will let it appear in your Plainfield newspapers just as I write it."

"All right," said Sam. So here is the advertisement.

William C. Freeman, Advertising Director, New York Globe.

Samuel Rothberg is your fellow townsman. He has been brought up among you. A great many of you know him well enough to call him "Sam."

He is in business in your town. Are you supporting him as you should? What does one townsman owe to another in the matter of trade?

I think that one's first duty is to his home town—that means, first of all, duty to his family—then to his friends—then to patronize his home merchants.

No man is doing his duty to his home community unless he helps to make the local merchants successful by spending with them the money he makes.

In buying from local merchants, one should exercise the same care as he would in loaning money. Nobody wants to loan money unless he is reasonably certain of getting it back, and nobody should buy from any merchant unless he is certain of getting full value for his money.

From what I personally know of Sam Rothberg, and from what I have heard about him, I think you folks in Plainfield are not running the slightest risk in giving him your trade.

I think also that you should be glad to encourage a young man who starts out to achieve business success, on the lines of high idealism, giving good service, stylish and reliable merchandise, and helping his town by dignifying its commerce.

He is starting on his third year in business.

One of your local banks has helped him; it trusts him. He won't abuse the trust.

Wholesalers believe in and help him. They look upon him as a young man whose first principle is to make good.

You or I, struggling as Sam Rothberg is—working as hard as he does—absorbed as completely as he is by a desire to succeed in his own town—conscientious as he is by not over-charging anybody or misrepresenting anything, you or I would feel that we were not getting much of a return if we had to live on the small weekly stipend he allows himself.

He could take more out of his business if he would, but he won't. He is paying, PAYING, PAYING all of the time to increase his equity in a building he controls—to keep his word and credit good with his bank and wholesalers—to make a good name for himself.

The average stenographer would raise a howl if she were paid no more than Sam pays himself for all of his hard work. He pays his brother—a very good clerk in his store—more than he pays to himself.

Do you ever stop to think what great personal sacrifices some men make to achieve honorable success?

You would not be ashamed to wear a Plainfield label in your clothes, would you? If so, you should not live in Plainfield.

When you go away from Plainfield to any resort, north, or south, east or west, do you register from New York, or are you proud enough of your home town to put down opposite your name—Plainfield, New Jersey?

Sam will sell you clothes of character made by manufacturers of character—the same kind of clothes that any reliable house in New York or Newark will sell to you.

Do you think for a minute that any New York or Newark house can sell them any cheaper? They cannot buy from the manufacturers any cheaper than Sam can, for these manufacturers of quality clothes sell to all at one price.

There is some difference in rentals and other overhead charges between Plainfield and New York.

New York merchants get their profits all right enough, and so does Sam—the percentage being no higher, if as high, in Sam's case.

Of course, Sam does not do a volume of business that justifies operating on less than 33 1-3 per cent. on gross sales. No New York house that I know operates on any less percentage.

If Sam does a business at retail of $30,000 a year, he makes a gross profit of $10,000, to which he is entitled. Out of this he must pay rent, advertising, light, heat, clerk hire, and all of the other charges that go with the conduct of a business.

He cannot be so all-fired extravagant with the net profits. The net profits seem very small when Sam is paying them out on the obligations he created when he bought one of your Plainfield buildings and when he bought the stock of merchandise with which he started business.

It takes supreme courage to start in business assuming heavy obligations, and to be willing to practice self-denial. As a clerk Sam was paid a good salary, but he wanted to own his own business. So he cast aside comfort for a long, hard grind. He is fired with an ambition to succeed for the sake of his father and mother, whom he wants to help.

By George! folks of Plainfield, you ought to stand back of Sam. He deserves your confidence, your respect and your support.

The Rothberg store for "Most Things Men Wear" is at 214 West Front Street, right next to Proctor's, and Sam is there every day from eight in the morning until eight o'clock at night to serve you.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the address of a book-binder in this city?—J. F. T.

Answer—There is no book bindery in this city. The nearest one is in Elizabeth.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the legal rate charged by lawyers for collecting promissory notes?—J. S. E.

Answer—There is no legal rate but the customary rate is ten per cent., with a minimum charge of $3.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is it against the law to shoot crows, chicken hawks and sparrow hawks at any time, or do I need to get a permit and where do I apply for one?—A. T. T.

Answer—It is against the law to shoot firearms within the city limits at any time. Get a permit from the police chief.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please inform me if there is a premium on a dime dated 1884 with the picture of a man holding a flag on one side?—B. R. K.

Answer—There is no premium on the coin which you so uniquely describe.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is the story, "A Man Without a Country," by Hale, a story of real life?—B. D.

Answer—It is not. Rev. Edward Everett Hale described in it what would be the result of such folly.

Query—If you placed a diamond on a railroad track and allowed the train to run over it, would it break?—J. R. P.

Answer—Try it and then you will know more than we can tell you about it. Let us know the result.

'PLAINS-Y. M. C. A. SERIES WILL OPEN

Initial Contest Between Old Rivals Will Be Played Here Tomorrow Night.

The opening game of a series of basketball between the local Y. M. C. A. and Scotch Plains Parish House quintets will be staged on the association court tomorrow night. This series is one of unusual interest in view of the fact that it brings together two aggregations that have long been the keenest of rivals in the popular indoor pastime.

Many of the players have taken part in similar contests on the Y. M. C. A. court and each combination has a large following which is expected to turn out to witness the encounter. The game will be one for blood, if certain dope that has been passed around during the week may be taken as a criterion of what is to come, and the players on the respective teams have been primed to the limit to win the initial match. Bergen Naylor, an old-time Y. M. C. A. player, will perform at guard with the 'Plains combination, probably dividing up honors with Walter Walker, the regular guard man on the Parish House five. Jack Ricketts and Willard Marsten are expected to do the bulk of the scoring for the visitors and Glover and Gavett will endeavor to hold them down as much as possible on this occasion. Moulton and Ted Gavett will take care of the scoring work for the association boys.

Early in the season a team of Y. M. C. A. players was treated to a drubbing on the Parish House court in the 'Plains, but the regular lineup was not on hand at that time and hostilities are expected to be much closer when the teams meet tomorrow night. The preliminary game will be played between the Grace Church five and the Scotch Plains seconds These junior quintets are also engaged in a three game series and as the 'Plains boys won the opening contest on their home court last week the local youngsters are hot after a victory in tomorrow night's contest to even up the series.

The lineups of the two teams for the games are as follows:

Y. M. C. A.	SCOTCH PLAINS
Moulton	Ricketts forward
J. McNamee	Dallas forward
J. Gavett	Marsten center
Glover	Smith guard
T. Gavett	Walker-Naylor guard

GRACE CH.	S. P. SECONDS
D. McNamee	Hall forward
Cottrell	F. Saunders forward
Williams	E. Marsten center
Wheelan	K. Saunders guard
Ryder	Anson-G. Saunders guard

WESTFIELD HIGH TEAM HAD A GOOD SEASON

Mt. Ararat Quintet Won Eleven Games and Lost Twelve During the Season.

Winning eleven games and losing twelve is the record of the Westfield High School basketball team for 1913-1914. The Westfield boys by breaking nearly even did much better than other school teams in the past several years.

Shortly after the team began to play, the student body saw that one could never tell whether or not the local boys would win, but they always made a good fight. Day was the most consistent player. Westfield scored 655 points during the season against their opponents' 609.

Next season the locals will lose Taylor, Burns and Marsh but there is a good allotment of substitutes from which to secure timber. P. Traynor will captain the team, Walter Day will act as manager, and Robert Carins will be assistant manager. The records of games follow:

Westfield, 39; Nutley, 44.

Westfield, 7; Plio Club, 6.

COSE PIN-KNIGHTS TOOK TWO IN A ROW

Laing's Men Bowled Some Low Scores in the Opening Two and Captured Third.

John Cose's team of the Elk Club Bowling League pinners, took two of the three games rolled with the Laing crew on the club alleys last night, dropping the final setto after running away with the opening pair. Cose's team made the high team score of the evening in the second game with a 844.

Low scores featured the rolling of the Laing team in the first match, individuals setting up some poor marks during the issue. Captain Laing is given credit for the high individual mark of the evening with a 243 tallied in the second session.

CAMBRIDGE CREW FAVORITE.

London, March 27—Oxford and Cambridge will grapple tomorrow in their annual rowing race on the Thames. The contest will take place over the usual course from Putney to Mortlake, a distance of four and one-quarter miles. Drawn fine by weeks of training and keyed up to the highest pitch, the rival eights will battle for aquatic supremacy in what promises to be a close and interesting contest. The Cambridge men are favorites in the betting. But the Oxonians have a reputation for showing poor form until just before the big race and then winning out. Mindful of this fact, many persons are confident of the ability of the Oxford crew to wear down their opponents in the latter part of the race.

COLLEGE WRESTLING TOURNEY.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 27.—Final arrangements for the championship tournament of the Intercollegiate Wrestling League were made yesterday. The title bouts are to be held at the University of Pennsylvania, beginning tomorrow and continuing over Saturday. Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Cornell and Pennsylvania will take part.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Baseballs have begun to fly on the sandlots of the city and the mudlarks who have braved the conditions that present themselves at the present time are fast rounding into condition. Both of the high schools are engaged in outdoor drills and some pretty good conditioning is now underway. Kid teams have made their appearance in the public school districts and the vacant lots are being put to some good use just at present. The law prohibiting baseball on the public streets has caused the youth to congregate in open fields, which by the way, have become exceedingly scarce of late. When father was a boy several good fields could be found in every portion of the municipality, but just now the youngster has to travel some distance to clout the horsehide without connecting unceremoniously with a window pane.

The plan to promote a series of bowling matches to decide the city championship, while somewhat of a novelty, will no doubt meet with ready enthusiasm on every side from the pin-knights and those who follow the indoor pastime. Never before has a series of this nature been staged here and heretofore we have been forced to stretch our imagination considerably in picking a champion. With two good alleys such as are found in the Elks Club and in the Knights of Columbus Hall to stage matches on some interesting exhibitions of the pastime ought to be put on during the few weeks that remain before it gets too warm to shoot the heavy wooden pills down the alleys.

The Sunday lawn tennis bill's defeat in the Assembly was logical. Why should the Legislature legalize the "playing of bowls" on Sunday when it is expressly prohibited by the old blue laws, and forbid baseball, which was not known to the narrow-minded worthies who created the statute? Why should any particular form of "Sunday desecration" be tolerated while others not more desecrating are banned? Lawn tennis is also of the character of a class recreation. But, all the same, there will be Sunday lawn tennis in the suburbs.

The spirit is all right, but Hyman Abrams practising sliding in that Hyde Oval pit would make a good motion picture film. Imagine this little individual hitting the turf.

It is once more time for Warry McLaughlin to start mourning over the fact that his salary wing is gone. Annually for the past ten years Warry has undergone this nerve-wrecking strain, but has always come through with a one or two hit game as soon as the actual playing season is ushered in.

Bob Fitzsimmons announces that fighting, not boxing, hurts the game. Thereby estiblishing his alibi.

Although Ernie Dorflinger is keeping well under cover at the present time it is the one best bet that he will be the central figure in the local baseball limelight when the big bell taps.

One tobacco company is advertising its goods as recommended by three players who do not smoke. It's a safe bet these ball players don't come from the Queen City.

Jack Martin is waiting for a bid from the Feds who want to know whether to buy him on the hoof or dressed. It looks as though one George Stallings was going to cling fast to Jackie.

The Sunday-school League doesn't favor recognizing the Feds. Why should they care, the Plainfielders are not very likely to figure in the three-cornered fight for the world's championship next fall.

Having tried to follow North Plainfield's pace in spring training every year our heart goes out to the poor little Canadians when we are informed that Captain Smalley has inaugurated sprinting as a part of the preparatory exercises.

The guys who engage in the popular pastime of bawling out the sport scribe fail to realize that they are only ballyhooing athletics in general and that their remarks never penetrate the iron armor that encloses a writer's scalp.

The evolution of motor-boat racing is bringing it to a point where to be a champion one must put a gallon of gasoline in a tin can and see which can blow the can the farthest. "Windy's" favorite pastime.

EXPECT TO JOIN "FEDS."

Los Angeles, March 27—Buck Weaver and Jim Scott, who have been with the second White Sox team since their return from the world trip, joined the Sox regulars here yesterday. Despite Callahan's statement that he has the signed contracts of both men and that they are satisfied, both of them today declared that they were perfectly willing to jump to the Federals and were, in fact, simply awaiting word from the third league powers. Weaver said that he had been offered $35,000 for three years and that Scott also had received a handsome offer.

SPEAKER REPORTS FOR DUTY.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 27—Tris Speaker, the $15,000 prima donna of the Boston Red Sox, reported to Manager Carrigan yesterday. Since his return from the other side with the tourists Speaker has been visiting his home at Hubbard, Tex. Tris is at playing weight and states that a week's work is all he needs to be ready for the championship opening.

ANOTHER FOR "THAM."

Sam Langford is going to take on Jim Johnson for ten rounds at the Empire A. C., New York, tonight. Johnson is said to have given Jack Johnson a tough argument in ten rounds at Paris not long ago and may prove a worthy opponent for Langford tonight.

DAVE DRISCOLL WILL LEAD SOUTHERN TRIP

Former Local Captain Coaching Seton Hall College Nine This Season.

Coach Dave Driscoll, formerly captain of the Plainfield baseball team, will take the Seton Hall College varsity baseball team to Washington and Baltimore during the Easter vacation. The South Orange collegians will tackle the Mt. St. Joseph's team in the first game of the season Monday afternoon at Baltimore. Tuesday the Mt. St. Mary's team, of Emmetsburg, Md., will be encountered. No game has been booked for Wednesday as yet, but on Thursday the Setonia lads will play the Catholic University aggregation at Washington.

Under the direction of Driscoll the Seton Hall players have been rounding into form for the past month and expect to make one of the best records in the history of the college. Jack Fish, the veteran catcher, who has turned down several offers from professional clubs, will captain the nine this year.

NEWARKERS WIN $300.

John D. Negley and D. H. VanNess, of Newark, were yesterday afternoon declared victors in the two-man event of the American Bowling Congress held in Buffalo. The winners split a purse of $300. Negley and VanNess totaled 1,245, being three pins better than the teams of Roden and Roden, of Buffalo, and Shenkel and Smith, of Pittsburgh. The latter teams were tied, having 1,242 pins.

GRAND NATIONAL IS COMPLEX.

London, March 27—On the eve of the Grand National, today, the situation is as complex as is generally the case when the blue ribbon of cross-country events is to be decided. The two top weights, Covertcoat and Letteur 3d, both tried pefformers through the field, devide favoritism, but the liberal odds of 9 to 1 against the actual favorite, Letteur 3d, show that the race is one of the most open ever staged on the trying course of about four miles and a half.

EVERS CAPTAIN OF BOSTONS.

Macon, Ga., March 27.—John Evers yesterday was chosen captain of the Boston National League team here by Manager Stallings, succeeding William Sweeney, who was sold to the Chicago National League club. The Boston Nationals go to Atlanta, Ga., today for two games.

SPRINGFIELD PLAYERS TREATED TO A SCARE

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Boys Came Within Two Points of Tying Rival Team.

So far have the Springfield students progressed in their task of tutoring the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basket cagers that the Massachusetts quintet came within an ace of tasting defeat in the association gymnasium this morning, when the Plainfield "youngsters" and the college players clashed in the second of a series of games arranged between the rivals. The visitors won by a score of 29 to 27, but the Queen City team pressed matters during the second period and forced their hefty rivals to display some good basketball in order to get away with the decision.

Moulton played the best game for his side, making many pretty shots from difficult angles and fifteen out of his team's total score went to his credit. Seals and the Line brothers also did some good scoring.

LARGEST SQUAD IN HISTORY OUT FOR P. H. S. BASEBALL

The Plainfield High School baseball team held its first outdoor practice yesterday afternoon on Crescent Oval. The diamond was too muddy for any infield practice and the squad was set to work chasing flies. One of the largest turnouts in the history of the school was out to practice.

The pitchers and catchers did a little warming up. Thirty-four men composed the squad. The following reported yesterday: Sminck, Mann, Brown, Rosenson, Brick, Noonan, Smith, Apgar, Butler, Cottrell, Gavett, VanDeventer, McDowell, Hylan, Victorson, Bauer, Swackhamer, Dealaman, Kline, H. Peacock, Dunham, Coudray, Hirsch, Canter, Davidson, Alpaugh, Schenck, Semer, Pollock, Daniels, Greene, Gleary, Hunter and Thompson.

SPRING OPENING EXHIBIT

Tomorrow begins the stateliest style-show this eleven year old institution has ever undertaken--specializing in clothes for the family on LIBERAL CREDIT payments. Soliciting your patronage on the basis of

Style-Quality Economy-Service

Adelberg's is the oldest credit firm in Plainfield, established for more than eleven years. Our liberal credit terms are responsible for the success of this business.

The Spring season of 1914 marks an important style transition. The athletic girl and the plain tailored woman have passed on their way. In their place we have an attire that leans to the fluffy and extremely fancy garments—a style that is justly feminine.

Worthy of note in the new styles are the Spring Gowns and Suits. In suits, short coats predominate—in some cases approaching the Eton. Gowns are neatly draped and gathered in endless ways; the skirts are either tunic or tier models, many in peg-top effects.

For the man we show an endless variety of Blue, Greys, Browns and fancy mixtures in pencil stripes and the new pin-checks.

Come in to see the style show—select what you want; pay for it at your convenience.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Alice Lloyd, the English comedy songbird, under the direction of William Morris, will head the newest of the revues, coming to the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening. Miss Lloyd known internationally as England's daintiest comedienne, will be seen in a new style of entertainment with a song repertoire including "Parisian Crinoline," "Mother, Mother," "My Night Out," "When Mother was Twenty-one," "Lady Policeman," "Ship Ahoy," "Splash Me," "Who Are You Getting at," "Never Introduce Your Bloke," "Stockings on the Line," "Tourist and the Maid," "Nothing Doing," "Mary Told the Soldier," "The Girls I Left Behind Me" and many others. A striking event in the show of stars will be the dance revue of all nations called "Dance Mad," offering a realistic glimpse of the fashionable Jardin de Danse atop of the New York Theatre, New York, together with a vivid interpretation of the cabaret life in New York and Paris. The full music orchestras, featuring among other novelties, many girls of much beauty and considerable grace, and a unique exposition of the "X-Ray" Dance, "Turkey Trot," "Tango," and modern ballrooms dances. Frank Fogarty, "The Dublin Minstrel," will be an added feature. Fogarty is a standard entertainer. There will be twenty-two other unusual revealments.

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED.

Dadeville, Ala., March 27—The centennial anniversary of the battle of Horseshoe Bend, in which Gen. Jackson defeated the Greek Indians, was observed with appropriate exercises today at the scene of the battle on the Tallapoosa river in this county. The battle was fought March 27, 1814. It was the bloodiest engagement of the Creek Indian war and the victory of the Americans forever broke the power of the Indians in the South. In connection with the centennial a movement has been started to convert the battleground into a national park or reservation. A bill to accomplish this purpose is now pending in Congress. It is also planned to erect a moument in the park in memory of the soldiers who fell in the battle.

NOTED ATTORNEY ACCUSED OF BRIBERY

Tracy R. Bangs Araigned in Court at Grand Forks, North Dakota.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 27—Tracy R. Bangs, at one time United States district attorney for North Dakota and a former supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, was arraigned in court here, today, for a preliminary hearing on a charge of bribery in the McLain Cooper murder trial two years ago. Bangs is one of the best known lawyers in the Northwest. He has been attorney for the defense in many noted murder cases and three years ago he successfully defended Judge Cowan in impeachment proceedings.

Bangs was the attorney for McLain Cooper when the latter was tried here in 1912 on a charge of murder. Cooper, who was but nineteen years old at the time, was accused of having shot and killed Charles Ross, who had served as foreman on the Cooper farm near Hillsboro. The case was brought to this county on change of venue. At the trial young Cooper alleged that he had fired the fatal shot in self-defense. The jury was out thirty-six hours and returned a verdict of not guilty.

Recently J. A. Sullivan, who was the bailiff in charge of the jury at the Cooper trial, made an alleged confession to the effect that the jurymen had been plentifully supplied with liquor while they were considering the case and that money had been used to influence their decision. As a result of the story told by Sullivan the State's attorney swore out warrants for Bangs and five others alleged to have been implicated in the attempted bribery. Among those accused are Harry Cooper, the wealthy father of McLain Cooper, J. C. Mann, who is alleged to have been the "go-between" in the transaction, and McLain Cooper, the defendant at the trial. Since his acquittal the latter has been engaged in fruit farming in Oregon.

AWAKENED BY SCREAMS BOY DIES FROM FRIGHT

Awakened by screams of fire and the clatter of many feet on the sidewalk, Thomas Reynolds, nineteen years old, a high school student living at No. 26 Harrison avenue, Harrison, N. J., leaped from his bed early today, but was so frightened that he fell in a heap. After he had lain on the floor a few minutes he managed to crawl to his parents' room, but he was still speechless from fright and was slowly turning blue. On the arrival of Dr. Allers the boy's condition was much worse and half an hour later he died. His death was directly due to fright, the physician said.

Not far from the Reynolds home a barn was on fire and many boys in the neighborhood were running to the blaze and shouting "Fire!" It was their cries that young Reynolds heard when so suddenly aroused from slumber.

BELFAST RESIDENCE IS BURNED BY MILITANTS

Belfast, Ireland, March 27.—A militant suffragette "arson squad" is believed to have been responsible for the destruction by fire early today of Abbeylands, a splendid country residence belonging to Major General Sir Hugh McCalmont, near Whiteabbey, on Belfast Lough. The house, although fully furnished, was not occupied except by caretakers. The damage is estimated at $75,000.

No evidences of suffragette handiwork were found, but as the women recently threatened to start war against the Ulster Unionist leaders because of the refusal of Sir Edward Carson to support the movement of the suffragettes, the authorities lay the blame on them. The grounds of Abbeylands, which is only four miles from Carrickfergus, a British army station, have been used recently for drilling the Ulster Unionist "Volunteers."

MAYOR HARWOOD FISH ARRESTED ON LIBEL CHARGE

Increasing the legal troubles involving Mayor Harwood Fish, of Roselle Park, William Morris yesterday caused his arrest on a charge of criminal libel. Chief County Detective Galatian served the warrant and arraigned his prisoner before Justice of the Peace Robert L. Eaton. The executive was held under $500 bail to await the action of the May Grand Jury. He furnished his own surety.

This development is based on the same act on which Mr. Morris asks to recover $500 through a damage suit listed in the District Court, Elizabeth. He was formerly health officer in the borough and resigned. In discussing the resignation, Mayor Fish is alleged to have slandered the former health officer by explaining that the reason for the resignation being tendered was that Morris was a "grafter."

When the Fire Whistle Blows

DURING the first hour of last night's fire the number of telephone calls increased many times more than the average number of calls handled at the same hour on an average day.

WHEN THE FIRE Whistle Blows, the protection of your own and others' lives and property may depend on THE TELEPHONE. It must be remembered, however, that an unusually large number of calls, made within a very short time, make unexpected demands upon the service and cannot be answered all at once.

Most of last night's additional calls were made merely to ask where the fire was, and were unnecessary. Our operators were unable to answer a great many of these calls, not only on account of lack of information, but also because of their inability to handle the tremendous increase in the number of calls.

In such cases urgent business messages and important emergency calls, especially calls for physicians and ambulances, may be delayed at the risk of life and property.

For your own protection and for the protection of others, we ask you not to call the operator in connection with fires unless absolutely necessary.

DANTON'S VICTIMS FIRED FROM FORCE

Patrolmen William J. George and John J. Gannon were ordered dismissed from the Summit police force, last night, following a hearing before Mayor Francis H. Bergen. The discharged patrolmen were the central figures in the notorious Summit "kidnapping" case of several weeks ago, and were declared "incompetent" by the Mayor following a hearing on charges preferred by Chief George W. Brown.

On the night of February 21, while patrolling along the Essex road they came upon a man who afterwards proved to be W. Arlington Danton, the debonair bandit who summered in Plainfield. Danton was stopped by them and taken into custody. He, however, turned the tables on his captors by standing off Gannon at the point of a revolver. George was taken in an auto to an abandoned sawmill on the Chatham turnpike and bound hand and foot, as was also the chauffeur.

Danton is at present serving a thirty days' sentence in the Tombs' prison, New York, awaiting extradition and he will be prosecuted by the Union county authorities when brought to this State. The Mayor stated that if he had the power he would like to demote George from a patrolman to chanceman, but if after a period of thirty days this officer would like to apply for appointment as a chanceman he would give his application serious consideration. He said that to George belongs whatever merit there is in stopping the supposed burglar which ultimately led to his arrest.

Both officers have decided to appeal their cases to the Supreme Court. Gannon, who is thirty-two years of age, has been a member of the force for six years. George was appointed last year and is twenty-four years of age.

EIGHTEEN DROWN AS FRENCH STEAMER SINKS

London, March 27—Eighteen of the crew of the French steamer Saint Paul were drowned today when she struck a rock and sank while entering the port of Brisbane, Australia, according to a Lloyds despatch. The Saint Paul was on the way from Noumea to Sydney. She was a new vessel, having been built in 1912, and she was commanded by Captain Coree. She was 220 feet long and displaced 1,032 tons net and was the property of the Oceanic Navigation Company, of Bordeaux, France.

B. F. KEITH, "FATHER OF VAUDEVILLE," DROPS DEAD

Palm Beach, Fla., March 27.—B. F. Keith, owner of the vaudeville circuit which bears his name and one of the most noted theatrical men in the country, dropped dead in the Breakers Hotel here, where he was stopping with his wife and son, Paul Keith. It is said today that Mr. Keith's death was caused by heart disease. At the time of his death Mr. Keith was in his room, discussing the progress of vaudeville since he gave it a start in 1883.

Almost at the same time a celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the opening of the Boston house was in progress in that city. After Mr. Keith had talked for a while his son suggested that he rest and left the room. The younger Mr. Keith returned a moment later and found his father dead.

Paul Keith, accompanied by several friends, will leave Palm Beach today for Boston, carrying his father's body. The funeral will be held there, and it has been announced that the services will be private. Mr. Keith had spent a great deal of time at Palm Beach, and was here last year on his honeymoon, after his marriage to Miss Ethel Bird Chase, of Washington, D. C.

The ceremony was performed on Mr. Keith's yacht, Nahmeoka, and after the wedding the craft's name was changed to the Hildebret, in honor of his bride.

OCEANIC HAS A FOUR DAY BATTLE WITH STORM

Plymouth, March 27—The Oceanic arrived here today and reported having passed through a four days' gale. In the fearful waves the vessel rolled heavily and several passengers were injured.

One passenger, Thomas Farnworth, twenty-eight years old, became insane, jumped overboard and was drowned.

While struggling with the storm the Oceanic heard the "S O S" call of the Chilian steamship Maipo in the Bay of Biscay, but finding other vessels were closer, maintained her course to Plymouth.

REAL CURES FOR THE WHITE PLAGUE

Rest, Fresh Air and Good Food Are the Three Essentials.

In spite of the statements of a number of individuals who have recently claimed that they have found a "cure" for consumption, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, the highest authority on this disease in America, in a bulletin published today, declares that there is no information at hand to justify the belief that any specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered which deserves the confidence of the medical profession and the people.

Backing up these statements, the United States Public Health Service declares that outside of the three essentials in the treatment of consumption, namely, rest, fresh air, and good food, "there is no drug known, however rare or expensive it may be, that has any curative action in this disease, and all remedies advertised as such are to be avoided. Patent cough medicines are harmful; radium, X-rays, or electricity in any of its forms have no special value in tuberculosis of the lungs. No serum has yet been found that will cure it, and there is no plaster or poultice which has an effect on the disease itself."

The National Association is planning in the near future to institute an extensive campaign for the suppression of the numerous fake consumption cures, which are annually cheating the public of the United States out of no less than $15,000,000, and besides are depriving numerous innocent victims of the chance of a real cure. Consumptives who are taking remedies of this character will be warned through advertisements and in other ways against the danger of such procedure.

Any person desiring information with regard to consumption cures or the treatment of tuberculosis may obtain literature and advice from the office of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East 22d street, New York.

CHEMIST KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Laboratory Wrecked, but Fellow Worker Escapes.

ROAR HEARD HALF A MILE

Wife of Dr. Gottschalk Was Victim of Earlier Disaster Last Fall—Was Determining Action of Certain Chemicals In Their Experiments In Making of Artificial Rubber.

Amboy, N. J., March 27.—Clifford D. Meeker and George Titus, chemists, were at work in the laboratory of Dr. Louis Gottschalk in the rear of the Gottschalk home at Sewaren, a suburb of this city, to determine the action of certain chemicals in their experiments in the making of artificial rubber.

The men were standing close together when there came an explosion. Meeker's body was hurled through the window of the room, and he was killed instantly. Owing to some unexplainable freak of the explosion Titus was not even injured.

The same sort of explosion occurred in the laboratory on Sept. 15 last, when Mrs. Eva Gottschalk, wife of Dr. Gottschalk, was killed. Dr. Gottschalk was then trying to make artificial or synthetic rubber, and his wife, who was a chemist and holder of several scientific degrees, was much interested in his experiments.

The day before this first explosion Dr. and Mrs. Gottschalk set out four of the big steel tanks containing chemicals. To each was attached a temperature gauge. The experiments were expected to prove successful in case the temperature of the mixture of chemicals did not rise above a certain point.

Dr. Gottschalk reported early next morning that the temperature of the chemicals was just normal. This delighted Mrs. Gottschalk, and she ran to the laboratory to see for herself how the gauges stood. The explosion occurred as she entered the room. She died instantly.

After the death of his wife Dr. Gottschalk turned his experiments over to his son-in-law, Titus, and he and Meeker took up the attempts to invent artificial rubber. The explosion was heard for half a mile. It wrecked the laboratory.

Meeker was thirty-five years old and lived with his wife and one child at 90 Burnett street, East Orange, N. J.

LOVER'S RUSE FAILED.

Youth Who Feigned Illness to Win Sweetheart's Sympathy Arrested.

Phillipsburg, N. J., March 27.—In order to gain the sympathy of the young woman with whom he is in love, Paul Mullener fell to the sidewalk in Hamilton street near the home of his sweetheart in the hope that the girl, attracted by the crowd, would come out and, finding him ill, have him carried into her home. But his hope was not realized, as he was taken to the Allentown hospital.

A policeman who was walking through the wards learned from the doctor that he could not diagnose the young man's illness. The youth, when he saw the policeman, tried to get away. The policeman recognized in the patient a young man accused of stealing a pocketbook from William Call of Howard street, Phillipsburg, Pa. As a warrant has been issued for Mullener's arrest he was held to await extradition.

WITHDRAW 31 TRAINS.

Pennsylvania Blames Drastic New Jersey Legislation.

Camden, N. J., March 27.—Superintendent Wierman of the Trenton division of the Pennsylvania railroad announced the withdrawal of thirty-one trains on April 1 as the first result of the drastic laws enacted by the New Jersey legislature.

Special exception is taken to laws affecting full train crews, limiting working hours for signalmen and compelling the removal of grade crossings within a year.

STATE NEWS.

Clifford D. Meeker of East Orange was killed in an explosion while experimenting in the laboratory of the Olympic Rubber Company at Maurer.

Carmine Rossi, convicted of setting fire to his own house, was sentenced in Jersey City to not less than seven nor more than fifteen years in state prison.

Charles Robinson, a negro chauffeur charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of William R. Gregory in Montclair last December, was placed on trial in Newark before Judge Osborne and a jury.

Theodore Cremer, until recently the bookkeeper of Hexamer's Riding academy in Hoboken, pleaded non vult in Jersey City to embezzling $7,500. He was sentenced to from eighteen months to three years in the county penitentiary.

Mayor Seger of Passaic played the role of fireman at a fire there and, with a number of others, succeeded in saving much household furniture from the residence of Albert Shaw. The mayor was in the neighborhood when the fire broke out.

Chickens Hatched in Full View

THIS EXHIBIT Will Be Held in Our GREENHUT BUILDING OF HOME FURNISHINGS

The Most Interesting, Novel, Unique and Educational Exhibition Ever Given In A Store---Here or Anywhere

See this 1914 incubator in full working order, and the gradual development of the chicken in the egg—from the very first stage to the twenty-first day. This development is shown in glass bottles. Day by day the immature chick was examined and preserved in liquid, showing its growth in the egg until the time of hatching.

See how poultry raising can be made both pleasurable and profitable.
See the little army of chicks raised to healthy life through the use of these famous incubators.
See the "Hatchalot" Incubator which, at the time we write this, contains 60 eggs in process of hatching.
Pamphlets and literature about poultry raising, FREE.

THE "HATCHALOT" INCUBATOR

We are giving this demonstration of poultry raising in connection with the use of the "Hatchalot" Incubator.

The name describes it exactly. There are many incubators on the market, but not one of them is so satisfactory in use, so strongly and scientifically constructed, and so capable of giving results as is the "Hatchalot."

The "Hatchalot" Incubator is substantially made of No. 1 clear cypress, which is the best of all woods for withstanding the action of heat, cold and moisture.

Only the very highest priced incubators made are built of this wood. There is a layer of asbestos between the double walls of the top.

The "Hatchalot" is supplied with a thermostat made of strong zinc and steel—the best materials for the purpose. And the price of this splendid 60-egg-size machine is only..... $7.50

THE SANITARY HOVER, At $8.50

This makes an expensive brooder house a thing of the past. No solder is used in it. It is riveted and double-seamed throughout. It can be carried around, and is ready for use wherever placed. No carpenter work is required to set it up. It is warmest at the outer edge, which causes the chics to distribute themselves near the curtain, and thus prevents crowding and smothering.

The lamp can be removed without disturbing the chicks. The hover is perfectly ventilated, with no draught.

You are perfectly safe in buying the "Hatchalot" Incubator and Sanitary Hover, because they are backed by "The Big Store's" unqualified guarantee.

And please note this important point—when you buy incubators in other stores, you are expected to pay freight; but within the limits of our free delivery, which embraces some 500 towns, transportation costs you nothing.

Why Not Buy a Hover

ARGENTINE STATUE FOR BOSTON

Boston, Mass., March 27.—Official information has been received here of the intention of the Argentine Republic to present to the city of Boston a statue of Dr. Sarmiento, the famous Argentine patriot and at one time president of the republic. The statue is to be of bronze and will cost between $100,000 and $150,000. Dr. Sarmiento was famous not only for his political activity but for his work as an educator. He established the first school for girls and also the first normal school in South America. He visited the United States several times for the purpose of studying the educational system of the country. While in Boston he formed a warm friendship with the famous educator, Horace Mann and it is in recognition of the assistance that the latter gave to Dr. Sarmiento in establishing the educational system of the Argentine Republic that the statue is to be presented to the city of Boston, which was the home of Horace Mann.

TO CHECK LAND SPECULATION.

Olympia, Wash., March 27.—As one of the preliminary steps toward solving the problem of caring for the influx of foreign immigrants that is expected to follow the opening of the Panama canal a two-day conference to discuss the land problem was begun here today under the direction of Secretary of State I. M. Howell. The problem is to get the lands from the ownership and control of the speculators so that they may be disposed of to homeseekers at prices that will enable them to become producers instead of undesirables in crowded cities. It is planned, either through taxation or legislation, to force the speculators to give up the lands which they are now holding unimproved.

FORMER FREEHOLDER MOSES ACKEN DIES IN RAHWAY

Rahway, March 27.—Moses Hetfield Acken, seventy-nine years old, a former freholder, is dead at his home, Locust Grove, Clark township. He was one of the best known men in this vicinity. He was born in Morris county.

It was through Mr. Acken's efforts that a postoffice was installed at South Plainfield. He also aided the Lehigh Valley Railroad to secure its franchise to run through South Plainfield.

Mr. Acken was a Middlesex freeholder thirty-five years ago. Thirty years ago Mr. Acken represented the Third ward in the Common Council for three years. Later he served as a member of the Board of Water Commissioners. About ten years ago he moved to his farm at Locust Grove, where he represented Clark township on the Union county Board of Freeholders. His term expired January 1.

Mr. Acken is survived by his widow, two sons, Herbert A. Acken, of Elizabeth, and Frederick Acken, of this city; two daughters, Mrs. Henry H. Jardine, of this city, and Mrs. Milissa Acken Lambert, of Locust Grove; two brothers, John Acken, of Liberty Corner, and Isaac Acken, of Lincoln, Ill., and two sisters, Mrs. Marcella King, of Millington, and Mrs. Milissa Ruckman, of Westwood.

Funeral services will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Loyal Young Graham, Jr., of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate. Burial will be in Hazelwood cemetery.

EX-MAYOR OF BOUND BROOK SEEKS CONGRESSIONAL SEAT

Bound Brook, March 27—The boom of former Mayor Charles C. Kenyon, of Somerville, as a candidate for Congress on the Progressive ticket from the Fourth Congressional District, was formally launched here last night at the annual dollar dinner of the Bound Brook Progressive Club, in the chapel of the Congregational church. Mr. Kenyon, who was one of the speakers, casually referred to his candidacy, but when A. Crozier Reeves, of Trenton, mentioned Mr. Kenyon's name in connection with the Cogressional nomination the diners applauded enthusiastically.

One hundred Progressive, from all parts of Somerset county, attended the dinner and listened to speeches expounding the policies and doctrines of the party by Mr. Kenyon, Mr. Reeves, George T. Hughes, of Watchung, and Robert H. Elder, of Brooklyn. Irving S. Whiting was toastmaster.

About Spring Styles in the Ready-to-Wear Hats at $1.95 to $4.50

Judging from the innumerable expressions of admiration we have heard so lavishly bestowed upon them, they are the most pleasing Hats in Newark for the price. They are the result of careful thought and skillful trimmings with inexpensive materials, giving effects that every woman desires without requiring an extravagant expenditure.

There is a marked distinction between our Ready-to-Wear Hats and Trimmed Hats. Those of the latter class are made, or rather trimmed, in our own workrooms, and only on rare occasions are two made exactly alike. Hats of the former class, however, are purchased in large quantities from New York milliners, who make a business of copying expensive Paris models. Because the quality of the material is not quite as good as that in the foreign hats, and by reason of them being made in large quantities, the cost is materially reduced. The style and chic in these hats, though, is as good as their inspirations, and surely they answer the purpose exceedingly well for an inexpensive morning or runabout Hat. The colorings are most pleasing. Prices from $1.95 to $4.50.

NEWARK POLICE PENSION BILL PASSES ASSEMBLY

Trenton, March 27—The Newark police pension bill was passed by the Assembly yesterday without a vote in opposition, after Mr. Byrne had spoken for it.

Mr. Byrne explained that the plan applied only to Newark and Jersey City, the other cities in the State operating their police pension under another statute. Mr. Byrne said the bill was approved by the entire police department and also by the police commissioners.

SENTENCE OF ABSCONDER J. FRANK BEST POSTPONED

Trenton, March 27—The sentencing of J. Frank Best for embezzling $5,000 from the Netcong National Bank, was postponed yesterday by Judge Haight in the United States District Court, until next Tuesday. Best, who was not represented by counsel, had asked for an opportunity to confer with former Senator Jacob C. Price, of Sussex county, before being sentenced. It is presumed that Best is desirous of having a plea for clemency presented in his behalf.

Sentence was suspended by Judge Haight in the case of Edward Whalen, a nineteen-year-old youth of New York, who was charged with stealing twenty-four barrels of apples from a freight car at Jersey City. Whalen sold the apples in New York and the Federal authorities are seeking the purchaser, who is supposed to be an habitual trafficker in stolen goods. Whalen will be required to report to the probation officer in Hoboken.

FULL PROGRAM IS PROVIDED FOR OCEAN GROVE SEASON

Ocean Grove, March 27.—Despite the removed reprisal of curtailed exercises on the part of the Camp Meeting Association in case of the institution of a borough government here, that body has practically completed its plans for a full summer program. The plans comprehend a larger and more varied program than usual, and two oratorios are included.

The auditorium services will be started the last Supday in June, continuing until the latter part of September. To supply the auditorium pulpit the most eminent ministers in this country will be secured. There will be the customary conventions, institutes and anniversary gatherings. Mrs. Maud Booth will speak on a Sunday night around camp meeting time. Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, whose speeches helped to make Georgia "dry," is to attend here during temperance week. Gypsy Smith, the evangelist, will be heard five days of the camp meeting. Included in the musical features will be the Marine Band, Sousa's Band, popular concerts, the "Storm" daily and two oratorios, most likely "Elijah" and "Messiah." For the latter director Tali Esen Morgan has available choruses in Brooklyn, New York and Newark, numbering more than 1,000 voices.

The leaders have been retained. These are Rev. Dr. C. H. Mead and Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan, of New York, for the young people's meeting; Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Henry Wheeler, of Ocean Grove, for the holiness services, and Miss Helen Gertrude Rumsey, of New York, for the twilight revival. Rev. Dr. T. L. Wilson, of Yonkers, will have charge of the Bible class; Joseph A. Hudson, of Philadelphia, the intermediate Sunday-school, and Mrs. W. H. Skirm, of Trenton, the primary Sunday-school. The junior chapel service is to be conducted by Mrs. Joseph A. Hudson. Miss Ruth Harris, of Jersey City, returns as soloist for the holiness and twilight meetings, and Donald Chalmers, of New York, will sing daily at the young people's service. Mr. Morgan again will be director-general of music and entertainments.

The annual camp meeting, continuing for ten days, will be held the latter part of August, lapping over into September. Bishop Luther B. Wilson and Rev. Dr. A. E. Ballard will supervise the camp services, and it is expected the bishop will give daily Bible expositions.

All of the plans for the summer will be submitted for ratification to the association at its semi-annual meeting.

EUGENE F. KINKEAD.

Eugene F. Kinkead, who is to resign his seat in Congress to accept President Wilson's appointment to the position of postmaster of Jersey City, was born in Ireland, March 27, 1876. In infancy he accompanied his parents to America, the family settling in New Jersey. Mr. Kinkead was educated at Seton Hall College. After leaving college he engaged in business in Newark. He took an active interest in Democratic politics and has represented the Ninth New Jersey district in Congress since 1909. During his career in Congress Representative Kinkead has been conspicuous for his fight against the so-called Beef Trust and has persistently urged criminal action against the big meat packers for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

CLARK REVOLTS AGAINST WILSON

Speaker Openly Opposes Repeal on Tolls.

HE WILL VOTE AGAINST IT

Drags Into Controversy Issue of Gag Rule—Bitter Factional Fight Regarded as Opened Within the Party—First Gun For 1916.

Washington, March 27.—That a crisis is imminent in the Wilson administration over its program for the repeal of the tolls exemption clause in the Panama canal act is the consensus of opinion when Speaker Champ Clark joined the other leaders who are opposing the president's wishes.

In a statement issued Speaker Clark throws a new issue into the controversy. He vigorously attacks the rule which the administration forces have sought to impose on the house and which would limit debate on the repeal bill to twenty hours and otherwise curtail the rights of members of the house.

Mr. Clark declares that he can no longer look the house in the face if he were to give his support to any such rule. His statement throws into the present controversy the issue whether or not the Democrats will stand by the record they made in fighting Speaker Cannon and the old Republican regime for the liberalization of the rules of the house. Speaker Clark has called upon the Democrats of the house to say whether or not they will sanction this return to gag methods.

Mr. Clark's Statement.

Here is the statement issued by Speaker Clark:

"I am dead against the rule on the tolls question and intend to vote against it. I will not stultify myself by voting for any such rule.

"I led the fight to liberalize the rules and practices of the house, thereby imperilling my political future. We won that long and bitter fight and it was the first Democratic victory in eighteen years. Time and time again I declared that I would not advocate a thing when in the minority that I would not advocate when in the majority.

"The Democrats won the house in 1910, the first time in sixteen years. I was unanimously nominated for speaker and duly elected by every Democratic vote in the house, with the hearty good will of every Republican, because they believed that I am a truthful man.

"In order to liberalize the rules and practices of the house I voluntarily relinquished a large portion of the powers of the speaker, which I could have retained by making a fight, but I honestly believed that the speaker had too much power under the old system for the good of the house and of our institutions.

"We have a rule reported on a bill on the greatest question presented in my twenty years in the house, beside which tariff bills sink into pitiable insignificance, a bill which if passed will change our foreign policy which we have maintained for 120 years, and only twenty hours for debate are permitted under this proposed rule and the right to amend is absolutely prohibited and no intervening motion permitted except one motion, to recommit.

"On such an important and far reaching measure there should have been at least a week for debate, with the unlimited right of amendment.

"Surely there is nothing sacred about the Sims bill, and there is no reason for this mad rush. I will not be a party to ramming such a rule down the throats of members."

ENDS LIFE WITH HUSBAND.

Both Are Driven to Suicide by His Poor Health.

New York, March 27.—Frank Lunow, sixty-four years old, and his wife, Agnes, thirty years his junior, were found dead in the dining room in the basement of an apartment house at 535 West One Hundred and Sixty-second street. They had killed themselves by inhaling gas.

Lunow was the janitor of the apartment house. He had been operated on for cancer at a downtown hospital a month ago and had since then been trying to convalesce at home, while his wife was forced to do all the furnace tending and sweeping. She grew more and more despondent while her husband's health continued to fail.

Lunow was informed that he could not live for many more weeks. He told his wife the news. The pair then fixed up gas tubes. David Wilkins, the elevator boy, found them.

BREATHE FREEYL! OPEN NOSTRILS AND STUFFED HEAD---END CATARRH

Instant Relief When Nose and Head Are Clogged from a Cold—Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges—Dull Headache Vanishes.

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely, dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleasing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear. Adv.

GREAT PAINTINGS BY TIEPOLO MAY BE BROUGHT TO AMERICA

"COMBAT OF ROMAN WARRIORS AND ASIATICS" BY TIEPOLO

Mr. F. Kleinberger, head of the Kleinberger Galleries, of Paris and New York, has acquired from Baron Hiller von Eichholz, of Vienna, the well known five paintings by Giovanni Pattista Tiepolo, which the artist early in the eighteenth century painted for the Palace of St. Pantaleon, then belonging to the Venetian nobles of the family of Dolfin. Baron Eichholz bought them before the Pacca law forbidding the exportation of works of art from Italy was in force.

One of the best known of the five is the "Combat of Roman Warriors and Asiatics," which is full of carnage and action.

Tiepolo was born in Venice in 1696, died in Madrid in 1770 and has been called the last great decorative painter of the Venetian school.

General Ewart Joins In Latest Dissension, Being Offended at Government's Action—Premier Asquith Urges Them to Reconsider Their Step.

London, March 27.—Field Marshal Sir John French, chief of the general staff of the British army and one of those who signed the memorandum guaranteeing to the officers in Ireland that they would not be required to serve against Ulster, resigned his commission.

Adjutant General Sir John Spencer Ewart handed in his resignation at the same time with the field marshal.

It was formally announced that Premier Asquith's expected statement as to his conference with these officers and his audience with the king would not be made before Monday. This was taken to indicate beyond any doubt that every effort was being made to induce Sir John and General Ewart to withdraw their resignations.

As one of the members of the war council who signed the Gough treaty Field Marshal French took offense at the action of the premier in repudiating the document, which, he understood, was approved by the cabinet. He is understood to be firm in his determination to retire.

The resignations of the two generals gave peculiar emphasis to the opinion current here that the English cabinet, which has been fighting for its life since the crisis on Ulster began, is on the verge of collapse. The visit of Premier Asquith to the king at this juncture lends color to the belief that nothing short of the unexpected can keep him in office.

A conference of practically all the general officers of the army in England was in progress at the war office. The purpose of the conference was not stated, but in Dublin General Gough declared the officers would hold the war council to its promises.

Believe Asquith Blundered.

The general impression is that Premier Asquith's belated repudiation of the "Gough treaty" in the commons only temporarily averts the downfall of his cabinet. Many Liberals regard the retention of Colonel Seely as war minister as a most serious blunder. The premier repudiated his temporizing with the officers stationed in Ireland, but by failing to accept Colonel Seely's resignation they believe Asquith placed the government in a position from which it will not be able to emerge without disruption.

It is declared that the officers of the Irish commands will never consent to fight Ulster. Brigadier General Gough stated his position in an interview.

"We have a guarantee signed by the army council which the premier cannot repudiate without overthrowing the council," said General Gough. "We will hold the council to its promise, but if the premier stands by his statement made yesterday I fear the entire question may be reopened."

In all Opposition quarters, as well as among Laborites, Socialists and Nationalists, it is emphatically declared that the fight is far from a conclusion. Rising out of the struggle will be the drawing of a clear line as between the aristocratic and democratic factions.

Showers today; colder in north and central portions; tomorrow fair; moderate south winds.

LORD MORELY.

He May Also Tender Resignation as Lord President.

Lord Morely of Blackburn, who holds the office of lord president of the council, it is believed will follow the example of Colonel Seely and Sir John French and resign. Lord Morely in the course of his speech in the house of lords on the Ulster dispute made the important admission that the two unauthorized paragraphs added to the letter of General Hubert Gough assuring the officer that he will not be compelled to coerce the Orangemen were drafted by Seely in consultation with himself.

NEEDLEWORK

A PRETTY EMBROIDERED COMBINATION FOR THE EASTER BRIDE

This very pretty combination garment which might, from its appearance, be an imported French model, is very easy to make. Any girl can have dainty hand-embroidered underwear such as this, if she will make it herself, for the materials cost less than the cheapest of ready-made garments. The combination of chemise and drawers, in one piece, does away with all unnecessary fullness at the waist-line and is a most comfortable garment. The pattern 8633, comes in sizes 32, 36 and 40; requiring 2⅞-yards of 30-inch material or 2⅛-yards of 36-inch material for the 36-inch size. Nainsook, batiste, handkerchief linen, long-cloth and some of the trade-marked, cotton lingerie materials are all appropriate for making these garments. The embroidery may be stamped with transfer pattern 14565 which includes a design for a corset-cover or chemise, and 2 1-3 yards of scalloping for the drawers. This design may be embroidered entirely in solid work and buttonholing or the dots may be worked as eyelets. The pattern may be adapted to a chemise and petticoat combination: to separate corset-cover and drawers or to a nightgown, in which case, the ruffles would be used for the sleeves. The design although, seemingly elaborate, is really very simple to do and can be successfully worked by the most inexperienced embroidress in a few afternoons. By making your underwear at home, and trimming it with hand-work which is the most serviceable and satisfactory finish, you can have copies of the exclusive French lingerie at less than one-third its price.

The pattern for the combination garment, 8033, and hot-iron transfer pattern 14565 can be supplied to readers on receipt of price, 15 cents each.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

An excellent model for a separate skirt is shown in No. 8284. It is in three pieces, has a slightly raised waistline and may be made with or without the circular tunic section. This section, however, applied as it is, just below the waistline, gives the new flared hip, which is a feature of so many of the new gowns and suits.

Gaberdine is one of the new materials for suits, skirts and coats: it shows a fine twill, on the order of a whip-cord, is dressy looking, and to all appearances should wear very well. Taffeta is very much favored for separate skirts. Among the other silks for this purpose are moire, crepe de chine, faille and silk poplin. This design is one that is especially suited to general or business wear combined with a plain tailored blouse of crepe de chine, silk poplin or linen.

It may be copied in size 24 with four yards of 36 inch material or 3⅞ of 42 inch material. Patterns cut in five sizes, 22 to 30.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

WHY NOT TRY MUSSELS?

SUPPER MENU.
Mussel Salad.
Sliced Ham With Chili Sauce.
Baking Powder Biscuit Sandwiches.
Chocolate Cake.
Canned Berries.
Tea.

MUSSELS are called the "poor man's oysters," and in communities where they can be obtained they make an economical and palatable addition to the menu.

With Worcestershire Sauce.

Mussel Salad.—Mussels are excellent as a salad. They should be washed carefully and boiled for fifteen minutes, then drained and taken from the shells. The hot mussels are put in melted butter, salt, pepper, lemon juice and a little Worcestershire. They are served hot, with salad.

Steamed Mussels.—Steam the mussels until the shells open; then put them, with their juice, in a bowl with butter, salt, pepper and paprika. In a pan fry some chopped onion, garlic and parsley with a bay leaf and some thyme. Put the mussels in this mixture and let them simmer for twenty minutes. Thicken with a little flour if desired.

Served on the Shell.

Mussels With Hollandaise Sauce.—Steam three dozen mussels as above. Take them from the shells with their own juice and a good pat of butter, half a pinch of salt and the same amount of pepper. Parboil for three minutes, adding half a pint of hollandaise sauce. Stew well together for two minutes without boiling and add one teaspoonful of chopped parsley and the juice of half a lemon. Serve each mussel in a half shell, with gravy.

Mussels With Rice.—Wash the mussels well, set them in a saucepan at the side of the fire, cover closely and shake them from time to time. They will gradually open and give out their liquor. When they are well opened turn them out on a sieve and let them drain thoroughly. Take the mussels out of their shells and separate them from the weed attached to their inside. Boil some rice as if for curry. When drained let it dry well. Add a lump of butter to it, about a gill or more of the liquor from the mussels, season with pepper, salt and nutmeg. Add the mussels, heat all up together and serve very hot.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Wise Farmer and the Foolish Bull.

The Bull Was Very Angry.

"THE bull thought he'd like to go out in the fields and take a walk," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn. "It was a nice day, really, almost warm, and he'd felt quite tired from so many, many days spent in his shed. The farmer had left the door open leading into his stall, so at least he was getting fresh air. But he decided he wanted more than that. He wanted good exercise. A walk would do. He even felt energetic enough to chase anything red if he saw it, for even a run was not too much for the strength he felt he had. So he went out and had a beautiful day.

"He plowed through the fields where the frost was coming out of the ground and making it very soft and sloppy, and he thought that was splendid. It made him feel so well, and he was quite ready for his evening meal and a good night's rest when the farmer drove him in in the late afternoon.

"The next day was really quite cold. It was one of the raw, cold days that come sometimes in the spring. The farmer was going into the village to spend the day. He thought that he'd better not open the door for the bull that day because the bull would be very apt to get a heavy cold and he would not be around all day. So he went off, leaving the door closed. He also fixed a little wooden bar across the door of the shed to keep the bull in for the sake of safety.

"Now, the bull was very angry when he found that the door had had a bar put across it. He had seen the farmer fix that bar, and he was bound he'd knock it down. So he kicked and kicked. Finally he did succeed in breaking the wooden bar. The door itself was easy enough to open. He only had to lift one crooked side of it with his foot. And then he got out. The air did seem mighty sharp and cold, but he stayed out as long as he could stand it. He didn't enjoy it a scrap, and the cold wind went right through him. But he was so extremely stubborn that he didn't go in until he saw the farmer returning from the village, for he wanted the farmer to see him out.

"Of course the farmer saw him and was very much worried, as he was afraid that the bull would suffer for his stubbornness. He didn't punish him, but gave him just as good a supper as ever, which really made the bull feel rather ashamed.

"All night long the bull lay in his shed with such a pain in his head. His legs ached, he felt stiff, and he had such bad dreams.

"When morning came he felt quite worn out. After a few days, though, with the farmer's good, kind care, he was better again. But he realized the farmer knew best and would always let him out on the nice days, and he vowed he would never again get mad at his good master, who kept him a good, strong, healthy bull."

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER IV.

IT was after four when Mr. Holcombe had finished going over the room. I offered to make both the gentlemen some tea, for Mr. Pitman had been an Englishman, and I had got into the habit of having a cupful in the afternoon, with a cracker or a bit of bread. But they refused. Mr. Howell said he had promised to meet a lady, and to bring her through the flooded district in a boat. He shook hands with me and smiled at Mr. Holcombe.

"You will have to restrain his enthusiasm, Mrs. Pitman," he said. "He is a bloodhound on the scent. If his baying gets on your nerves just send for me." He went down the stairs and stepped into the boat. "Remember, Holcombe," he called, "every well constituted murder has two things—a motive and a corpse. You haven't either, only a mass of piffling details."—

"If everybody waited until he saw flames instead of relying on the testimony of the smoke," Mr. Holcombe snapped, "what would the fire loss be?"

Mr. Howell poled his boat to the front door and, sitting down, prepared to row out.

"You are warned, Mrs. Pitman," he called to me. "If he doesn't find a body to fit the clews he's quite capable of making one to fill the demand."

"Horn"— said Mr. Holcombe, looking at the slip again. "The tail of the 'n' is torn off—evidently only part of a word. Hornet, Horning, Horner—Mrs. Pitman, will you go with me to the police station?"

I was more than anxious to go. In fact, I could not bear the idea of staying alone in the house, with heaven only knows what concealed in the depths of that muddy flood. I got on my wraps again, and Mr. Holcombe rowed me out. Peter plunged into the water to follow and had to be sent back. He sat on the lower step and whined. Mr. Holcombe threw him another piece of liver, but he did not touch it.

We rowed to the corner of Robinson street and Federal—it was before Federal street was raised above the flood level—and left the boat in charge of a boy there. And we walked to the police station. On the way Mr. Holcombe questioned me closely about the events of the morning, and I recalled the incident of the burned pillow slip. He made a note of it at once and grew very thoughtful.

He left me, however, at the police station. "I'd rather not appear in this, Mrs. Pitman," he said apologetically, "and I think better along my own lines—not that I have anything against the police; they've done some splendid work. But this case takes imagination, and the police department deals with facts. We have no facts yet. What we need, of course, is to have the man detained until we are sure of our case."

He lifted his hat and turned away, and I went slowly up the steps to the police station. Living, as I had, in a neighborhood where the police, like the poor, are always with us, and where the visits of the patrol wagon are one of those familiar sights that no amount of repetition enabled any of us to treat with contempt, I was uncomfortable until I remembered that my grandfather had been one of the first mayors of the city and that, if the patrol had been at my house more than once, the entire neighborhood would testify that my boarders were usually orderly.

At the door some one touched me on the arm. It was Mr. Holcombe again.

"I have been thinking it over," he said, "and I believe you'd better not mention the piece of paper that you found behind the washstand. They might say the whole thing is a hoax."

"Very well," I agreed, and went in.

The police sergeant in charge knew me at once, having stopped at my house more than once in flood time for a cup of hot coffee.

"Sit down, Mrs. Pitman," he said. "I suppose you are still making the best coffee and doughnuts in the city of Allegheny? Well, what's the trouble in your district? Want an injunction against the river for trespass?"

"The river has brought me a good bit of trouble," I said. "I'm—I'm worried, Mr. Sergeant. I think a woman from my house has been murdered, but I don't know."

"Murdered!" he said, and drew up his chair. "Tell me about it."

I told him everything, while he sat back with his eyes half closed and his fingers beating a tattoo on the arm of his chair.

When I finished he got up and went into an inner room. He came back in a moment.

"I want you to come in and tell that to the chief," he said, and led the way.

All told, I repeated my story three times that afternoon—to the sergeant, to the chief of police and the third time to both the others and two detectives.

The second time the chief made notes of what I said.

"Know this man Ladley?" he asked the others. None of them did, but they all knew of Jennie Brice and some of them had seen her in the theater.

Luckily what he learned over the telephone from the theater corroborated my story. Jennie Brice was not in the cast that week, but should have reported that morning (Monday) to rehearse the next week's piece. No message had been received from her and a substitute had been put in her place.

I Told Him Everything.

The chief hung up the receiver and turned to me. "You are sure about the clock, Mrs. Pitman?" he asked. "It was there when they moved upstairs to the room?"

"Yes, sir."

"You are certain you will not find it on the parlor mantel when the water goes down?"

"The mantels are uncovered now. It is not there."

"You think Ladley has gone for good?"

"Yes, sir."

"He'd be a fool to try to run away, unless—Graves, you'd better get hold of the fellow, and keep him until either the woman is found or the body. The river is falling. In a couple of days we will know if she is around the premises anywhere."

Before I left I described Jennie Brice for them carefully. Asked what she probably wore, if she had gone away as her husband said, I had no idea, she had a lot of clothes, and dressed a good bit. But I recalled that I had seen lying on the bed the black and white dress with the red collar, and they took that down, as well as the brown valise.

The chief rose and opened the door for me himself. "If she actually left town at the time you mention," he said, "she ought not to be hard to find. There are not many trains before 7 in the morning, and most of them are locals."

"And—and if she did not, if he—do you think she is in the house—or—or—the cellar?"

"Not unless Ladley is more of a fool than I think he is," he said, smiling. "Personally I believe she has gone away, as he says she did. But if she hasn't— He probably took the body with him when he said he was getting medicine and dropped it in the current somewhere. But we must go slow with all this. There's no use shouting 'wolf' yet."

"But—the towel?"

"He may have cut himself shaving. It has been done."

"And the knife?"

He shrugged his shoulders good naturedly.

"I've seen a perfectly good knife spoiled opening a bottle of pickles."

"But the slipper? And the clock?"

"My good woman, enough shoes and slippers are forgotten in the bottoms of cupboards year after year in good time and are found floating around the streets to make all the old clothes men in town happy. I have seen almost everything floating about during one of these annual floods."

"I dare say you never saw an onyx clock floating around," I replied a little sharply. I had no sense of humor that day. He stopped smiling at once and stood tugging at his mustache.

"No," he admitted. "An onyx clock sinks, that's true. That's a very nice little point, that onyx clock. He may be trying to sell it or perhaps"— He did not finish.

I went back immediately, only stopping at the market to get meat for Mr. Reynolds' supper. It was after half past 5, and dusk was coming on. I got a boat and was rowed directly home. Peter was not at the foot of the steps. I paid the boatman and let him go and turned to go up the stairs. Some one was speaking in the hall above.

I have read somewhere that no two voices are exactly alike, just as no two violins ever produce the same sound. I think it is what they call the timbre that is different. I have, for instance, never heard a voice like Mr. Pitman's, although Mr. Harry Lauder's in a phonograph resembles it. And voices have always done for me what odors do for some people, revived forgotten scenes and old memories. But the memory that the voice at the head of the stairs brought back was not very old, although I had forgotten it. I seemed to hear again all at once the lapping of the water Sunday morning as it began to come in over the doorsill; the sound of Terry ripping up the parlor carpet and Mrs. Ladley calling me a she devil in the next room, in reply to this very voice.

But when I got to the top of the stairs it was only Mr. Howell, who had brought his visitor to the flood district, and on getting her splashed with the muddy water had taken her to my house for a towel and a cake of soap.

I lighted the lamp in the hall and Mr. Howell introduced the girl. She was a pretty girl, slim and young, and she had taken her wetting good naturedly.

"I know we are intruders, Mrs. Pitman," she said, holding out her hand. "Especially now, when you are in trouble."

"I have told Miss Harvey a little," Mr. Howell said, "and I promised to show her Peter, but he is not here."

I think I had known it was my sister's child from the moment I lighted the lamp. There was something of Alma in her, not Alma's hardness or haughtiness, but Alma's dark blue eyes with black lashes, and Alma's nose. Alma was always the beauty of the family. What with the day's excitement and seeing Alma's child like this, in my house, I felt things going round and clutched at the stair rail. Mr. Howell caught me.

"Why, Mrs. Pitman!" he said. "What's the matter?"

I got myself in hand in a moment and smiled at the girl.

"Nothing at all," I said. "Indigestion, most likely. Too much tea the last day or two and not enough solid food. I've been too anxious to eat."

Lida—for she was that to me at once, although I had never seen her before—Lida was all sympathy and sweetness. She actually asked me to go with her to a restaurant and have a real dinner. I could imagine Alma, had she known! But I excused myself.

"I have to cook something for Mr. Reynolds," I said, "and I'm better now, anyhow, thank you. Mr. Howell, may I speak to you for a moment?"

He followed me along the back hall, which was dusk.

"I have remembered something that I had forgotten, Mr. Howell," I said. "On Sunday morning the Ladleys had a visitor."

"Yes?"

"They had very few visitors."

"I see."

"I did not see him, but I heard his voice." Mr. Howell did not move, but I fancied he drew his breath in quickly. "It sounded—it was not by any chance you?"

"I? A newspaper man, who goes to bed at 3 a. m. on Sunday morning, up and about at 10!"

"I didn't say what time it was," I said sharply.

But at that moment Lida called from the front hall.

"I think I hear Peter," she said. "He is shut in somewhere, whining."

We went forward at once. She was right. Peter was scratching at the door of Mr. Ladley's room, although I had left the door closed and Peter in the hall. I let him out, and he crawled to me on three legs, whimpering. Mr. Howell bent over him and felt the fourth.

"Poor little beast!" he said. "His leg is broken."

He made a splint for the dog, and with Lida helping they put him to bed in a clothes basket in my upstairs kitchen. It was easy to see how things lay with Mr. Howell. He was all eyes for her. He made excuses to touch her hand or her arm, little caressing touches that made her color heighten. And with it all there was a sort of hopelessness in his manner, as if he knew how far the girl was out of his reach. Knowing Alma and her pride, I knew better than they how hopeless it was.

I was not so sure about Lida. I wondered if she was in love with the boy or only in love with love. She was very young, as I had been. God help her if, like me, she sacrificed everything to discover too late that she was only in love with love.

"Where are you going little Dutch maid?"

"To the Woman's Exchange madame!" she said.

"Will you come with me?"

"Why, what shall I see?"

"The prettiest things in the world," cried she.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE WINS POINT IN MASSACHUSETTS

Woman Suffrage scored a victory in Massachusetts, yesterday, when the House for the first time concurred with the Senate in adopting a resolution which proposes an amendment to the constitution by which the word "male" will be stricken from the provision describing the qualifications of a voter. The vote was 164 to 39.

This is the first time in the history of the Bay State that a woman suffrage resolution has ever passed both houses of the Legislature. The State Constitution there, as in New Jersey, requires two successive sessions of the Legislature to pass this resolution before it can go to the people. Massachusetts will therefore compete with New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania for the honor of being the first of the Eastern States to give its women the vote.

Each new State that puts the question of "Votes for Women" to the voters gives a new impulse to the interest which has everywhere been growing in the past few years and which is now centreing in the States where the campaign is on.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS SEND PETITION TO CONGRESS

Clarence B. LaRue and N. S. Wardner, representing the temperance and good citizenship committee of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union, have sent a communication to Congressman William E. Tuttle at Washington, urging him to do all in his power for the passage of the bill in Congress providing for the submission to the States of an amendment to the Federal Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and requesting him to stand with the Christian citizenship of his constituency and not with the brewers and the liquor element.

The communication, the committee states, represents about 400 Christian Endeavorers of Plainfield and vicinity. Similar communications have been sent to the representatives in Washington by other religious bodies in this city and vicinity, including the Seventh-Day Adventists.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

ABANDON CITY HALL PROJECT

Increased Expenses Holds up the Plans for the Present.

JUMP IN TAX RATE

Owing to Needs of City Departments Municipal Garbage Disposal to Be Dropped This Year—Street Improvements Planned.

In view of the increased amount of money needed for the several city departments the plan to purchase a tract of land upon which to erect a city hall, has practically been abandoned for this year, according to a semi-official authoritative statement. The public affairs committee, of which Councilman Richard A. Claybrook is the chairman, does not feel justified in pressing the claims for this improvement under the present conditions, realizing that it will be a difficult matter to meet the requirements of the various departments.

Another thing that will probably be dropped this year is the plan for a municipal system of collecting and disposing of garbage and ashes, but the commitee having that matter in hand promises some decided improvements over the present antiquated methods, about which there has been considerable complaint in the past.

The finance committee of the Council is having its own troubles in preparing the annual budget. Owing to the fact that it cannot be wholly made up until it is known what the school and county tax will be, and while the local amounts can be determined within two or three weeks possibly, the complete budget will not be passed upon before May.

From an unofficial source it is said that the finance committee will be very lucky if it is able to keep the tax rate down to $2. The present rate is $1.87. Some have gone so far as to predict that there will be an increase of twenty-five points.

The increase is largely due to the need for greater school facilities, which includes the present addition to the High School. Beside the Board of Education is planning to build a new twelve-room school on Evergreen avenue during the year. The fire department requires more money, it being planned to purchase another motor apparatus, while the streets and sewers committee will require a substantial increase, the latter on account of the joint trunk sewer project.

The matter of repairing streets has been considered at some length and it is understood that the committee has hit upon a plan which it is believed will help to solve this problem for some years to come. The idea is to join with the property-owners in laying a permanent pavement in front of their properties, the property-owners to be assessed a fixed amount for the work and then given ten years if necessary to pay the same. The pavement to be laid would be expected to last for at least twenty years, and the councilmen believe that property-owners would be willing to spend a little extra money if thereby their properties would be materially enhanced in value.

Under the present method the city is spending thousands of dollars each year on streets, and there is nothing to show for it. The only really permanent pavement in the city is the brick in the business section, but the Council is not satisfied that it would be wise to extend that kind of pavement to the residential section.

Another appropriation that the Council must meet is the one for the Plainfield Public Library. Under the law the library is entitled to a certain percentage of the city tax and there is no alternative. The Council is compelled to make the appropriation each year. Nearly every other department is in need of more money, and the difficult thing is to keep the appropriations within a reasonable amount.

The Board of School Estimate expect to hold a session soon to go over its budget and this, it is expected, will be no easy task. That there will be a determined effort to keep the appropriation down is known to be a fact, and it is said that the schools are not likely to receive any more than is actually necessary.

Regarding the bonds for the joint sanitary sewer project the Council plans to issue them as the money is needed for the work. At present the Council has no idea that the whole amount of issue will reach the $300,000 decided upon. It believes that a considerable less amount will cover the city's share of the expense.

OFFERED FINE POSITION.

Miss Cora M. Charlton, of 326 East Fifth street, one of the undergraduates of Muhlenberg Hospital, has been offered a splendid position as private secretary for Dr. F. G. Briggs at his new sanitorium in Buffalo, N. Y. She has not decided whether to accept the position or not. Miss Charlton left the hospital about a year ago.

"ANDOVER DANCE" GIVEN AT PARK CLUB

Pleasing Social Function Enjoyed by One Hundred Guests.

One of the pleasing social functions of the early spring season was a dance given at the Park Club, last night by four young men from this city, who are students at Philips Academy, Andover, Mass., the affair being called an "Andover dance." The mothers of the young men, comprising Mrs. F. W. Wallace, Mrs. Augustus V. Heeley, Mrs. William A. Garrigues and Mrs. J. P. Stevens, acted as the chaperones, and received the young people.

There were about one hundred guests from the city and the borough, and all thoroughly enjoyed the program of popular dances given by VanEps brothers. There were numerous encores. During an intermission refreshments were served by Mrs. Henry Johnson of the club. The large auditorium was attractively decorated by Mrs. L. J. Denton, there being a profusion of palms, greens and spring flowers.

MISS BARTELS SUES PEAPACK DRUGGIST

Seeks Damages for Injuries Under Employers' Liability Act.

In the Somerset County Courts, at Somerville, yesterday, Miss Grace Bartels, of Peapack, brought suit against Elmer Courter, a druggist of that place, under the liability act, for damages because of injuries received by her while in the employ of the druggist in December, 1912. Besides conducting a drug store at Peapack, Mr. Courter's place of business was also used by the New York Telephone Company as a telephone exchange. Miss Bartels was employed by Mr. Courter as the day attendant.

For the accommodation of the night operator a wooden couch was used for sleeping purposes, which during the daytime was drawn up to the ceiling out of the way, and suspended over the head of the operator. While at her duties the couch in some manner became loose from its fastenings and fell upon the head of Miss Bartels. After being attended by a physician, Miss Bartels was able to continue her work for the week, but since then has not been able to continue in her usual employment as a result of the injuries.

After a number of witnesses had been examined, counsel for both sides were requested to submit briefs, when Judge Beekman will render a decision. Prosecutor Pope represented Miss Bartels, while Druggist Courter's interests were looked after by an attorney from Newark, who in fact represented the insurance company with whom Courter was insured against loss through accident to his employes.

"THE VILLAGE POSTOFFICE" GIVEN AT TRINITY CHURCH

Under the auspices of the Loyal Band of the Trinity Reformed church a play entitled "The Village Postoffice," was given, last night, in the Sunday-school rooms by the members of the band and school. The scene of the play was laid in an old country grocery store where the "rubes" were in the habit of congregating in the evening to tell stories and gossip about their neighbors. It vividly portrayed the life in a village where the postoffice is maintained in connection with the store.

In the course of the play Miss S. Etta Raybert, whose able directions made it a success, was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. Putnam's orchestra of six pieces furnished the musical numbers. An audience of about four hundred witnessed the play.

The people who took part were as follows: The Misses Jennie Sears, Marie Hahn, Ella Miller, Edna Dilts, Helen Woodruff, Nellie McAfee, Maud McAfee, Madaline Blair, Mrs. William Trembath, Mrs. Sidney Frazee, and Alfred Willett, Henry Kinney Clarence Rittenhouse, J. Arthur Thompson, Elmer French, C. F. Colthar, Ralph Gay, Oscar Dilts, Sidney Frazee, Willard McAfee, Charles Harvey, George E. Volk, William Trembath, Arthur Bacher, Lawrence French and Carman Trembath.

DECIDE TO FORM A FLOWER GUILD

Purpose and Work Explained by Miss Cornelia K. Hood, of New York.

A large and enthusiastic audience gathered at the Friends' meeting-house, last night, when Miss Cornelia K. Hood, of New York, delivered an address in the interests of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild. W. D. Williams presided, while Robert Love conducted the devotional services. Rev. F. L. Greene made the opening prayer.

Miss Hood gave a very interesting sketch of the founding and the early history of the work as it has been carried on under the direction of the guild. The institutional features of the work were explained with the aid of stereopticon slides, illustrating the gardens, flower window boxes and hospital work. An earnest plea for the co-operation of Plainfield people was made by Miss Hood and the response came in the form of definite plans for the organization of a local guild, such as are located in 350 other towns and cities throughout the country. Forty-four larger cities are the distributing centres. Among the other speakers beside Miss Hood were Miss Mabel C. Phillips, of the Charity Organization Society; Robert Love, of Evona chapel, and Rev Cortlandt H. Mallery, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

At the short business session which followed the address of the evening, Robert Love was appointed a committee to arrange for a meeting to be held next Tuesday night at the Friends' meeting-house, when the organization will be made permanent. Fifteen of those present signed the charter roll. The following churches were represented: Grace Episcopal, Heavenly Rest Episcopal, First Baptist, First Presbyterian, Congregational, Trinity Reformed, Unitarian, Hope chapel, Evona chapel and the Society of Friends.

WINFLOW RUSSELL DORTHY WEDS MISS LAURA LORD

Miss Laura Anthony Lord, daughter of David S. Lord, of East Fifth street, and Winflow Russell Dorthy, son of Mrs. Ella M. Dorthy, of the New Madison building, were quietly married at noon today at the bride's home. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and was witnessed only by relatives and a few intimate friends, owing to the recent death of the bride's mother.

Miss Lord, who was given away by her father, was attired in a gown of white satin, trimmed with white shadow lace. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by Miss Louise Ricketts, of East Fifth street, as maid of honor, who carried pink carnations. George Ball, of the borough, was best man.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served and an informal reception tendered the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Dorthy left this afternoon by the Clyde Line for Atlanta, Ga., where the former has accepted a position and where they will make their home. The bridegroom, who has many friends in the city and borough, was previously employed in New York.

MICHAEL M'NAMARA DIES AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS

Michael McNamara, of West Third street, died suddenly at his home, last night, after but a few days' illness. Mr. McNamara was a native of Ireland, coming to this country when a lad. He was in the employ of the Pond Machine Tool Company for twenty years. He was associated with Division No. 4, A. O. H., and was a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's church, and Court Plainfield, F. O. O. F.

Beside the widow, Mr. McNamara is survived by three children, the Misses Mary and Helen, and Austin McNamara, and two sisters, Mrs. J. F. Conde, of High Bridge, and Mrs. George Locke, of Clinton. The funeral services will be held on Tuesday morning, from St. Mary's R. C. church at 8:30.

SUSTAINED BAD GASH.

Simon Hirsch, of Watchung avenue, sustained a severe cut in the fleshy part of his right hand yesterday afternoon, when he thrust his hand through a mirror in trying to save himself from a fall, having slipped on the tile floor of the bathroom at his home. Dr. Endicott, who was called, had to administer an anaesthetic to him in order to insert twelve stitches in the wound. The loss of blood compelled Mr. Hirsch to take to his bed, but no serious results are anticipated.

BORROWED HAMMER CAUSED A FRACAS

Three Youths Started a Free-for-all Fight on North Avenue Last Night.

William Fisher, of Philadelphia, and Stanley Hough and Frank Thwaite, who arrived here recently from England, were arraigned in the city police court, this morning, charged with being participants in a free for-all fight on North avenue, last night.

Fisher and Thwaite are employed as machinists in a local shop and the former loaned a hammer to Thwaite which he alleges was never returned. When Thwaite returned to the rooms occupied by the three in the second floor of the building located at 117 North avenue, he carried a new hammer, and Fisher requested him to "hand it over" for the one he loaned him. Thwaite refused to accept this compromise and Hough took his part the three carrying their argument to the street.

As the three came through the door of the North avenue building, Fisher waving the hammer frantically in the air, they encountered Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Police Chief Kiely who put a grand finale on the scrap by placing the participants in the fracas in a cell at police headquarters. When arraigned this morning all admitted to have been drinking and a fine of $2 was suspended over each.

WILL OF MRS. SUSAN YATES PROBATED

Property in This City Left to Three Daughters and a Son.

Elizabeth, March 28—The will of Mrs. Susan G. Yates, the widow of Joseph W. Yates, who died here on February 6, 1912, was admitted to probate before Surrogate Parrott, in Elizabeth, this morning. The will was made August 23, 1888, and a codicil was added in 1897 which eliminated one Charles Dyer, of Brooklyn, as an executor.

Since the will was made her husband, Joseph W. Yates, one of the executors, has died and William Nelson Cromwell, another executor, has announced his withdrawal. At the present time Fred W. Yates is the only surviving executor. The property was left to her husband and as he has since died it will be turned over to the son and three daughters as provided for in a conditional clause. Mayor Percy H. Stewart was a witness when the codicil was added in 1897.

CELEBRATE FORTY-FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, observed the forty-first anniversary of their wedding at their home last night. It was celebrated quietly in the form of a family gathering. Mr. and Mrs. Marsh were married in this city by the late Rev. Dr. David J. Yerkes, for many years pastor of the First Baptist church, and they have always reside in Plainfield.

The union has been blessed with six sons and two daughters, all of whom are living with one exception.

ROTHBERG DISTRIBUTING ANNIVERSARY CARNATIONS

Sam Rothberg, the popular young clothing merchant, is distributing carnations to customers who visit his place of business on West Front street today, the occasion being the observance of his second anniversary in business here.

The Rothberg store has been appropriately decorated with palms and cut flowers and many of the proprietor's friends called on him this morning and during the early hours of the afternoon.

CONCERT WAS ENJOYED.

A large number of music lovers gathered last night at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church and enjoyed the concert given under the auspices of the Cantata Society of the church. During the evening former pastor, F. J. Hubach, made a few remarks which took the nature of a farewell address to his former congregation.

NONPAREILS AT SOMERVILLE.

The Nonpareil Club, of this city, will appear at Somerville shortly in an amateur minstrel show. The event will occur at Germania Hall on April 23. Albert A. Shipley is the business manager.

OBJECT TO BROTHER AS ADMINISTRATOR

William A. Coddington Opposes Granting of Letters to Andrew Carney.

Opposition to the granting of letters of administration to Andrew Carney, of Plainfield, to administer the estate of his late brother, David J. Carney, who was editor and owner of the North Plainfield Review, and a job printing establishment in Plainfield proper, developed yesterday in the Somerset County Court, when William A. Coddington, a lawyer representing creditors of the estate, appeared before Judge Beekman and asked that the application of the decedent's brother be denied.

He gave as his reasons that the applicant was a plumber and knew nothing of the work of a newspaper or a job printing plant, that if Mr. Carney was appointed, the creditors would not get more than twenty-five per cent., and prayed that a receiver be appointed to dispose of the estate so as to satisfy in part the claims of the creditors. He said that he had learned from an authoritative source that both plants have been operated at a loss for some time.

The principal creditors for whom Mr. Coddington appeared are George M. La Monte, commissioner of the State Department of Insurance and Banking; Charles T. Fury, proprietor of a hotel in Trenton, and William L. Smalley, of Plainfield.

Winfield S. Angleman represented Mr. Carney, stating that his client was able to handle the disposition of his brother's estate, that Surrogate Calvin D. McMurtry had promised to give the letters of administration to his client and that consequently the mere issue of the papers themselves were incidental to the case. He claimed that his client was now the administrator and consequently practically the receiver of the assets of the estate. The case was laid over for further argument until Monday.

CITY OFFICIALS WITNESS EXHIBITION OF "PULMOTOR"

A demonstration of the "Pulmotor" was given at the Plainfield Gas Works, on East Fourth street, yesterday afternoon. This apparatus is used in restoring respiration to persons who have been partially asphyxiated or drowned. The demonstration was given under the direction of Harry Ellis, engineer for the southern division of the Public Service Gas Company. Mr. Ellis has handled, during the past year, nineteen cases requiring the use of this apparatus and in that number only two have failed to respond to the treatment.

The demonstration was attended by Fire Chief T. O. Doane, Police Chief Kiely, Councilmen John H. Cose and Theodore Martin, representatives of the Board of Health and Dr. A. H. Pittis, together with the entire corps of employes of the Public Service Gas Works in this city.

This machine will be kept at the gas works ready for service and will be available for emergency calls when requested. There are many cases in which respiration can be restored in no other manner and instances are on record where in drowning cases the victim has been restored after being under water for twenty minutes.

PLACED UNDER $400 BOND TO SUPPORT HIS FAMILY

Walter J. Ulmer, of 131 Elmwood place, was arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court, this morning, on a charge of non-support preferred by the local poor department. Ulmer has neglected to provide for his wife and three children, who have had to resort to the charity of neighbors for some weeks past. He was arrested on a similar charge some months ago and ordered to pay a certain amount each week.

Judge DeMeza ordered Ulmer to turn over $7 to the poor department each week, which will be used in the support of his family. He was held in $400 bonds to furnish the sum sipulated.

A BIRTHDAY COINCIDENCE.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Dunham, former well known residents of this city, are the happy parents of a son, to them at their home in New York, this morning. A coincidence in connection with the arrival of the infant is that today is the birthday of his great grandmother, Mrs. Abigail Briant, of Sandford avenue. Mrs. Dunham was formerly Miss Edna Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Harris, of Essex street.

John Dalley, of the borough, will conduct the W. C. T. U. meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

WIFE DESERTER GETS SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Richard Collins Ordered to Provide Stipulated Sum for Support of His Wife.

Richard Collins, of this city, who was arraigned before City Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court two weeks ago and pleaded guilty to a charge of non-support was brought before Judge James C. Connolly, in the court of Quarter Session, in Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon, and escaped with a suspended sentence.

Former Senator Fitzherbert, counsel for the defense, stated that Collins' employers in Dover would see to it that he defendant paid his wife a stipulated sum each week. He was charged with desertion by the local poor department and apprehended by the local police in Dover. Last August Collins was arraigned here on a similar charge after being arrested in Dover, and placed under bonds to furnish a certain amount each week for the support of his wife who lives here.

MRS. SENN REVERSES HER PLEA IN COURT

Her Latest Retraction Results in Reduction of Bail From $1,000 to $500.

Mrs. Edna Senn, who, with Edward J. O'Connor, was indicted for the embezzlement of a package containing $500 in cash and checks from the North avenue office of the United States Express Company, last November, retracted her plea of non vult in Quarter Sessions court, in Elizabeth, yesterday, and entered one of not guilty. Judge James C. Connolly order bail reduced from $1,000 to $500 and the date for the trial will be fixed later.

The defendant was arraigned before Judge Connolly on February 20 and at that time retracted her original plea of not guilty and entered one of non vult. Mrs. Senn's testimony played an important part in the trial of O'Connor who was acquitted of the charge of being an accomplice in the theft in the Circuit Court, February 19. Her alleged indescretions were brought out vividly by O'Connor's counsel during his arraignment and the testimony she offered in an effort to implicate O'Connor was shattered in the cross-examination.

The jury in O'Connor's case evidently accepted the defendant's story which was to the effect that he was the victim of the jealously-enraged Mrs. Senn, whom, it was alleged, conspired to ruin and degrade him. She has admitted impropriety with O'Connor since her husband left her two years ago.

The trial of the Senn woman has aroused considerable interest locally and while out on bail she is residing at her home on Westervelt avenue. A number of the local express company employes will be subpoenaed to testify at the trial of the woman when the date is set.

ALICE LLOYD AND COMPANY AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE TODAY

Alice Lloyd, assisted by Frank Fogarty and a company of seventy-five entertainers, touring under the direction of William Morris, will be the offering at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon and evening. MYSTERIOUS FIRE DESTROYED HOUSE

Midnight Blaze Reduced Three Story Structure and Contents to Ashes.

FIREMEN DO GOOD WORK

Loss Estimated to Reach $10,000—None at Home When Flames Were Discovered—Bad Roads Impede Fire Fighters Getting to Scene.

Mystery shrouds a conflagration that totally destroyed a three-story frame dwelling owned by Ernest Hand on Dixie lane, shortly before midnight. Many theories have been advanced concerning the cause of the fire that did damage estimated to reach $10,000 but nothing of a definite nature is known. While making his rounds in the Netherwood section at 11 o'clock Roundsman Saffron noticed a reflection in the sky and pulled box No. 68. A telephone alarm had previously reached fire headquarters and the Netherwood apparatus was despatched to the scene, but Chief Doane ordered the new auto engine and the men from the East Second street house out when the second call arrived.

When Chief Doane and his men reached the burning structure the house resembled a raging furnace and little could be done toward saving the doomed building. The firemen confined their attention to protecting two other frame dwellings in the immediate vicinity and good work on the part of the fire fighters was the only thing that kept these buildings from being consumed by the flames.

The reflection in the sky could be seen for miles around and the wooden structure and its inflammable contents burned with an intense heat that hampered the firemen considerably in their work. Heavy iron ornaments on the premises were cracked and melted by the heat and trees in the immediate vicinity were also scorched. Chief Doane directed a stream of hose on the shingled dwelling occupied by Soloman M. Rosenthal, which is situated scarcely twenty-five feet from the Hand property and a frame garage about fifteen feet away. So effective was the work of the fire fighters that these buildings were not even scorched. Mr. Rosenthal and other property owners in that vicinity spoke in a commendatory manner of the work of Chief Doane and his corps this morning.

A southeasterly corner is all that can now be seen of the handsome building which has been occupied for the past six months by David L. Finney, who could not be located this morning. All that remains of the interior furnishings is a kitchen chair, the remainder having been reduced to a pile of ashes. Gas pipes and metal fixtures in the house have been twisted and melted and nothing remain but debris.

Bad roads loomed up as a big impediment to the firemen in reaching the scene of the blaze, the house being located on the crest of a high hill and the roads leading to this being covered with several inches of thick, sticky mud. The roads in that section have not been accepted by the city and in many cases the temporary macadamizing that has been done is of an inferior grade. Although the department responded promptly to the alarm some delay was experienced in getting within striking distance of the blazing furnace. Fire hydrants are particularly scarce in the vicinity of the Hand property and the hose had to be attached to a plug over 1,500 feet away. The trail of the hose led through fields and back lots, and although hampered by these conditions the water was turned on within fifteen minutes after the department arrived. In the meantime Mr. Rosenthal and a number of volunteers worked with a garden hose soaking the sides of nearby buildings but so intense was the heat that they had to abandon this procedure before the firemen got their apparatus in order.

In going to the fire the hook and ladder became stuck in a mud pit on Denmark road and it required several hours to extricate it. Several other pieces of apparatus experienced similar difficulties in their trip up the hills but all managed to resume travel after several minutes floundering in the mud and water.

Although residents in that neighborhood claim that Mr. Finney was on the burned premises, this morning, reviewing the ruins the lessee could not be located by the fire authorities. Other property owners in that section claim that he was in the house shortly after 7 o'clock last night. When the fire broke out there was no one home, a fact which was disclosed by Mr. Rosenthal, who inspected the interior of the dwelling immediately discovering the fire.

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Plainfield Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful?

Does it ache especially after exertion?

Is there a soreness in the kidney region?

These symptoms suggest weak kidneys.

If so there is danger in delay.

Weak kidneys get fast weaker.

Give your trouble prompt attention.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Your neighbors use and recommend them.

Read this Plainfield testimony.

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 South Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says. "I had a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly and any hard work made me worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping or lifting and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and other remedies, but nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's drug store. They made a lasting cure. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did some years ago when they cured me."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Driscoll had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

UNION MEMORIAL CHURCH AT WATCHUNG ORGANIZES

A special meeting of the Mary Wilson Union Memorial chapel, of Watchung, was held last night. The following were elected to the board of trustees: Epriam S. Ackor, Henry S. Kennedy, George W. Winans, John Mobus and W. H. Rogers. Reuben Knox, of this city, was present and gave the new congregation advice on the drawing of their charter and the securing of proper papers for the conveyance of the property from the Sunday-school association to the church trustees.

IT'S A BOY.

JONAS LIE PAINTING NOW HUNG IN METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART

—Courtesy Newark Sunday Call.

It was during the regime of the late Sir Caspar Purdon Clark, as director, that the Metropolitan Museum of Art began to take up seriously the accumulation of paintings by living American artists. Sir Caspar, although an Englishman, was a most democratic man in all his tastes and instincts. He encouraged the purchase of the best of American canvases, and the practice is being continued by the present board of trustees and the director, Dr. Edward Robinson. The purchase of the picture reproduced herewith is, therefore, quite in line with the museum's policy. The canvas is the work of Jonas Lie, who had a studio in the Babcock building, in this city, for some years, and who recently spent two or three months in the Zone. He worked most industriously, doing his painting shortly after dawn and just before dusk. The picture shown above is understood to have been painted in the very early morning, when no air was stirring, which accounts for the straight streams of smoke from the steam shovels.

This picture is one of a series of the canal painted by Mr. Lie. It can be seen for the next month in what is known as the new accessions room at the museum, which is on the ground floor, to the west of the gallery of statuary, on the Fifth avenue side, and to the right. The coloring of the canvas is somewhat surprising, at least to those who have not visited the canal, but the average visitor notes at once its dramatic and realistic composition. There is a dignity about the work that leaves a lasting impression.

SEN. GALLINGER'S BIRTHDAY.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Floral contributions from numerous friends filled the office of Senator Gallinger today, reminding the New Hampshire senator of his 77th birthday anniversary. Senator Gallinger is the dean on the Republican side of the Senate. His term will expire next March and it is said he may not be a candidate for re-election. His retirement would leave Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, whose term will not expire until 1917 the ranking member of the Senate.

NEW LINER DELAYED.

Liverpool, March 28.—This was the date originally fixed for the sailing of the new steamship Calgarian of the Allan Line on her maiden trip to America, but owing to the fact that some delay has been experienced in putting the finishing touches to the vessel it has been found necessary to defer her departure for several weeks. The Calgarian is a sister ship of the Alsatian and will be placed in service between Liverpool and Montreal.

ALL BUT 20 LINEMEN LEAVE VICINITY OF WASHINGTON, N. J.

Washington, N. J., March 28—All but one gang, the latter consisting of about twenty men of the large force of telephone linemen, have left this section. Many of them left Thursday, having been ordered to report at Elizabeth. Most of the men had been at work in this district for nearly three weeks.

The big force of linemen gathered in this section from all parts of the United States, and some even from Canada, practically rebuilt the trunk line between Stewartsville Heights and Penwell. Nearly two hundred new poles were placed in position. The hill sections escaped big damage, the complete destruction having been in the lowlands.

The gang left behind will make permanent repairs, substituting wires for the cables used on the long stretches of broken poles. Many of the poles were temporarily repaired, and the linemen left here will replace all such with good poles. It is estimated that it will take several months to place the telephone lines of Warren county in the condition they were before the blizzard.

THE WORK OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

There is no public department that comes so close to the people; none so autocratic and powerful under the law, and none that needs to be better understood by the public than the Health Department of a city. In times of serious epidemics of contagious disease it can not only quarantine homes, but streets and the entire city. With all this power, however, it is along the lines of prevention that the best work of the Department can, and must be done. Wendell Phillips used to cry in the anti-slavery days: "Agitate! agitate!" but today in health matters it is "Educate! educate!" Professor Sedgwick, a leading expert on sanitation in this country, in a recent lecture said: "There is a great deal of lost motion in the public health movement; pure spices and drugs are all very well, but what the great mass of the people want is proper sewerage, pure air, pure milk and pure water."

Eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty, but of health and with this thought in our minds, a few facts regarding the working of our Department may be both interesting and pertinent.

PERSONNEL OF BOARD.

President—Dr. T. S. Davis, an old established and leading physician.

Secretary—Dr. H. D. Corbusier, a leading physician and an expert in sanitation, having served in the U. S. Army in the Philippines during 1901 and 1902 and now Commander of the Field Hospital of the National Guard of our State.

Treasurer—Mr. S. H. Voorhees, representative of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Mr. Hugh Reilly, a contracting plumber.

Mr. E. T. Barrows, broker and ex-member of the Common Council.

Employes—At the present time the working force consists of N. J. Randolph Chandler, Health Officer, who, outside of a general supervision has immediate charge of contagious diseases and food and milk inspection. Harriet O. Mattison, the Assistant Health Officer and Registrar of Vital Statistics, in charge of the office and the Department of Vital Statistics. William Addis, Sr., plumbing inspector; Collis H. Case, general sanitary inspector; Elizabeth Rosenson, stenographer and deputy Registrar of Vital Statistics, and Mrs. Howard W. Boise, bacteriologist. The force at present is short one inspector.

THE OFFICE.

The office, located on the third floor of the City National Bank Building, is equipped for office and filing purposes; with a complete laboratory for analyzing milk and examination of contagious disease cultures and a set of plumbers' tools for a practical demonstration by those taking an examination for plumber's license.

At this office, not only all of the clerical work connected with the Department is carried on, reports of which must be sent to Trenton and Washington, but all births, marriages and deaths are recorded and burial permits and marriage licenses issued.

FINANCES.

During last year, $911.75 was collected from permit fees, which amount was turned over to the City Treasurer in accordance with the agreement between the Board and the Common Council, the latter making an annual appropriation for the general work of the Board. Last year this was $8,000, which together with a balance carried over of $931.73 and $77.40 received from miscellaneous sources, making a total of $9,009.13, was disbursed as follows:

Salaries	$4,662 35
Communicable diseases, care of	706. 28
Laboratory expenses	231 57
General expenses	1,770 01
Anti-Fly campaign	102 82
Dairy inspection	211 38
Printing, advertising, stationery and supplies	529 71
Total expenditures	$8,215 12
Dec. 31, 1913, balance	749 01

PERMITS.

Permits are issued to scavengers; garbage, offal and dead animal collectors; to owners of chickens, goats, etc.; to dealers in milk and ice; owners of barber shops, manicuring, hairdressing and chiropodist establishments; and to plumbers for each individual plumbing system installed in the city.

INSPECTIONS.

The inspection system includes not only the above, but other branches of work that have a direct or indirect bearing on the health of the community, such as the food supply, particular attention being paid to the milk; nuisances, reported by outsiders or found in the course of general inspection; and in addition the general inspections covering a long list of subdivisions.

Much time is also given to investigation and disinfection in connection with communicable disease.

In 1913 the inspections reached a total of 9,003, exclusive of the plumbing inspections.

WORK OF SPECIAL IMPORT.

Milk Supply: This is perhaps the most important branch of the Department's work, not even excepting contagious disease, for the two are often very closely connected. When it is considered that the 10,100 quarts of milk sold in the city daily by the seventy-six dealers, is obtained from 305 dairies some of which are located nearly as far as Ithaca, New York, and that each dairy supplying milk to Plainfield has to be inspected and scored; that the milk from the larger retailers is analyzed each month; and that a very careful general supervision of the entire supply is maintained, the magnitude of the work may be better understood. Seven hundred and sixty inspections in connection with the milk supply were made during the year 1913 and 453 samples of milk and cream were analyzed. These records are on file and any citizen can obtain from the office a copy of the analysis of the milk they are using.

COMMUNICABLE DISEASES.

This work entails careful investigation of cases reported, quarantining of houses, sometimes the removal of patients to the hospital, the furnishing of food where the breadwinner is quarantined and occasionally the securing of a police officer to maintain quarantine. Notices must be sent to milk dealers, schools and public library both at the beginning and termination of cases. In minor diseases, circulars are sent to the guardians of the patients and a notice to the School Nurse. Careful records are kept and a chart, hanging on the office wall, shows by the use of colored pins, the number and distribution of various diseases. Disinfection is compulsory in cases of scarlet fever, diphtheria and tuberculosis, and is also done on the request of physicians or householders in other cases. Three hundred and ten visitis to houses or inspections in connection with communicable disease were made this past year; and 203 disinfections, requiring 358 trips.

Plumbing: A total of 1,403 tests and inspections were made in 1913 in connection with this branch of the Board's work; 330 plans were examined and 378 permits issued.

Vital Statistics: In cities in this state having a population under 50,000 the records of marriages, births and deaths are under the jurisdiction of the local Health Department. In larger cities, the City Clerk is, by virtue of his position, the Registrar. But the law should be changed so that all the Health Departments would have these records in charge, for they are vitally connected with the preventive policy so important in health work. One thousand one hundred and fifteen returns were made during the year, divided as follows: Marriages, 212; births, 568; still-births, 25; deaths, 311.

Diagnostic Work: This has become an established branch of the Board's work. Physicians send cultures to our local laboratory instead of mailing them to the State Laboratory of Hygiene at Trenton, thus insuring a more prompt report and giving us a better control of our cases of communicable disease. Four hundred and four were examined, divided as follows: Diphtheria, 183; tuberculosis ,157; typhoid fever, 24; malaria, 19; other diseases, 21.

New lines of work are constantly being taken up as occasion, time and money permits and all connected with the Department must be constantly on the alert to keep in touch with changing conditions.

The public at large can aid in a great measure toward the prevention of disease and nuisances by not only seeing that their own homes and premises are kept in a sanitary condition, but by promptly notifying the Department of anything unsanitary that comes under their observation within the city limits.

All citizens who are called upon to serve in the different city departments give more or less gratutious work to the public, but those physicians who serve on the Board of Health give not only the quality of service rendered by a civilian, but additional professional service that is rarely appreciated by those not familiar with this Department.

THE FORUM.

Editor Plainfield Press

I have read with a feeling of regret in the columns of your paper that it will be necessary to abandon the open-air school for the lack of funds. If such is the case it certainly is to be regretted and it would be more to the credit of the school board to adopt some means of keeping it open than the foolish and outlandish expenditure of the people's money for swimming pools ond other fol-de-rols in a school that only caters to a certain class. A school that pays high salaries to professors who sit around drawing their breath and salary while the scholars are playing basketball or some other game of nonsense, when they should be in their classrooms at study. Talk about "expensive luxuries," as one of our city fathers said about the public collection of garbage. If the High School of this city is not an expensive luxury then nine-tenths of the people of our city are mistaken in their opinion, and the sooner they give public expression to their private opinion and call a halt to the way their money is used for bills and follies, just so soon will the burden of high taxes be lifted from their shoulders that has been forced on them for the purpose of catering to class. I see you praise the school board for letting the people know what they are doing in reference to the purchase of certain property for which they spend the people's money I don't see where they deserve any praise for that; but instead of telling the people "we have spent your money," they should be compelled to say on, we spend your money." There is room enough wasted in the High School for dance hall and swimming

"PEOPLE'S FORUM."

The Public recreation Committee requests the various pastors of the city to announce from their pulpits tomorrow, the meeting of the "People's Forum" to be held at Washington School next Thursday evening. O. Z. Charles is to deliver his address on the "Deserted Village" at that meeting and it is the desire of the committee to have as much co-operation as is possible from the churches, in making this occasion a success.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

Prof. P. B. Stout, the singing evangelist, of Pasedena, California, will assist at both services at the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow. At the evening service Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire will take for his subject, "A Great Question Stated." Mr. Stout will remain here for two weeks and assist the pastor in conducting evangelistic meetings.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY.

Henry Bordenheimer, of Watchung, was arrested last night at that place on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. He will be arraigned before Mayor Anderson tonight.

THE FIREHORSE'S LAMENT.

The announcement by Councilman John H. Cose, in his address before the visiting firechiefs recently that it is the intention of the city fathers to eventually replace all the horse-drawn apparatus in the local fire department with modern automobile apparatus, has reached the stalls of the patient equines, who for years have been faithful members of the local department. "Andy," the handsome and intelligent gray, attached to No. 3 Hose Company, heard the news and commented on it as follows to "Mack," the oldest horse in the Plainfield service:

"Well, Mack, old mate, the die is cast; we soon will have to go;
The Council says that horse drawn rigs no longer have a show,
It's motor apparatus now that's got to be the fad.
They neither eat nor wear out shoes and tear along like mad.
Already two good teams have gone and more will be displaced,
As soon as money matters let the fireboard make haste.
Just think, old mate, of what it means when you and I pass on,
And other horses like ourselves, from waiting stalls have gone'
No more will eager children come to crowd the house about,
At 12 and 5 o'clock each day to see us dashing out,
No more the pretty girls will come with Sunday bestest beaux,
To feed us many sugar lumps and pat us on the nose;
And too, the country visitors who used to say, 'B'gosh,
Them hosses air the best I've seen and that ain't nary josh.'
This house will see them never more for they don't give a jot,
For all the motor vehicles the whole blame state has got.
And tell me, Mack, who dares to name a greater, grander sight
Than that which follows each alarm that's turned in day or night.
The tapper strikes its warning note; the boys spring in to place
While we dash out to be snapped up in collar, line and trace;
Upon his seat the driver swings; the captain gives the word
Then outward to the street we go with every muscle stirred;
We try our level best to beat the record of Ben Hur
The bells, the cries, and thoughts of flame all acting as a spur.
We leap, we fly, at times all fours are high above the ground,
While all the while our clattering hoofs beat out a rhythmic sound.
The children, men and women, too, all run to see us pass,
And frequently at dizzy turns in cheering crowds they mass.
They know our names and call to us, but though we hear them not
We feel that deep within their hearts we hold a tender spot.
No red blood human dares deny the call of nerve and bone
And so with them while time goes on we'll always hold our own.
We'll go, old mate, but let me say, they'll rue it, never fear,
A thousand times in years to come, they'll wish that we were here.
These up-to-date affairs they'll get, propelled by gasoline,
Will give them speed and save perhaps, what some folks call 'long green,'
But what is that compared with us, who live and breathe and feel
To whom the people bend their knees; in humble suppliance kneel.
But still the Council wants us not; our friends have no recourse
The autos must and will be had, so good-bye faithful horse."

The Studebaker "FOUR" Touring Car $1050

THE Studebaker "FOUR" Touring Car is an electrically lighted and started five-passenger automobile. The $1050 price alone, however, does not begin to indicate the car's real value, for its mechanical qualities are quite as satisfying as the price.

From motor to rear axle the mechanical design, materials and construction of the Studebaker "FOUR" can be properly compared only with the same features in cars of much higher price. It is a trustworthy, service-giving car.

The "FOUR" motor is especially powerful, so that the car responds instantly to acceleration. For the same reason, and because of its light weight in proportion to its power, the "FOUR" is a very unusual hill climber. The long stroke motor is efficient at all speeds, silent, vibrationless and very economical in gasoline and oil consumption.

The rear axle is of the full-floating type, with all parts completely accessible There are nine Timken bearings in the transmission and drive unit, and two Timkin bearings in the hub of each front wheel.

In appearance the new Studebaker "FOUR" fills the eye. It is a big, handsome car, with plenty of room for five passengers. The seats are deeply upholstered; the paint and finish exceedingly handsome and durable.

The excellent balance of the car, due to the proper distribution of its weight, and also to its splendid spring action, give it great "roadability."

And best of all, the "FOUR" is equipped with a long tested and exceedingly efficient electric system. A push of your heel starts the motor, a touch of a button lights the lights. Center control and left hand drive add to the owner's convenience.

The equipment, as in all Studebaker cars, is thorough. The rims are demountable and detachable, with an extra rim carried on tire irons in the rear. Studebaker-Jiffy curtains are provided, which can be quickly put in place from inside the car. The furnishings include robe rail, tool box, tools, electric horn, etc.

From every standpoint—comfort, durability, economy, appearance, efficiency—the Studebaker "FOUR" is a car to be sought for and purchased, because in its field it has no equal.

INCREASED PER CENT ON THE FREE LIST

Total Valuation of Merchandise Shows Big Gain.

In its monograph, "Annual Review of the Foreign Commerce of the United States," just issued, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, states that the striking characteristics of the import trade of the United States in the fiscal year 1913, when compared with the import trade of earlier years, are: (1) An increased percentage entering free of duty, and (2) an increased percentage imported for use in manufacturing. The percentage of the imports which entered free of duty in 1913 was 54.47, being larger than in any earlier year except 1892 (55.35 per cent.) and 1894 (57.98 per cent.), the opening and closing years of the brief period in which sugar was admitted free of duty under the act of 1890. The total value of merchandise imported free of duty in the fiscal year 1913 was 987.5 million dollars, against 367.2 million in 1900; and of dutiable, 825.5 million dollars, against 482.7 million in 1900, merchandise entering free of duty in 1913 having formed 54.47 per cent. of the total imports, against 43.21 per cent. in 1900.

Manufacturers' raw materials form a steadily increasing share of the imports, having been, in 1870, but 12.76 per cent.; in 1880, 19.74 per cent., in 1890, 21.62 per cent.; in 1900, 32.5 per cent., and in 1913, 35 per cent. The growth in importations of manufactures for further use in manufacturing was relatively less than that of raw materials, since that group formed 12.75 per cent. of the imports in 1870 and 19.27 per cent. in 1913. Manufacturers' raw materials imported in 1913 aggregated 635.2 million dollars, against 276.2 million in 1900, and manufactures for further use in manufacturing showed, in 1913, a total importation of 349.4 million dollars, against 134.2 million in 1900.

Foodstuffs in a crude condition formed 11.7 per cent. of the imports in 1913 and 11.5 per cent. in 1900; foodstuffs partly or wholly manufactured, 10.7 per cent. in 1913 and 15.7 per cent. in 1900; and manufactures ready for consumption, 22.5 per cent. of the total in 1913, against 23.9 per cent. in 1900. The principal increase in importations of manufacturers' materials occurred in nondutiable articles, of which the imports in 1913 were 599.7 million dollars, against 21.04 million in 1900, while dutiable crude materials imported for use in manufacturing in 1913 aggregated 125.55 million dollars, against 65.8 million in 1900. The above figures relate to general imports, those of imports for consumption differing but slightly from general import figures in totals and percentages.

Other notable features of the import trade as well as many interesting facts relative to the export trade of the United States in the fiscal year 1913 are discussed in the monograph copies of which may be procured upon application to the Department of Commerce.

RECORD SIZE POSTER FOR ANNUAL CHARITY AFFAIR

The largest advertising poster ever printed by a firm in this city has just been turned out by the Central Publishing Company for the Charity Ball to be held here on April 13. The display is eleven feet long by four feet wide and is printed in two colors.

Life sized type has been used in the preparation of the advertisement and the posters will be placed on billboards between here and Cranford.

BENDER TO FACE CHARGES BROUGHT BY STATE BOARD

Moses Bender, of this city, has been made defendant in a suit brought by the State Board of Tenement House Inspectors, for alleged infractions of the State laws regarding tenement houses. Bender is the proprietor of houses located at 232-234 West Second street where conditions are alleged to exist which violate the State laws.

According to the plaintiff's representatives the houses are overcrowded and the sanitary code has been neglected. If convicted Bender will have to pay a fine of $50.

STONE THROWER HIT DRIVER SERIOUS BLOW IN THE FACE

Charged with hitting an employe of Percy A. McVoy, the local plumber, in the face with a stone, Joseph Monroe, a small colored youth, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, and ordered by City Judge W. G. DeMeza to pay the employe $2.10, a half day's pay, which was lost as the result of a lay-off following the accident.

Monroe, in company with a number of other colored youths, was engaged in "hooking" onto the rear of wagons in the West End one day last week and when ordered to keep off of McVoy's vehicle he became abusive and hurled a large rock at the driver. The missile hit the intended victim full in the face and may result in disfiguration for life.

MISS GRACE DALAND SPEAKS BEFORE MISSIONARY SOCIETIES

Under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Societies of the First Baptist church, an anniversary meeting was held yesterday afternoon. The feature was the address by Miss Grace Daland, of the New York city missions, who told of her interesting work there. She was accompanied by a child from one of the missions, who sang, "Jesus Loves Me," and recited the Twenty-third Psalms. Both Miss Daland's remarks and the part taken by the child in the meeting were enjoyed.

After the meeting tea was served under the direction of the Young Women's Society, Miss Elizabeth Nash being in charge. Among those assisting were Miss Ray Harris and Mrs. John G. MacLaughlin. Other young women served. A social hour was enjoyed during which those present were given an opportunity to meet Miss Daland.

TO TRAIN RURAL TEACHERS ON AN ELABORATE SCALE

Schools In Ten Mile Zone Included In Iowa Laboratory Plan.

Iowa is about to undertake the most comprehensive system of training for rural teachers yet conceived. Authorization has been given by the state board of education to President H. H Seerley of Teachers' college to organize the country schools within reasonable distance of Cedar Falls, possibly ten miles, as a great demonstration laboratory.

"This undertaking," says President Seerley, "involves many difficult problems, because a self satisfied, hopeless condition exists among the patrons and directors of most rural school districts. The authority of the local unit is absolutely effective, and the interest in the possible education obtainable in the schools is confused with many modern ideas and theories.

"The rural teacher is a statutory personality, the standard of qualification being little influenced by public sentiment or dictated by custom. Through the legal status there is very little discrimination required in recognition of true standards because the remuneration is not governed by efficiency, but by the grades on the teachers' certificates. As a consequence, all the emphasis is placed upon an artificial kind of qualification.

"It is a well known fact that the vast majority of electors and patrons of these school districts insist that taxation be kept at a minimum. The few who have different ideals yield as they recognize the incompetency of the teachers who are obtainable.

"The present examining system never can reach these fundamental difficulties."

Negotiations are pending and an agreement virtually is reached looking to the organization of all the country schools in Cedar Falls township as demonstration rural schools.

BROOKLYN RABBI TO SPEAK.

A mass meeting of Plainfield Hebrews preliminary to organizing a local branch of the International Hebrew Union will be held at the B'noi Israel congregation on New street tomorrow afternoon. Dr. Moses Romoriff, a Brooklyn rabbi, will be the speaker of the occasion.

PLAINFIELD GIRLS LOSE A CLOSE GAME

South Orange Sextet Won a Two Point Victory on Home Court Yesterday.

Plainfield High School's girl basketball players visited the South Orange High School yesterday afternoon and, in a game with the South Orange sextet, lost by the close score of 22 to 20.

Captain Miss Seager, of the winning aggregation, was responsible for the victory, her field goal in the last few minutes of play clinching matters. It was not until the last period of play that the Plainfield team appeared dangerous.

Two of the regular guards of the home team were out of the game. Miss Thomas and Miss Seager featured for the winners, while Miss Philips and Miss Crane played best for the visitors. This game marked the closing of the basketball season for the South Orange High School girls.

COURT HAS JUST DECIDED FITZ IS TOO OLD TO BOX

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday decided that Bob Fitzsimmons shall not box in public again in the State of New York.

"Lanky Bob" is now nearing his fifty-second year and it was mainly this fact which was the cause of the court prohibition.

"Fitz" has been more than twenty-five years in the ringed arena, engaged in 370 ring contests and was the only man who ever held at one time the three titles of heavy weight champion, middle weight and light heavy weight champion boxer of the world.

RALPH WITH EASE.

Edward I. Ralph, the Hightstown player, had an easy time with Jerome Keogh in the final blocks of their pocket billiard match for a purse yesterday. The end of the night session left Ralph, with the necessary 1,000 points, 220 points in the lead of the Rochester expert, Keogh having scored 780. In the night game Ralph defeated Keogh by 100 to 41, the winner's best run being 31, while Keogh ran 20. In the afternoon Ralph outscored his opponent by 100 to 81.

JOHNSON HITTING GOOD.

The Jersey City International Leaguers hung up a 9 to 1 victory at the expense of the Durham nine yesterday afternoon. Carl Johnson, the former local school teacher, caught the whole game for the winning side and contributed a two bagger to the cause.

FRANK BRUGGY COMES TO TERMS AT LAST

Outfield Star Will Perform in Lawrence Again This Season—Signed Yesterday.

Frank Bruggy, who played left field for the Plainfield Pets in the Central New Jersey League championship race last fall, yesterday deserted the ranks of the hold-outs when he signed a contract to catch for the Lawrence, New England Club, after a conference with Manager Louis P. Pieper, at the latter city. Bruggy received a contract from Pieper early in February and although the salary mentioned was an increase over the pay he received last season, he refused to sign because the amount mentioned did not satisfy him. Frank was threatened with suspension, but he was determined to get what he deemed was coming to him and he held out until the interview yesterday, when Pieper conceded to his demands.

A hard campaign with the Gloversville New York State League basketball team has whipped Bruggy into better condition that he has ever been at any time during his career as an athlete and some big things may be expected of him on the diamond this season. A "rookie," Bruggy hit .300 for Lawrence last season and on top of this fielded in style at first base, left field and behind the bat. He will centre his attention on catching during the coming summer, which experts have prophesied will be his last in Class B company.

During the winter, Bruggy was offered a berth with the Brooklyn Federal League Club, but displaying the same level headedness which has characterized all his dealings since he took up athletics as a profession, the big fellow quite wisely passed up a deal after a talk with the Long Island manager. While the Federals were willing to pay him a handsome salary, they would not, however, guarantee him a position with some other club should he fail to win a berth with their team. He decided to stick to organized baseball.

BEWARE OF MONTCLAIR.

Mike Ryan, of the Irish-American Athletic Club, winner of the Boston Marathon run in 1912 and 1913 and also a member of the last Olympic team to Stockholm, Sweden, has been engaged to coach the track team of the Montclair High School. With Ryan's long experience in the running game and being coached by such able leaders as the late Mike Murphy and Lawson Robertson, he should be able to impart his knowledge to the Montclair boys with good effect. Ryan has hopes of being selected to coach the Norwegian team in the next Olympic games at Berlin, Germany.

TWO FEATURE GAMES.

In Saenger bund Hall next Thursday night the Plainfield All-Star basketball team will lineup against the Orange colored basketball players and the Holy Cross and Nonpariels will come together in a preliminary engagement.

NEW PRACTICE FIELD.

The Plainfield High School baseball team will have to be content with practicing on the Central street field for the next two weeks, as Leal's School has rented Crescent Oval and Parker Field will not be ready until that time.

P. H. S. AT CRANFORD.

The Plainfield High School girls team will go to Cranford next Friday to play the girls' team of Cranford High School. A close game is expected as Plainfield won by a few points in the game played here.

DUNELLEN ENTERS S. S. BALL LEAGUE

Applications for Franchises Will Have to Be in Before April 10.

Members of the Sunday-school League's governing body decided at a meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors, last night, that all applications for franchises on the baseball circuit would have to be in the hands of the committee on or before April 10 to gain consideration. At that time a schedule of games will be drawn up and active work started on the various diamonds.

Another new team was added to the league last night, when a representative from the Dunellen Presbyterian church made his appearance. J. Henry Crane represented the First Baptist team at last night's session, but aside from this the same delegates were on hand to take charge of their respective team's interests.

TWO GOOD BASKETBALL GAMES IN Y. M. C. A. GYM

Two games of basketball will be played in the Y. M. C. The main attraction will be participated in by the following players:

ADVOCATING A COURT GAME BETWEEN GIRLS AND FACULTY

A movement is at present on foot to arrange a game between the girls' basketball team of the Plainfield High School and the faculty. A game like this has never before been played in the local school.

The male members of the faculty have played the senior class team every year and there is no apparent reason why a game should not be arranged between the girls' team and the women members of the faculty.

SEVEN CANDIDATES REPORT FOR HIGH SCHOOL TEAM

Manager Day called the first practice of the Plainfield High School track team yesterday afternoon in the gym. Seven men reported, but many more have signified their willingness of starting training, as soon as Parker Field is in condition.

Those who were out yesterday are, Day, Weintrob, Runyon, Trowbridge, Mann, Schenck and Oleary.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Fifteen years ago today the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basketball team ended its season with a 41 to 4 victory over the Columbia College School of Mines team on the local court. The audience overflowed the visitors' galleries in the Y. M. C. A. and much enthusiasm was shown. During the interval between the halves the Columbia College gym team gave an exhibition on the high bar. Erick Moraller, who is at the present time in charge of the Y. M. C. A. in St. Petersburg, Russia, played one forward on the local team and Walter Long the other. Al Egan played center and Max Moraller and George Proctor "Dode" Smith played the guard positions. Long and Smith scored a quintet of field goals and Long tallied seven. J. Hervey Doane, who acts as an official at many of the present day games, served as timekeeper in this contest. Enthusiasm in the indoor sport has suffered a big decline since that time as evidenced by present day crowds.

Some good post season basketball will be staged on the Y. M. C. A. court tonight when the local Association quintet meets an old rival, Scotch Plains. The villagers are coming to the Queen City with their best array of talent and it is one safe bet that the Plainfielders will have to go the limit to keep in the running. Handling the whistle will be Charlie Line, Plainfield's best basketball official, and his appearance lends an added importance to the engagement. The game will be one for blood and the bitter rivalry that exists between the two factions will no doubt result in something sensational.

Further evidence of the fact that the Feds are a joke comes to hand from Baltimore, Md.—"The passage of the bill to declare Monday, April 13, a half holiday in the State of Maryland, making it possible for 'employes of banks, business houses and municipal and State offices to witness the opening of the Federal League in Baltimore,' which was introduced in the Legislature at Annapolis by Assemblyman Barlage, of Baltimore, and which is in the hands of a committee, is anxiously awaited by the fans in Baltimore, and in other parts of the State. Never since the days of the old Hanlon champions has there been so much enthusiasm in baseball circles there.

The White Sox insist that their pitchers will keep them high in the race. They have Scott, Russell, Benz, Faber, Cicotte and Ed Walsh. Ty Cobb's Detroit contract is for two years at $16,500 a year. President Gilmore, of the Federal League, says that he has $54,000,000 behind him. A week ago he said $2,500,000 already had been spent. That makes the sum left the mere pence of $51,500,000—an average of more than $6,000,000 for each of the eight clubs.

Physiology note—The average man's arm is thirty inches long; the average woman's waist is thirty inches round. How wonderful are thy works, O Nature!

A baseball player with a thirty-inch wing ought to be able to produce some pretty good curves.

Bob Bogardus may not be seen in Dunellen baseball this year, according to his own statement. Without Bob baseball would never be like it usterwus in the little old burg.

CARDINAL GOTTI IS 80 YEARS OLD TODAY

Eminent Member of the Sacred College Celebrates.

Rome, March 28—Cardinal Jerome Maria Gotti, Prefect of the Propaganda and one of the most eminent members of the Sacred College, will be eighty years old tomorrow. Cardinal Gotti, it will be recalled was designated by Pope Leo XIII as his successor in the chair of St. Peter But when the time came to elect the new Pope the College of Cardinals followed the custom of centuries by defeating the candidate selected by the late occupant of the Papal throne.

Notwithstanding his failure to become the ruler of the church Cardinal Gotti has long been a popular hero of religious Rome. The story of his career has all the elements of the romantic. He rose with one bound from obscurity to eminence He has ever seemed to have behind him the force of unseen and mysterious power. Difficulties, apparently insurmountable, have melted away when he has come upon the throne.

The Cardinal is a man of most humble origin, his father having been a dock laborer at Genoa. He received his education in a Jesuit school at Genoa, but at the age of sixteen was admitted as a novice to the Order of Barefoot Carmelites, the most austere of the Carmelite orders Eventually he became a Carmelite monk, under the name of Father Jerome. Just before the death of Pius IX he became head of the Motherhouse of the Barefoot Carmelites attached to the Church of St. Maria della Scala, and in 1881 he was made superior general of the order. It was while he was at the head of the order that he visited England, the United States and numerous other counrties and counsellel even greater austerity in rules and wider service on the part of mendicants of the order.

In 1892 Cardinal Gotti resigned his office as superior general of the order and proceeded as special delegate by the Pope to Brazil, for the purpose of reorganizing the Roman Catholic church there, the constitution of which required modifications in consequence of the abolition of the monarchy and the establishment of a republican form of government. He spent several years in Brazil, giving satisfaction alike to the Brazilian government and to the Pontiff by his spirit of conciliation, and on his return to Italy was created a Cardinal

Cardinal Gotti's knowledge of canon law is asserted by many to be superior to that of any other member of the Sacred College, while his generalship of the Carmelite Order has had the effect of endowing him with prompt and thoroughly businesslike habits. He is a distinguished orator and speaks French and Latin with rare perfection.

MEMORIAL BLOCKS TO BE DEDICATED

Interesting Exercises to Mark One Hundred and Thirty-fifth Anniversary.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Next month, on the occasion of the 125th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as first President of the United States, interesting exercises will be held here to mark the event. The most notable feature of the program will be the formal dedication of the memorial blocks provided by the States of Colorado, Idaho and Washington for the Washington Monument. The placing of those blocks in the monument will leave but three States that are not thus represented by memorial stones.

The dedication exercises will be conducted under the auspices of the Washington National Monument Society. This society dates back to 1833, in which year it was organized to erect in the Federal capital a monument, national in character, to the memory of Washington. John Marshall, the great Chief Justice, was the first president of the society. On the death of Justice Marshall former President James Madison was elected president. On the death of Mr. Madison it was provided that the President of the United States should be ex-officio presdient, and such has been the case ever since.

February 22, 1859, the society was chartered by Congress after having as a voluntary association raised by popular subscription the money to lay the foundation of the monument and to carry the shaft to 156 feet in height. During the period of the Civil War and reconstruction days the society continued its efforts to raise funds to continue the work and to complete the shaft, but the condition of the times and country were not such as to give encouraging results. It was not until many years later that the shaft was finally completed through the aid of Congress.

Many years ago the society issued an invitation to the various States, to the leading cities and to lodges and other organizations to contribute memorial stones to the monument. The responses were numerous, as is evidence by the many carved stones that adorn the interior of the shaft For the most part the blocks contributed by the States and cities bear their respective coats of arms.

Foreign countries also were asked to send memorial blocks for the monument and many of them responded. In this connection there is frequently told the story of the memorial block sent by the Papal States, at that time an independent sovereignty. The block arrived in the United States at a time when race and religious prejudice played a prominent part in politics. After its arrival in Washington, so the story goes, the memorial from the Papal States was carted away in the dead of night, presumably by representatives of the anti-Catholic element, and dumped into the Potomas River.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

TAPS FROM THE GAVEL.

Abe Goldberg, of New York, will deliver a lecture tomorrow evening before Jehuda-Halevi Camp, No. 57, Zionists, at K. of P. Hall, West Front street. The subject of the address will be "What Zionism has Given the Jewish People."

No lodge meetings are scheduled for tonight.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., held "Ladies' Night" at their regular session last evening, when the many friends of the lodge were royally entertained. The event of the evening was Professor Harry C. White, an elocutionist, of Bound Brook. William Martin addressed the gathering on the topic, "America for Americans." The occasion was arranged by the good and welfare committee. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

The fair being held under the auspices of Lakeside Council, D. of I., at Friendship Hall, New Market, is drawing good crowds. A supper formed the feature of the affair last night, while dancing will be the drawing card tonight.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A., are planning to change their meeting night from Tuesday to Saturday evening, to take effect the first of May.

Secretaries of the various lodges are invited to send notices of initiations, election of officers, official visits and other notes of fraternal interest, for publication in this column. Matters of State and national interest will be used in condensed form.

Trafalgar Lodge, No. 506, Order Sons of St. George, will join with other sister lodges in observing St. George Day. The occasion will be marked by the local lodge at their stated meeting of April 23 at Coward Hall. Sunday evening, April 26, the lodge will attend divine services at Hope chapel.

LITERARY

The Evangelical churches of Switzerland have, through their conference, issued to the Christian churches of Europe, an appeal for "leadership in opposing the present portentous militarism and armaments of the nations." A congress of European churches is proposed, to be held at Berne sometime during the present year to consider the whole subject.

One wishes them well in this yearning for universal peace. But it is well to have no illusions. Great Britain must cope with conditions that actually exist in Ulster. The United States is bound to protect its own nationals. All this requires force, and, it may be, a very strong force.

What is really needed is that the nations that are strong in their advanced civilization and their high ideals should take such steps as would make war against each other practically impossible. This could be done today; and it would be far better to seek to accomplish the possible than to grasp after the impossible.

But the United States must find a way to enforce respect from its people and its States and its legislators for its own treaties before it can be entitled to a seat among the nations of highest ideals on the earth.—The Living Church.

BRISK REVIVAL IN CONSTRUCTION

Permits Aggregating $12,500 Issued by Inspector Doane During Week.

MUCH MORE IN SIGHT

Several Houses and Barns Will Be Started as Result of Grants Made—Inspector is Examining Papers in a $12,000 Realty Enterprise.

The building trades of the city which have been idle practically for the past few months, have at last felt the moving of the pulse of life and activity again during the past week, during which several permits have been issued by Inspector T. O. Doane. Among these is the one mentioned on the building page of last week calling for the erection of a 50x45 foot private garage and workhouse by David Huston, of East Seventh street, at the cost of $2,300. This building will be of hollow terra cotta block. William H. Kirch is the architect and carpenter, while the mason work will be taken care of by Joseph Brandt.

A permit for the erection of two frame dwellings on Leland avenue has been granted to Andrew Olsen, the cost to be $3,000 each. The structures will be frame with concrete foundations. The interior supports will be brick piers and the roof shingled. An up-to-date furnace will be installed. Peter Crugn will do the carpenter work and William Bourgoius, the masonry. The houses are to be two stories high.

Another permit calls for the erection of a $3,500 dwelling on Leland avenue, to be of frame in structure, with brick foundations. The roof is to be shingled, as on the others. A hot water system is to be installed. The architect is W. H. Clum, while M. D. O'Keefe will do the contracting work.

The remaining permit granted this week calls for the construction of a hollow cement block barn at 1001 West Front street, to be erected by George and Emma R. Naylor. The foundations here will be of concrete, while the roof will be of rubberoid shingles. Mr. Naylor is the architect and will do the carpenter work, while the masonry will be done by Walter C. Clawson, of Dunellen.

Several other permits calling for four dwellings, one stable and one for extensive interior alterations at 218 West Front street, are still pending, awaiting official approval of Inspector Doane, and will no doubt be issued the first of the week.

In discussing the local building situation in this city with a Daily Press reporter during the current week, Inspector Doane stated that it was most encouraging at the present time and the outlook for a renewal of great activities and life in this line was very bright. Several of the local contractors who have expressed any opinion at all on the local situation, readily made known that they were kept fairly busy making estimates.

The amount of money to be expended for buildings called for in the permits of the past week will total over $12,700, while the estimated cost of the permits still pending will be in the neighborhood of $12,000.

COMPARISONS SHOW DECREASE IN BUILDING

Trenton and Newark Alone Report Increases Over Preceding Year.

While this city has experienced a slump in the building trades line, it has not been alone in its predicament. The Construction News, of Chicago, recently compiled figures from eighty-nine cities showing that the conditions which have existed here have been duplicated in other localities. Bayonne, Passaic and Elizabeth all showed decreases during February over the same month of last year, the greatest decrease being at Passaic, with a drop of 93 per cent. Newark and Trenton, however, are able to show increases during the same month over a year ago, the increase in the former city being $209,000. The increase at the Capitol City is rated at about 87 per cent., including an expenditure of $75,000.

The South did not make a very satisfactory showing. In St Louis there was a loss of 57 per cent.; Atlanta, 20; Richmond, 35; Birmingham, 84; Louisville, 70; Chattanooga, 19; Norfolk, 59; Savannah, 30; Tampa, 37; Nashville, 48. While there were gains in Charlotte of 73 per cent.; Memphis, 11; San Antonio, 353; Dallas, 29, and Forth Worth, 98.

Other cities in which there were losses include Rochester, 19 per cent.; Indianapolis, 39; Omaha, 6; Salt Lake City, 59; New Bedford, 7; Worcester, Mass., 42; Syracuse, 54; Hartford, 13; Grand Rapids, Mich., 42; Scranton, 7; Allentown, 42; Dayton, 97; Lincoln, 27; St. Joseph, 25; Sioux City, 60, and Springfield, Ill., 32.

The larger cities with the exception of New York show most satisfactory gains. New York had a loss of 72 per cent., a difference between an expenditure of $10,964,760 in February, 1913, as against $3,055,126 in the month just closed. There was an increase in Chicago of 8 per cent., Philadelphia, 26; Detriot, 92; Pittsburgh, 161; Cleveland, 19; Newark, 14; Washington, 39; Buffalo, 14; Springfield, Mass., 10; New Haven 190; Hoboken, 257; Trenton, 87; Reading, Pa., 17; Altoona, 545; Erie, 19; Portland, Me., 42; Saginaw, 22; Toledo, 49; Milwaukee, 11; Minneapolis, 38; St. Paul, 19; Columbus, 5; Akron, 5; Evansville, 170; Duluth, 176; Cedar Rapids, 37; Salt Lake City, 10; Colorado Springs, 399; Fort Wayne, 44; Youngstown, 15; Peoria, 32; Wilkes-Barre, 64, and Pueblo, 102.

JUST NOTES

The alterations on the Sebring building at 230-232 West Front street, for which a permit was granted last month, is progressing rapidly, both day and night forces working.

Peter J. Zegilo, of Somerset street, is having several minor repairs made to his residence.

The students of Princeton University are raising funds for the erection of a new dining hall. Each of the classes have made plans to raise $100,000.

Preliminary announcements have been made of the program of the State Master Builders Association convention to be held at Orange on April 23. The speaker of the occasion will be M. J. G. Fredericks, editor of the Counsellor of Selling, Advertising and Reporting Magazine, of New York. A banquet will be held in the evening at Hotel Plaza. A meeting of the executive committee will be held at Newark on Monday evening.

Books covering the care of trees are now to be found at the Public Library. Among the recent additions to this line are: "The Pruning Book," illustrated, by L. H. Bailey; "Trees In Winter," by Albert F. Blakslee and the "Care of Trees In Lawn, Street and Park," by Prof. B. B. Frenon.

Very few people realize that the restriction of immigration means the restriction of real estate values, in fact, only a very few people would consider the matter if immigration in connection with the prices of real estate, or would they stop to think that there was any connection between the two subjects. However, a real estate man who handles considerable suburban property, has the following to say on the question:

"Speaking entirely from the real estate operator's point of view, I see in restricting immigration a greater menace to real estate than could possibly come from shifting the burden of taxation. Argue as they will, the opponents of all bills attempting to take off the tax burden from improvements must come to the inevitable realization that, as a matter of fact, no matter what method of taxation is employed, it is the population and that alone makes for land values. In densely populated areas the land is in demand and more valuable, in direct ratio with the population. Real estate men should give a great deal of thought and study to the immigration bills and figure on the probable effects on their business."

Congressman Thomas J. Scully recently introduced a bill into the House calling for an appropriation of $100,000 to cover the erection of a postoffice building at Red Bank.

IN THE SUBURBS

The steady growth of Fanwood and Scotch Plains during the past three of four years has made it necessary for the New York Telephone Company to erect a new distributing plant on North avenue, Fanwood, which is now in the course of construction.

Rumors to the effect that a New York party had purchased a portion of the Cole estate on Mountain avenue, Scotch Plains, and was to erect an elaborate bungalow and nursery have been current for the past few weeks. A Daily Press reporter has been unable to verify the report to date.

The Equator Development Company will shortly erect several new dwellings on their property on Schwartz place, Dunellen.

A carpenter shop is being erected on the property of the Lincoln Building Syndicate.

The fire department of Midland Borough are erecting a new hose house, and is now nearing completion. The Borough Council expect to hold their next meeting in the building.

The Dunellen Board of Education are now receiving bids on the contract work for the alterations and addition to Lincoln School.

Among the activities in the building trade lines of Dunellen are the following: A dwelling on Whittier avenue, being erected by Walter Muller; a dwelling in the course of construction on Prospect avenue, being erected by A. H. Burdick; a dwelling on Fairview avenue, being erected by Charles Wrage, and a dwelling on Fairview avenue, being erected by Walter Muller.

Several transfers in realty at Dunellen have occurred of late among which are the sale of the Broad property on Brunswick avenue to Morris Drake, of Plainfield; one lot in Equator Park to Paul Rabouine, one lot in Equator Park to Mayme L. Graff; four lots in Equator Park to John P. Hill.

William A. Castner is constructing an up-to-date bungalow in Dunellen.

AMERICAN EXPRESS CO. PLANS FOR NEW BUILDING

New York, March 28—The American Express Company is apparently guarding itself against future legislation on building height limitation. Yesterday it filed plans for the much discussed thirty-two story office building for the site of the company's present office at 63 and 65 Broadway. Officers of the express company, as well as of the company that has been awarded the contract for the construction, admitted recently that the building will not be erected for some time, if ever.

However, the plans, as filed by Architects Renwick, Aspinwall & Tucker, call for a structure to cover a site 79.9x209, and estimated to cost $1,800,000. A granite and terra cotta facade has been designed for the building, which is to be equipped with sixteen elevators.

THE DAILY PRESS IN BOUND BROOK will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon by Hoagland, Union News Stand at station, and A. Aaron, newsdealer.

SPRAYS FOR EMBROIDERING A BUREAU-SCARF OR SERVING TABLE-COVER

If you want to make a bureau-scarf or serving-table-cover very easily and without spending much time on it, we would suggest that you choose round thread linen, fine mercerized cotton poplin or linen and cotton mixture. The edges of the cover may be finished with a hemstitched hem about an inch and a half wide or with a rolled hem and Cluny or Irish lace. The pretty sprays from transfer pattern 14460 embroidered in the corners will be sufficient decoration, although a monogram or initial may be added if one likes. These designs should be worked entirely in well padded solid embroidery. The pattern includes four of the sprays which measure 9½ by 10 inches each and two small sprays 3 by 5 inches. These may also be used for decorating a tea-cloth, sideboard-cover, centerpiece, bedspread, lingerie pillow and other household linens. The edges of these pieces may be finished with hemstitching or plain scalloping which may be stamped with pattern 14406 or with linen lace, and you might use the same sprays for an entire set of bed-room or dining-room covers. For everyday use covers of fine mercerized cotton poplin are almost as satisfactory as linen, for this material launders beautifully and does not muss as easily as linen, while it is much less expensive.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern 14460 can be supplied to readers on receipt of price, 15 cents.

Some Cookery Suggestions

CHOICE SWEETBREAD RECIPES.

To prepare sweetbreads for cooking soak in cold water for an hour, changing the water often. This is so that the blood will be extracted. They will then be white. Place on the fire in cold water. Let them simmer for twenty minutes, when they should be blanched. Take out pipes, strings, etc., without breaking the sweetbread any more than is necessary. When cold tie each in a piece of cheesecloth. Place under a light weight.

Browned In the Oven.

Baked Sweetbreads.—Split parboiled sweetbreads in halves and brush them with melted butter or olive oil. Season them with salt and pepper and dip them in well beaten egg. Then roll them in fine breadcrumbs. Put them in a buttered baking dish and bake brown, uncovered, in a hot oven. Garnish with parsley and serve hot.

Scalloped Sweetbreads.—Cut parboiled sweetbreads in small dice. Have ready some thick, well seasoned cream sauce. Butter a baking dish, put in the bottom of it a layer of breadcrumbs, rather coarse; then a layer of sweetbread, then enough cream sauce to moisten the sweetbread and crumbs. Fill the dish with alternating layers of crumbs, sweetbread and cream sauce, topping the dish with fine buttered crumbs sprinkled over the last layer of cream sauce. Bake brown.

With Hot Sauce.

Broiled Sweetbreads.—Cut a pair of blanched and parboiled sweetbreads into halves. Brush them with a tablespoonful of olive oil and dust them with salt and pepper. Broil them over a clear, brisk fire for five minutes on each side. Have ready a few table spoonfuls of clear hot stock or gravy, season it with salt and pepper, add a few drops of lemon juice and a little chopped parsley. When the sweetbreads are broiled lay them on a hot dish and pour the hot sauce over them.

Mixed With Chicken.

Sweetbread Croquettes.—Mince a cooked sweetbread and add enough minced cooked chicken to measure two cupfuls. Melt a quarter of a cupful of butter and add half a cupful of flour. When this bubbles add gradually a cupful of chicken stock well seasoned and cooked until thick. Stir and when it is smooth add a third of a cupful of cream. Add the sweetbread and chicken and when it is hot add a beaten egg and salt and pepper. Cool and form into croquettes. Roll each croquette in fine breadcrumbs, then in beaten egg and then again in fine crumbs. Fry brown in deep fat. Serve with cream or mushroom sauce.

The Brown Cotton Tails Listened.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Brown Cotton Tail Rabbit.

"You know," said the brown cotton tail rabbit, whose name was Mr. Fuzzy Brown Cotton Tail, "I don't like to brag or boast, but I do think our family are the most sensible and the bravest animals there are."

"I agree with you perfectly," said Mrs. Fuzzy Brown Cotton Tail.

"You see," continued Mr. Fuzzy Brown Cotton Tail, "all winter the raccoon snoozes in a beech tree. The gray and red squirrels have luxurious nooks, always near their private and well filled storehouses. The chipmunks in their slightly underground homes always prepare beforehand for the hard, cold winter. The muskrats build their huts beneath the ice and are just as warm under there as if the ice were the warm sun. Even the bloodthirsty weasel is lazy. The fox does far less hunting and a great deal more sleeping, which is very stupid of him, but we—well, we are always wideawake and busy too."

Now, as Mrs. Fuzzy Brown Cotton Tail agreed with him and as the little brown cotton tail rabbits all agreed with him, there was no argument to be had, which was really what Mr. Fuzzy Brown Cotton Tail wanted. So he continued to talk, for he enjoyed it very much.

"Now, you see," he continued, "when spring comes and the warm days are here the animals who have been lazy and sleeping all winter in warm beds begin to think of getting up. The warm rains, the bright sun and the springing up of all the little tender shoots in the woods make them all feel just like getting up.

"But just imagine—think of what they've missed! They have had none of the fun of hunting for their food when it's hard to get. They simply find out the easiest way to live and then live that way. Fancy getting all your food months in advance! It's ridiculous, and it doesn't show character. It's character to stay awake all winter and hurry around when it's cold to get breakfast and to resist the wintry winds and snows and say to ourselves that we won't be beaten by a cold day. Then when spring does come we enjoy plucking up the tender plants that grow in the woods, and we enjoy the young buds."

Now, all the little brown cotton tails listened to his speech with a great deal of interest and admiration. So they jumped up and down and said, "Fine, fine!"

Mr. Fuzzy Brown Cotton Tail was so set up at his own speech that he was pleased at the applause of the little rabbits.

"The reason I'm telling you all this," he continued once more, "is because I want you all to feel grateful, to be glad that you're not foxes or weasels or muskrats, but just to be glad that you're brown cotton tail rabbits."

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

The wage-earning girl realizes the fallacy of suggesting that a vote would raise her wages, shorten her working hours or in any way benefit her industry.

Does she want it for any other reason?

Expressions from a few of them may be enlightening.

Be it remembered that the suffragist is always assuring us that the "vision of the 'stay-at-home' women is narrow, that she cannot grasp conditions, and cures as does the woman in industrial life," but that claim cannot hold with the women from whom the following quotations are made.

Apologizing for the personality the writer adds her testimony as an ex-business woman to theirs.

Nothing has played as large a part in her convictions against the necessity or expediency of equal suffrage as did the varied experience of that business of so many phases, the advertising business.

In no business is there keener competition and it is divided pretty equally between men and women.

Looked at from each side of its varied phases, the woman who would say that her sex ever made any difference, must, if truthful, declare that the discrimination was in her favor.

No vote can, or needs to improve the position of the earnest, energetic woman in business, nor could it afford any protection other than lies within herself. This is the testimony of a wage earner in her own business in a line which consists of seeking business from departments almost entirely controlled by men.

The following expressions from Miss Gertrude Knox, of Trenton, are of special interest, as Miss Knox is a living exponent of the wage-earner among those women who have sought and acquired the fullest college education.

"The American working-woman who in spite of long hours, low wages monotony, obscurity and loneliness, rejoices still in a clear conscience, and supports those American ideals which make women the natural guardian of the health and chastity of the race, shows greater heroism than that which endures a hunger strike in the midst of excitement, fame, sympathy and popularity.

"Working women do not need the vote for any practical reason. Men as well as women need houses, pure food, clean streets, good drainage, fire protection, cheap clothing, hospitals, parks, libraries, policemen and reasonable taxes. 'No taxation without representation' was not meant to be applied to individuals, women or men. Women of all classes and conditions are represented by men of all classes and conditions, who are as eager to secure justice for their wives, daughters, mothers and sisters, as they are for their fathers, sons and brothers.

"Working women will not be able to raise their own wages by the vote. They have not been able to do so where they have the vote.

"Working women do not wish lower wages for men in order that their own wages may be raised. If they marry or expect to marry, they prefer higher wages for their husbands. They do not wish to continue as wage earners after they have homes and children to care for.

"Housekeeping or housework is not beneath the dignity or interest of women. Housework has more variety and is more wholesome than shopwork, book-keeping or factory work. Without housework the working woman cannot preserve her home. People who speak slightingly of housework are pretty sure to feel slightingly of people who do housework. This is not democracy. The positions of servant, housekeeper and housewife, should be positions of respect. The suffrage movement has given more attention and respect to fallen shop girls than it has to virtuous serving women.

"If women wish to reform men, let them begin with their own characters; if they wish to reform the whole world, let them begin with reforming the home."

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER V.

MR. REYNOLDS did not come home to dinner at all. The water had got into the basement at the store, he telephoned, one of the flood gates in a sewer having leaked, and they were moving some of the departments to an upper floor. I had expected to have him in the house that evening, and now I was left alone again.

But, as it happened, I was not alone. Mr. Graves, one of the city detectives, came at half past 6 and went carefully over the Ladleys' room. I showed him the towel and the slipper and the broken knife and where we had found the knife blade. He was very noncommittal and left in a half hour, taking the articles with him in a newspaper.

At 7 the doorbell rang. I went down as far as I could on the staircase, and I saw a boat outside the door, with the boatman and a woman in it. I called to them to bring the boat back along the hall, and I had a queer feeling that it might be Mrs. Ladley and that I'd been making a fool of myself all day for nothing. But it was not Mrs. Ladley.

"Is this No. 42?" asked the woman, as the boat came back.

"Yes."

"Does Mr. Ladley live here?"

"Yes. But he is not here now."

"Are you Mrs. Pittock?"

"Pitman, yes."

The boat bumped against the stairs, and the woman got out. She was as tall as Mrs. Ladley, and when I saw her in the light from the upper hall I knew her instantly. It was Temple Hope, the leading woman from the Liberty theater.

"I would like to talk to you, Mrs. Pitman," she said. "Where can we go?"

I led the way back to my room, and when she had followed me in she turned and shut the door.

"Now, then," she said without any preliminary, "where is Jennie Brice?"

"I don't know, Miss Hope," I answered.

We looked at each other for a minute, and each of us saw what the other suspected.

"He has killed her!" she exclaimed. "She was afraid he would do it, and—he has."

"Killed her and thrown her into the river," I said. "That's what I think, and he'll go free at that. It seems there isn't any murder when there isn't any corpse."

"Nonsense! If he has done that the river will give her up eventually."

"The river doesn't always give them up," I retorted. "Not in flood time, anyhow. Or when they are found it is months later, and you can't prove anything."

She had only a little time, being due at the theater soon, but she sat down and told me the story she told afterward on the stand:

She had known Jennie Brice for years, they having been together in the chorus as long before as Nadjy.

"She was married then to a fellow on the vaudeville circuit," Miss Hope said. "He left her about that time, and she took up with Ladley. I don't think they were ever married."

"What!" I said, jumping to my feet, "and they came to a respectable house like this! There's never been a breath of scandal about this house, Miss Hope, and if it comes out I'm ruined."

"Well, perhaps they were married," she said. "Anyhow, they were always quarreling. And when he wasn't playing it was worse. She used to come to my hotel and cry her eyes out."

"I knew you were friends," I said. "Almost the last thing she said to me was about the black and white dress of hers you were to borrow for the piece this week."

"Black and white dress! I borrow one of Jennie Brice's dresses!" exclaimed Miss Hope. "I should think not. I have plenty of my own."

That puzzled me, for she had said it, that was sure. And then I remembered that I had not seen the dress in the room that day, and I went to look for it. It was gone. I came back and told Miss Hope.

"A black and white dress! Did it have a red collar?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Then I remember it. She wore a small black hat with a red quill with that dress. You might look for the hat."

She followed me back to the room and stood in the doorway while I searched. The hat was gone, too.

"Perhaps, after all, he's telling the truth," she said thoughtfully. "Her fur coat isn't in the closet, is it?"

It was gone. It is strange that all day I had never thought of looking over her clothes and seeing what was missing. I hadn't known all she had, of course, but I had seen her all winter in her fur coat and admired it. It was a striped fur, brown and gray, and very unusual. But with the coat missing and a dress and hat gone, it began to look as if I had been making a fool of myself and stirring up a tempest in a teacup. Miss Hope was as puzzled as I was.

"Anyhow if he didn't kill her," she said, "it isn't because he did not want to. Only last week she had hysterics in my dressing room and said he had threatened to poison her. It was all Mr. Bronson, the business manager, and I could do to quiet her."

She looked at her watch and exclaimed that she was late and would have to hurry. I saw her down to her boat. The river had been falling rapidly for the last hour or two, and I heard the boat scrape as it went over the door sill. I did not know whether to be glad that the water was going down, and I could live like a Christian again or to be sorry for fear of what we might find in the mud that was always left.

"Peter!" I said. "Poor old Peter!"

Peter was lying where I had put him, on a folded blanket laid in a clothes basket. I went back to him and sat down beside the basket.

"Peter!" I said. "Poor old Peter! Who did this to you? Who hurt you?" He looked at me and whined, as if he wanted to tell me if only he could.

"Was it Mr. Ladley?" I asked. And the poor thing cowered close to his bed and shivered. I wondered if it had been he and if it had why he had come back. Perhaps he had remembered the towel. Perhaps he would come again and spend the night there. I was like Peter. I cowered and shivered at the very thought.

At 9 o'clock I heard a boat at the door. It had stuck there, and its occupant was scolding furiously at the boatman. Soon after I heard splashing, and I knew that whoever it was was wading back to the stairs through the foot and a half or so of water still in the hall. I ran back to my room and locked myself in and then stood armed with the stove lid lifter in case it should be Ladley and he should break the door in.

The steps came up the stairs, and Peter barked furiously. It seemed to me that this was to be my end, killed like a rat in a trap and thrown out the window, to float, like my kitchen chair, into Moffie Maguire's kitchen, or to be found lying in the ooze of the yard after the river had gone down.

The steps hesitated at the top of the stairs and turned back along the hall. Peter redoubled his noise. He never barked for Mr. Reynolds or the Ladleys. I stood still, hardly able to breathe. The door was thin and the lock loose. One good blow, and—

The doorknob turned, and I screamed. I recall that the light turned black and that is all I do remember until I came to a half hour later and saw Mr. Holcombe stooping over me. The door, with the lock broken, was standing open. I tried to move, and then I saw that my feet were propped up on the edge of Peter's basket.

"Better leave them up," Mr. Holcome said. "It sends the blood back to the head. Half the —— fool people in the world stick a pillow under a fainting woman's shoulders. How are you now?"

"All right," I said feebly. "I thought you were Mr. Ladley."

He helped me up, and I sat in a chair and tried to keep my lips from shaking. And then I saw that Mr. Holcombe had brought a suit case with him and had set it inside the door.

"Ladley is safe until he gets bail, anyhow," he said. "They picked him up as he was boarding a Pennsylvania train bound east."

"For murder?" I asked.

"As a suspicious character," he replied grimly. "That does as well as anything for a time." He sat down opposite me and looked at me intently.

"Mrs. Pitman," he said, "did you ever hear the story of the horse that wandered out of a village and could not be found?"

I shook my head.

"Well, the best wit of the village failed to locate the horse. But one day the village idiot walked into town leading the missing animal by the bridle. When they asked him how he had done it, he said, "Well, I just thought what I'd do if I was a horse and then I went and did it."

"I see," I said, humoring him.

"You don't see. Now, what are we trying to do?"

"We're trying to find a body. Do you intend to become a corpse?"

He leaned over and tapped on the table between us. "We are trying to prove a crime. I intend for the time to be a criminal."

He looked so curious, bent forward and glaring at me from under his bushy eyebrows, with his shoes on his knee—for he had taken them off to wade to the stairs—and his trousers rolled to his knees, that I wondered if he was entirely sane. But Mr. Holcombe, eccentric as he might be, was sane enough.

"Not really a criminal!"

"As really as lies in me. Listen, Mrs. Pitman. I want to put myself in Ladley's place for a day or two, live as he lived, if I can. I am going to sleep in his room tonight, with your permission."

I could not see any reason for objecting, although I thought it silly and useless. I led the way to the front door, Mr. Holcombe following with his shoes and suit case. I lighted a lamp and he stood looking around him.

"I see you have been here since we left this afternoon," he said.

"Twice," I replied. "First with Mr. Graves, and later"—

The words died on my tongue. Some one had been in the room since my last visit there.

"He has been here!" I gasped. "I left the room in tolerable order. Look at it!"

"When were you here last?"

"At 7:30, or thereabouts."

"Where were you between 7:30 and 8:30?"

"In the kitchen with Peter." I told him then about the dog and about finding him shut in the room.

The washstand was pulled out. The sheets of Mr. Ladley's manuscript, usually an orderly pile, were half on the floor. The bed coverings had been jerked off and flung over the back of a chair.

Peter imprisoned might have moved the washstand and upset the manuscript. Peter had never put the bedclothing over the chair or broken his own leg.

"Humph!" he said. And, getting out his notebook, he made an exact memorandum of what I had told him and of the condition of the room. That done, he turned to me.

"Mrs. Pitman," he said, "I'll thank you to call me Mr. Ladley for the next day or so. I am an actor out of employment, forty-one years of age, short, stout and bald, married to a woman I would like to be quit of, and I am writing myself a play in which the Shuberts intend to star me or in which I intend the Shuberts to star me."

"Very well, Mr. Ladley," I said, trying to enter into the spirit of the thing and, God knows, seeing no humor in it. "Then you'll like your soda from the icebox?"

"Soda? For what?"

"For your whisky and soda before you go to bed, sir."

"Oh, certainly, yes. Bring the soda. And—just a moment, Mrs. Pitman. Mr. Holcombe is a total abstainer and has always been so. It is Ladley, not Holcombe, who takes this abominable stuff."

I said I quite understood, but that Mr. Ladley could skip a night if he so wished. But the little gentleman would not hear to it, and when I brought the soda poured himself a double portion. He stood looking at it, with his face screwed up, as if the very odor revolted him.

"The chances are," he said, "that Ladley—that I—having a nasty piece of work to do during the night, would—will take a larger drink than usual." He raised the glass, only to put it down. "Don't forget," he said, "to put a large knife where you left the one last night. I'm sorry the water has gone down, but I shall imagine it still at the seventh step. Good night, Mrs. Pitman."

"Good night, Mr. Ladley," I said, smiling, "and remember, you are three weeks in arrears with your board."

His eyes twinkled through his spectacles. "I shall imagine it paid," he said.

I went out, and I heard him close the door behind me. Then, through the door, I heard a great sputtering and coughing, and I knew he had got the whisky down somehow. I put the knife out, as he had asked me to, and went to bed. I was ready to drop. Not even the knowledge that an imaginary Mr. Ladley was about to commit an imaginary crime in the house that night could keep me awake.

Mr. Reynolds came in at 11 o'clock. I was roused when he banged his door. That was all I knew until morning. The sun on my face wakened me. Peter, in his basket, lifted his head as I moved and thumped his tail against his pillow in greeting. I put on a wrapper and called Mr. Reynolds by knocking at his door. Then I went on to the front room. The door was closed, and some one beyond was groaning. My heart stood still, and then raced on. I opened the door and looked in.

Mr. Holcombe was on the bed, fully dressed. He had a wet towel tied around his head, and his face looked swollen and puffy. He opened one eye and looked at me.

"What a night!" he groaned.

"What happened! What did you find?"

He groaned again. "Find!" he said. "Nothing, except that there was something wrong with that whisky. It poisoned me. I haven't been out of the house!"

So for that day at least Mr. Ladley became Mr. Holcombe again, and as such accepted ice in quantities, a mustard plaster over his stomach and considerable nursing. By evening he was better, but although he clearly intended to stay on, he said nothing about changing his identity again, and I was glad enough. The very name of Ladley was horrible to me.

The river went down almost entirely that day, although there was considerable water in the cellars. It takes time to get rid of that. The lower floors showed nothing suspicious. The papers were ruined, of course, the doors warped and sprung and the floors coated with mud and debris. Terry came in the afternoon, and together we hung the dining room rug out to dry in the sun.

As I was coming in I looked over at the Maguire yard. Molly Maguire was there and all her children around her, gaping. Molly was hanging out to dry a sodden fur coat that had once been striped brown and gray.

I went over after breakfast and claimed the coat as belonging to Mrs. Ladley. But she refused to give it up. There is a sort of unwritten law regarding the salvage of flood articles, and I had to leave the coat, as I had my kitchen chair. But it was Mrs. Ladley's beyond a doubt.

I shuddered when I thought how it had probably got into the water. And yet it was curious, too, for if she had had it on, how did it get loose to go floating around Molly Maguire's yard? And if she had not worn it, how did it get in the water?

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

No. 7824 is a blouse design which may be cut and finished in an hour or two. It is suitable for silk, linen or a light wool material and may be trimmed with stitching or have the collar and cuffs of a contrasting material. If the waist is developed in a dark silk, it is also effective to close it with a line of novelty buttons in pretty colorings.

There are several ways of finishing the bottom of separate waists; the most approved method is the shaped peplum of the material or of muslin. If the pattern does not allow for this peplum, one may be made by cutting from a fold of muslin or silk, a semi-circular piece about half the width of the waist line and about 3 inches wide; try on the waist, arrange the fullness to your satisfaction, adjust the peplum and cut away the extra material from underneath.

This blouse is in Peasant design, closing surplice fashion on the side; has an elbow length sleeve and a separate guimpe.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes; 34 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

What Prudential Partnership Insurance Does:

It allows the firm more freedom in the use of its capital.

It improves credit.

It enables the business to go on without a halt in case of the death of a partner.

It will purchase the holdings of the deceased partner, and prevent a settlement by forced sale, or the almost invariable depreciation when stock must be sold quickly.

Let us tell you many other good reasons.

SECOND HAND "ROYAL" TYPEWRITERS REBUILT!

You will have trouble to find one, they are scarce. WHY? There must be a reason. Listen what Dr. F. J. H., of this city, says:

"My 'Royal Typewriter' was received today in A-1 condition after repairs amounting to $5.20. It may interest you to know that I have had this typewriter over six years, during which time it has given uniform satisfaction and this is the first outlay for repairs in that entire period. It looks good for six years longer."

CROWDS ATTEND REVIVAL MEETING

Special Services Are Being Held at Park Avenue Baptist Church.

PROF. STOUT ASSISTING

"Gospel Singer" Makes Favorable Impression—Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire Delivers Interesting Sermon.

The series of special meetings to be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church for the next few weeks, under the direction of Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, began yesterday morning, and were continued last night with the assistance of Prof. B. P. Stout, of Pasedena, Cal., the "gospel singer." Large congregations attended both services. At the morning service, Prof. Stout sang effectively "Face to Face," "The Lost Ship of Procrastination," "Give Me Jesus" and "Do You Love Jesus."

Rev. Mr. Maguire preached with exceptional interest, last night, from the text, "This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus came into the world to save sinners." In part he said:

"The most important embassy ever sent in the history of this world, was the embassy of Christ from the court of heaven to men and women on the earth; and its mission was to save us from our sins. Sin is marring humanity, and is just as rampant today as in the days of Jesus. We hear people speaking of the devil as 'Old Nick,' 'Old Harry,' 'Old Scratch,' thinking they can dismiss him from their minds in this flippant manner.

"First, sin makes men and women poor. No matter how many houses a man owns, nor how large his bank account, nor the number of bonds and stocks in his name, that man is worse off than the beggar on the streets, if he is living in sin, for the beggar may have the knowledge of sins forgiven. A man may own the world and yet die a pauper spiritually. Sin robs a man of his innocency, trustful spirit, his trust in Jesus Christ and his title to heaven; and gives in return bags of sand that have no purchasing power in the land where he is going.

"Second, sin makes us prisoners. Look where you may, you will find men and women held in the awful bondage of wicked habits; to the eyes of the world they seem highly respectable, yet beneath their broadcloth they are living a life of sin. Imagine a man such a slave to sin that he dare not think of escape. Think of a woman such a slave to the drink habit that she has lost all realization of the responsibilities of motherhood, whose soul is bound with handcuffs, and selfishness eating away here life like a gnawing cancer.

"Third, sin makes men and women blind. Saul, of Tarsus, thought that while he was persecuting Christians he was doing the will of God, yet He who came to save sinners saved Saul. And Christ saves sinners in a most gracious and loving way—when we repent of our sins and accept the salvation of Jesus, the debt is nailed over our door. But many of us are too proud until we get in the dust, like Saul, of Tarsus. If ever we are saved, it will be as paupers and not as princes. There are many people in our own fair city who seem to think they have a free pass to heaven because they give a large contribution to the hospital, or the Children's Camp. We sometimes hear a person say he cannot accept Christ until he has had time to consider this very important question—does a man need time to consider whether it is better to be good than to be bad? Another says he is waiting for better terms—until the day comes when he can drink and gamble and do as he pleases, and be a Christian at the same time.

"If he wants an easy religion he will find it in some churches in nearby cities where they are running little short branch roads which they think are one grand trunk line to heaven; but there is only one Grand Trunk line, and this—when we have been convicted by the Holy Ghost and repented of our sins—carries us to the grand station of conversion, from which point we reach the magnificent depots of obedience and brotherly love, the garden spot of the universe. The only terms of salvation are found in a look at the Crucified One, the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world. The story is told of a mother who had tenderly cared for her idiot child for fourteen years, and the mother was broken-hearted because the child did not recognize her from any other women. How many there are in Plainfield—and in Park Avenue church—for whom Jesus has cared for very tenderly for years, upon whom He has showered

SCHEDULE REDUCED TO THIRTY HOURS

Pond Tool Works Running With Greatly Reduced Force.

Industrial conditions in this city remain stagnant, despite the fact that the Saurer plant of the International Motor concern recently put on several of the mechanics who were laid off some months ago. At the Pond Machine Tool Company plant, a thirty-hour schedule will take effect this week, after working on a forty and forty-five hour schedule for the past two or three months.

The fact that the railroads are curtailing their forces and expenses probably effects the local plants quicker than any other condition. However, the spring business about to open, local shops should, in a very short time experience a turn for the better.

The one redeeming feature of the situation in this city, is that at the Saurer plant, where conditions were in the extreme last fall, but which took on several additional men two weeks ago, is now working its way to the front. There is now at this plant a force numbering in the vicinity of two hundred and fifty men, with a strong possibility of taking on another twenty-five men during the current week. The outlook at that shop at this time is very promising.

RABBI L. J. CANTOR ACCEPTS THE CALL

Will Take Charge of the Congregation Lovers of Justice.

Rabbi L. J. Cantor, of New York, following an able presentation of the truth according to the doctrine of the Congregation Lovers of Justice, which meets at 444 West Third street, at its meeting last night, was selected as the permanent rabbi to take charge of the congregation. Mr. Cantor has an extensive knowledge of Judaism, and the local congregation considers itself fortunate in being able to secure his services.

The Congregation Lovers of Justice was recently organized in this city, the members formerly being identified with the synagoge on New street. According to the members its work is largely devoted to charity, in which it takes a great pride. Rabbi Cantor's chief object will be to teach the principles of Judaism, especially among the poor.

LECTURE ON THE CARE AND MANAGEMENT OF BEES

The last lecture of the winter course under the auspices of the Union County Board of Agriculture, will be held next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the board room in the court house, Elizabeth. Prof. Carr will speak on the "Care and Management of Bees." Beekeeping is a source of income that has been neglected by the people of this county. The little workers give large returns for the care and expense they require and there is no good reason why beekeeping should not be more general.

The work is light and pleasant and particularly adapted to women and young people. The money return from a hive of bees properly handled is as great as the return from eight hens with the expense and labor in favor of the bees. Prof. Carr thoroughly understands his subject and his talk will not be for the professional beekeeper but for the instruction and help of the beginner or novice. This meeting, like all the others of the board, will be open to any one interested. Prof. Carr comes in response to many requests for information on this subject and a large attendance at this lecture is expected.

The board also requests any who are in favor of the farm demonstrator movement in this county to attend this meeting as the matter will come up for discussion after the lecture.

POOR TROLLEY SERVICE.

Patrons of the trolley in this city have frequently been complaining about the poor service during the evening rush hour. Frequently there is an elapse of a half-hour or more in the westbound cars on the Main Line and inquiry as to the cause brings no satisfactory explanation. It has been suggested that the company be compelled to operate its cars on a seven and a half minute schedule during rush hours to obviate the trouble. If a Main Line car is delayed an unusual time it is the local traffic that is made to suffer.

W. T. STUCHELL IS A CANDIDATE

ON REPUBLICAN TICKET

William de LaR. Anderson Also Announces His Candidacy for Congressional Nomination and States His Platform.

Rev. William Torrence Stuchell, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church at Rahway and well-known in this city, today announces himself as a candidate for Congress in the Fifth district, and will seek the nomination to be held at the primary election in September. For sometime prior to giving up his pastorate at Rahway, Mr. Stuchell became interested in politics. His announcement today is addressed to the Republican voters of the Fifth Congressional district, and is as follows:

"Acting upon the earnest solicitation of many friends in our district and in full accordance with my own desire, I hereby announce my candidacy for the Congressional nomination of the Republican party at the primary election to be held for the selections of nominees in September.

"Full announcement of my platform will be made in due time, and as opportunity shall offer during the campaign, I will hope to have the pleasure of personally presenting to many of you the principles upon which I stand. At this time, however, for the information of those who do not know me, I would state that my platform will be distinctly progressive; that it will be constructive, and that it will recognize that the paramount issues today are not political, but social.

"If I shall secure the nomination and later win in the general election, I have so ordered my affairs as that there will be no other business or calling to conflict with my official duties, but my whole time will be spent in the service of those I represent, and with the desire always to secure full justice and the greatest opportunities for all, my constant efforts shall be for such legislation and such a representation of our district as shall result in the greatest good to that large number of whom I am glad I can subscribe myself as one, the 'common people.'"

Coincident with the above announcement comes one presenting William de La R. Anderson, former Assemblyman from Somerset county, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Fourth district. On Saturday, Mr. Anderson announced his candidacy, and has given out a platform on which he will run before the people for the nomination. The platform is as follows:

1. I believe that "big business" should have national license in addition to State incorporation. This would keep taxes in the State of incorporation and give Federal supervision in commerce between the States without any question of authority.

2. I believe that the tariff should be flexible and kept out of politics in the hands of an expert commission.

3. I believe in the National budget as against the "pork barrel."

4. I believe a diplomatic service should be built up on merit with adequate pay as against posts for party service reward.

Mr. Anderson is 37 years old, married, has two children, and was born in North Plainfield. He passed the Harvard entrance examination at 14 years of age, but entered politics instead in the Strong administration in New York, becoming one of the secretaries of that great reform Mayor. After the death of the Mayor, Mr. Anderson was connected with the Strong banking house, where he received a broad general business training. Now he is running a farm of his own besides being interested in various business plants.

When Mr. Anderson was elected to the Assembly of 1912 he was named on the jury reform commission which brought about much of the present law. During this time he familiarized himself with the needs of Mercer county, one of the three counties he now seeks to serve in Congress. He is now chairman of the Progressive Republican League, chairman of the North Plainfield Township Committee, last year being unanimously elected to that committee, being indorsed by all parties. He is president of the North Plainfield Township Board of Health and active in civic and benevolent organizations.

LARGE CLASS IS CONFIRMED

Bishop O'Connor Receives 209 Adults and Children into St. Mary's Church.

MAKES FINE ADDRESS

Rev. John McDonald, New Curate, Says 9:30 Mass—Father B. M. Bogan Preaches Eloquent Lenten Sermon.

The Rt. Rev. John J. O'Connor, Bishop of the Newark Diocese, visited St. Mary's church at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and confirmed a class of 209 adults and children, which included a class of thirty-two from Scotch Plains, which Father Vincent Sciolla has been teaching and getting in readiness for yesterday's ceremonies. This is one of the largest classes confirmed at St. Mary's church in some time and was the occasion for favorable comment on the part of the Bishop, who took occasion to praise the work of Father Bernard M. Bogan, pastor of the church, and his assistants.

Bishop O'Connor made an interesting and impressive address to the members of the class on the necessity, meaning and value of the Sacrament, giving them wise counsel and advice in living the right kind of a life. The Bishop's words were listened to with close attention on the part of the large number of worshippers which thronged the edifice. The Bishop was accompanied by several church dignitaries.

Rev. John McDonald, of Paterson, the new curate of St. Mary's church, succeeding Father Daniel Hogan, who has been transferred to Jersey City, said the 9:30 o'clock mass yesterday morning, this being his first service since his ordination at Seton Hall College, South Orange, from which he was graduated last week. He left Plainfield during the day, but will return here on Thursday, when he will take up his duties as assistant to Father Bogan. Father McDonald's home is in Paterson, where he lived the greater part of his life. He is a young man, possesses a genial disposition and has a faculty for making friends.

Father Bernard M. Bogan preached at all of the masses yesterday morning, except the 9:30 o'clock, and last night at 8 o'clock he preached a Lenten sermon to a large congregation. As soon as Father McDonald comes to Plainfield he will divide his pastoral work with Father Bogan and Father Sciolla.

WILL ORGANIZE SUFFRAGE LEAGUE AT SO. PLAINFIELD

Under the direction of members of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield a meeting to organize an Equal Suffrage League at South Plainfield will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Brantingham on Lehigh avenue, that place, Friday afternoon. Immediately after the meeting held at the South Plainfield Baptist church, Friday night, when Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association and Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, secretary of the Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, were the speakers, a number of men and women present expressed their desire to form a suffrage league.

It was requested that Mrs. Bertha H. Jennings send an invitation to the State president to attend the meeting and formally organize them into a league. Mrs. Feickert addressed the meeting Friday night on the subject of "New Jersey Laws and Woman Suffrage," in which she showed how closely the two are related. Mrs. Feickert has never been an advocate of the English militant methods, although she and other suffrage speakers have frequently explained that conditions in this country and England are vastly different.

JUDGE BEEKMAN HELD UP VERDICT

In Case of Appointment of Administrator for Carney Estate.

ALLEGE INCOMPETENCY

Witnesses Testify That Andrew Carney is Unfit to Handle the Estate of His Brother—Liabilities Placed at $9,000 With Assets of $6,300.

Following a hearing in the Somerset County Court in Somerville, this morning, Judge Beekman reserved decision in the case wherein creditors of the estate of the late David J. Carney opposed the granting of letters of administration to Andrew Carney to act as executor in the estate of his brother, the decedent. Winfield S. Angleman, of this city, represented Mr. Carney at the hearing and contended that his client was capable of handling the disposition of the estate and claimed that he was now the administrator and consequently practically the receiver of the assets of the estate. In addressing the court this morning, Mr. Angleman claimed that it had no alternative except the appointment of Mr. Carney, a niece and a nephew as executors.

William A. Coddington represented the creditors, William L. Smalley and Morris VanArsdale, and he endeavored to show that Mr. Carney was incompetent to be trusted with the administration. He answered Mr. Angleman by stating the grounds on which his clients had the right to oppose the appointment of Mr. Carney. He presented facts by which it was shown the liabilities of the estate amount to about $9,000, while the assets total about $6,300. This latter amount included $3,000 which was placed as an approximate valuation on the Monarch Printing Company's plant and the North Plainfield Review, which were run by Mr. Carney. Mr. Coddington claimed that the good will of the decedent amounted to practically nothing.

Miss Mary Kennedy, a bookkeeper in the employ of the Monarch Printing Company, testified that there were liabilities on the company's books at the present time amounting to nearly $1,000 and that the business had been declining rapidly during the past few months and that money had been lost.

William L. Smalley and Newton B. Smalley took the stand and testified that Mr. Carney was incompetent to act as administrator and presented facts to substantiate their contentions. Leslie R. Fort was called to enlighten the court as to the value of the printing plant and he placed the figures at $3,000, which he referred to as a high estimate.

The main point used by the creditors in their argument was the fact that Mr. Carney was incapable of properly handling the affairs of the estate. The principal creditors for whom Mr. Coddington appeared, are George M. LaMont, Commissioner of the State Department of Insurance and Banking; Charles T. Fury, proprietor of a hotel in Trenton, and the local men afore mentioned.

UNION COUNTY BAR ASSOCIATION BANQUET

The Union County Bar Association held a banquet in the Elks' Club in Elizabeth, Saturday night, a large number of members from different parts of the county attending the affair which was presided over by Justice James J. Bergen. Frank Blatz, W. A. Coddington, W. R. Coddington and Ast Randolph, from this city, attended the dinner.

The speakers included Judge James C. Connolly, Judge William Spears, successor to Judge B. A. Vail; Welcome B. Bender and Frank Bergen.

FEDERATION PLANS LOCAL OPTION RALLY

To Be Held in This City Under Auspices of Men's Bible Classes.

The executive committee of the Federation of Men's Bible Classes, met yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. parlors, at which local and State anti-liquor questions were discussed. George Batchelor, president of the organization, presided. R. S. Powell, of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, was present and discussed the plans for a local option rally now being planned to be held here Monday, April 20. The place of the meeting will be announced later.

The federation decided to co-operate with the Anti-Saloon League in conducting the rally and in the formation of a county branch of the latter organization, for which the meeting was to be a preliminary move. Much interest was manifested by those present yesterday, and considerable effort will be made in this city and vicinity in behalf of local option and kindred other bills now pending before the legislature.

At the rally planned several speakers of State and national reputation will be present and make addresses.

FREEHOLDER J. LOGAN FAY PASSES AWAY

Prominent Elizabeth Democrat Succumbs to a Short Illness.

J. Logan Fay, for seven years a member of the Union County Board of Freeholders, died this morning in Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth, after an illness of brief duration. He was taken ill at his home, 354 First street, Elizabeth, the latter part of last week and steadily grew worse. Physicians advised his immediate removal to the hospital and he died in that institution at 10 o'clock this morning. His illness was diagnosed as intestinal trouble and he suffered intensely yesterday and last night. All hopes for his recovery were abandoned at midnight last night and the family arrived at his bedside early this morning and remained until he passed away.

He is survived by a wife and thee children, all living in Elizabeth. Mr. Fay was 50 years of age and had been a life long resident of Union county. He took an active part in politics, being a Democrat. In the fall of 1911 he ran for the office of sheriff on the Democratic ticket and although defeated received an overwhelming majority over his opponents in Elizabeth. He was also a member of the small Board of Freeholders, before it was legislated out of office.

Mr. Fay was a prominent figure in Elizabeth's civic life, always taking a conspicuous part in movements launched for the city's welfare. He was the proprietor of a large hostelry in Elizabethport and this was the centre for hundreds of employes from the Singer factory who visited his place of business daily.

MODERN EQUIPPED STORE WILL BE OPENED TOMORROW

One of the most modern equipped butcher shops in the State will be opened to the local public tomorrow afternoon when William L. Smalley will transfer his place of business from Fourth street and Park avenue to his new building at Fifth street and Park avenue. Mr. Smalley will occupy the corner store of the three story structure for his butcher business and an extra corps of mechanics are working on the interior of the place so as to have it in readiness for moving in tonight.

The interior of the shop is constructed of white enameled brick and the trimmings are of white glass. This opaque glass encloses the cashier's office and Mr. Smalley's private office in the rear of the strong. Light will be supplied by seven non-shadow electric lights in the ceiling of the place. The flooring is made of concrete. The new store is laid out on the most approved sanitary plan and will afford Mr. Smalley better opportunities to take care of patrons in the future.

STRICTLY CASH GROCERY.

On and after April 1st, Fred H. Firstbrook, the grocer, 116 West Front street, will discontinue the credit system and operate on a strictly cash plan, believing that the long credit plan is out of date and that he can save his trade considerable money by paying cash. There will be no soliciting of orders. Telephone and counter orders will be promptly delivered. See his adv. in this issue.

DERAILED CARS TORE UP TRACK

Accident Occurred on the New Jersey Central Last Saturday Night.

DELAY OF TWO HOURS

None Injured—Mishap Similar to the One of Four Weeks Ago—1,000 Feet of Rails Ruined and 200 Ties Had to be Replaced.

The Philadelphia and Reading fast freight passing through here westbound at 10:50 o'clock Saturday night, was delayed for two hours on the New Jersey Central tracks, between Park and Madison avenues, when a wheel on one of the trucks snapped off. The accident occurred on track No. 4 east of Washington avenue, and parts of the broken wheel were dragged over the ties for a distance of 1,000 feet before the engineer succeeded in bringing the train to a standstill.

The freight was traveling at a fast clip when the mishap occurred and 200 ties and 1,000 feet of track will have to be replaced as the result of the ripping and grinding of the broken iron. Two of the cars in the middle of the train were derailed and a crew of men and a wrecker from Elizabethport were dispatched to clear up the wreck at midnight, Saturday. Traffic was tied up on both of the westbound tracks.

It is a peculiar coincidence that this wreck should occur on exactly the same ground as a similar one, four weeks ago, Saturday night. In the first mishap two cars were derailed and a section of the iron fence between the tracks on the Park avenue bridge was ripped up by the freight traveling on the roadbed. These marks still remain in the iron structure and many of those who viewed Saturday's wreck examined these as relics of the second affair. The wrecked car tore up the roadbed and scattered large pieces of cracked stone in very direction. Several pedestrians who were passing under the Park avenue and Watchung avenue bridges at the time narrowly escaped being struck by pieces of flying rock. The grating sound of the wheels as they passed over the ties and the flashes produced by sparks, which flew in every direction, caused considerable excitement among the large crowd which flocked to the scene within a few minutes after the accident happened.

ELKS' CLUBHOUSE OPEN FOR INSPECTION TONIGHT

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., announce a public inspection of its new $100,000 clubhouse on Watchung avenue, for this evening. Women are especially invited to avail themselves of this opportunity to inspect the elaborately furnished and well-appointed home of the Elks. An attractive program of music will be provided during the evening and members of the lodge will be present to give everyone a cordial reception and show them through the building.

Harry B. MacDonald is chairman of the committee in charge of the opening and arrangements have been made to entertain the visitors in a pleasing manner. The clubhouse is conceded to be one of the finest in the country, being replete with everything that one could wish for the comfort of members.

HENRY HESS PASSES AWAY, AGED 80 YEARS

Henry Hess, aged eighty, for thirty-five years a resident of this city, died this morning at his home, 215 Spooner avenue, after an illness of two weeks. Mr. Hess suffered an attack of the grip about fifteen days ago, and pneumonia developed.

Mr. Hess was a native of Germany, and a landscape gardener by trade. He was an attendant of the German Reformed caurch, of the borough. Besides the widow, Mr. Hess is survived by three children, John Hess, of Elizabeth; Mrs. Lilliam Melvin, of this city, and Mrs. William Beer, of Mansfield, O. The following stepchildren also survive, Roundsman Andrew Saffron, George Saffron and Mrs. Margaret Glenser, all of this city. The notice of funeral services will be made later.

MISSION SOCIETY MEETING.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Mattison will conduct the devotional exercises. The meeting will be held at the home of Miss Marie Fountain on West Seventh street. Mrs. Lucie Rising will tell of the recent Judson Centennial tours to Burma.

Grandin Neighbour, son of Councilman and Mrs. Forman G. Neighbour, is convalescing very satisfactorily from his attack of typhoid fever. He was able to leave his bed and get about his room for a little while yesterday.

The residents in the vicinity of Mountainview Terrace and Washington avenue have for the past three or four nights been tendered a free concert by a no small company of dogs, a large percentage of which, no doubt, have owners and should be chained up. Listening to a concert by Pryor and his band, when one is comfortably seated, is one thing and being awakened out of a sound sleep and compelled to listen to the discordant concert of a pack of dogs is another and the nightly unwilling listeners have become so incensed over having their slumbers disturbed that a point has about been reached when they will take the law into their own hands and indulge in a shooting bee at the expense, perchance, of the life of the dog or neighbors..

Mrs. Enoch Hardingham, of Mountainview Terrace, has recovered to such an extent from her recent critical illness of about two months duration that her attending physician, Dr. G. W. Endicott, of Plainfield, made his last call at her residence yesterday.

Benjamin Vail is recovering rapidly from the effects of his recent operation and expects to be able to resume his duties at the hardward store of Smalley Brothers this week.

The two pandhandlers who were arrested by Marshal Tarpey, Friday evening, were arraigned before Judge von Minden in the Borough Hall, Saturday and given a suspended sentence. The theory that the local police are working on, viz., that by arresting all vagrants the chances of local burglaries are reduced, is a most logical one and in order to facilitate the workings of his department in this respect, Chief Marshal Mohan, through these columns, requests persons to immediately notify headquarters whenever a vagrant presents himself at their door.

Exercises will be held in the local schools April 17 in observance of Arbor Day, when according to the annual custom the children will plant a tree on the school ground. This date is occasioned because Arbor Day fall on the tenth, which is Good Friday.

News of the death of Mrs. Ann S. Bartle has been received here. She was a resident of Scotch Plains up to two years ago, when she removed to New Brunswick, where she died suddenly on Saturday. She was the sister of the late Mrs. Isaac Bartle, of this place, and is survived by a granddaughter, Mrs. Alfred Marsh, formerly of this place, and two great-grandchildren. The funeral will be held in this place and will be private.

The new distributing plant being erected by the New York Telephone Company at North avenue, the borough, is rapidly nearing completion. When finished it will be used for both Fanwood and Scotch Plains.

As far as can be learned the reports about here that J. Ackerman Coles was to sell part of his beautiful estate on Mountain avenue, to a New York party are groundless. Dr. Coles is spending the winter in New York and his place is in the hands of a caretaker. The Coles' estate is generally considered to be one of the finest estates in this part of New Jersey. There is a deer herd of about twenty-five head. The grounds are also beautifully laid out with many fountains and statues. Until recently the place was open to the public, but the large numbers who visited the place became destructive and so the estate has been closed except for certain days.

Percy Cook's valuable birds seem none the worst for their experience of several weeks ago when the house they were sheltered in capsized from the weight of the snow. They are for the most part tropical birds that might be effected by the cold. Mr Cook has probably one of the finest collection of tropical animals in these parts. At one time he had a lion cub but had to kill it because it grew so savage. Mr. Cook intends to increase his collection considerably the coming summer.

PRINCETON EDUCATOR TO BE BERMUDA SCHOOL INSPECTOR

Princeton, March 3—Professor George S. Patton, of the department of philosophy, has accepted an appointment as inspector of schools of the Bermudas and will resign his professorship in the Princeton faculty this year, taking up his duties in Bermuda, July 1.

Professor Patton's father, Dr Francis Landley Patton, former president of the university, and of the Princeton Theological Seminary, will move from Princeton to Bermuda with his son. Dr. Patton has been anxious for several years to return to Bermuda, where he was born and when he retired from the presidency of the seminary last June he said he would divide his time between Princeton and Bermuda.

TENEMENT INSPECTOR TEST.

Trenton, March 30—A Civil Service examination will be held April 17 for the position of tenement-house inspector for the Board of Tenement House Sopervision. The salary is $1,200 a year. Candidates, in addition to knowing how to take building measurements, must be familiar with the laws under which the board acts. Applications must be filed with the Civil Service Commission not later than April 10.

BULL MOOSE LIKES G. O. P. CANDIDATE

League Ignores Colby's Assurance to Whitehead.

HAS PROGRESSIVE IDEAS.

Pass Resolution Indorsing Candidacy of Drukker, Republican Candidate. Senator Hughes to Seek Assistance From Bryan and Clark In His Fight to Put Secretary In Congress.

Paterson, N. J., March 30.—Although former State Senator Everett Colby sent a letter to Henry C. Whitehead, the Progressive candidate for congress in the Seventh New Jersey district, assuring him that he would receive the support of Colby's friends in Passaic county, the Colby league of Passaic county passed a resolution at a meeting indorsing the candidacy of Dow H. Drukker, the Republican candidate.

Joseph W. Hardy, leader of the Colby or conservative faction of the Progressive party, said Drukker had shown himself to be a man of progressive ideas.

During the primary campaign Hardy made an attack on James G. Blauvelt, leader of the radical Progressives, who was largely responsible for the nomination of Whitehead.

It is understood that United States Senator William Hughes will try to get Secretary of State Bryan and Speaker Champ Clark to leave Washington long enough to make a speech or two for James J. O'Byrne, the senator's secretary, who is the Democratic candidate.

In Passaic city the Republicans have decided to detail ten men in each election district to get out the registered Republicans at the special election on April 7. The same program will probably be carried out in Paterson.

NEW PLAN TO OUST SALOONS

Archdeacon Carter's Wife Proposes Citizens' Club For Montclair.

Montclair, N. J., March 30.—Mrs. Frederick B. Carter, wife of Archdeacon Frederick B. Carter, ex-rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, proposes "citizens' clubs" as a substitute for the saloon in Montclair.

Mrs. Carter has been in communication with the Rev. James E. Freeman, pastor of St. Mark's church, Minneapolis, who formerly conducted Hollywood inn at Yonkers, N. Y., who is promoting the citizens' clubs in the western cities, and she has received information from him concerning these enterprises which prompts her to advocate their establishment in Montclair.

Mrs. Carter is urging the men's clubs of Montclair to take up the matter. The clubs offer elevating privileges at a small cost per year to the members, and, while they are fostered by the church, they are conducted without church interference.

CANOE UPSET; FOUR SAVED.

Youths Fight Swift Current—Boy Unconscious When Landed.

Passaic, N. J., March 30.—A canoe in which four youths were paddling on the swollen Passaic river near the boundary line between Passaic and Garfield struck against an abutment of the Monroe street bridge. All were thrown out.

Clarence Whitelaw, his cousin, Albert Whitelaw, and August Giesen, all of this city, were carried several hundred feet downstream. They climbed ashore at a bend in the river. Abram Einfrank, fourteen years old, of 434 Gregory avenue, was rescued by Jerry Pasqualin, nineteen years old, of 26 South avenue, Clifton. Einfrank was unconscious when he was landed and was sent to the General hospital. He was able to leave today.

CITY HAS "MURDER MYSTERY."

Find Blood Stained Sleeve of Girl's Waist and Stiletto at Egg Harbor.

Egg Harbor, N. J., March 30.—A "murder mystery" caused considerable excitement here. A blood stained sleeve of a girl's shirt waist, two side combs full of blood stained hair, a blue skirt and a broken stiletto bearing the initials F. P. were found on a lonely plot near the city hall. People residing in the neighborhood testified to hearing screams.

Automobile tracks leading into the lot led to the belief that the victim of the affair had been brought there in an automobile. City Marshal Stieff has taken up the matter and will conduct a thorough investigation.

STADIUM FOR PRINCETON.

$500,000 Structure to House Athletics For the Tiger.

Princeton, N. J., March 30. — Announcement was made here by President Hibben that Princeton university will have a new stadium next fall with a seating capacity of 41,000. The stadium is a gift by Edgar Palmer of New York, will cost $500,000 and will be known as the Palmer Memorial stadium.

Mr. Palmer is president of the New Jersey Zinc company, a graduate of Princeton in the class of 1903 and the son of the late Stephen S. Palmer, the donor of the Palmer Physical laboratory.

CLARK'S TOLLS SPEECH FEARED

Democratic Leaders Are Agitated on Situation.

MAY HIT ADMINISTRATION

If He Does It Is Feared That Wilson Will Openly Declare War on the Missourian—Believe Now He May Refer to the Mexican Situation.

Washington, March 30.—An amicable adjustment in the latest controversy between President Wilson and Speaker Champ Clark is anxiously sought by the Democratic leaders here on the Panama tolls question, and they look forward with much apprehension to the address that will be delivered in the house on Tuesday by Speaker Clark.

Mr. Clark excells in verbal attack, and some of his friends insist that he has convictions on the Mexican question that will impel him to express himself without reserve, regardless of the feelings of the administration. If the speaker goes after the administration hammer and tongs, as now seems assured, there will be trouble ahead for the Democratic party. On the other hand, if Mr. Clark delivers a calm, temperate speech in opposition he will silence, for a time at least, those administration spokesmen in congress who are resentful over Mr. Clark's statement in which he criticised the tolls rule.

Is Up to Clark.

It will be for Mr. Clark to determine on Tuesday whether the party fight now brewing shall break out early or late. Despite the conciliatory message sent out from the White House yesterday, it is generally conceded that factionalism has crept into the Democratic organization and that the time is not far distant when an anti-administration group will be found doing business within the majority in congress. Men close to Mr. Wilson are busy circulating reports that the president had no fault to find with the Democratic opposition in congress and that he had no intention of attempting reprisals on members of the party who had opposed him. At the same time the leaders who thus spoke for the administration explained that it would not be incumbent on the president to interfere if enemies of Mr. Clark sought to defeat the speaker for reelection in the next house in the event that the Democrats won at the polls in November.

It is apparent that the administration has no kidney for an open fight with Speaker Clark and his followers at this juncture, fearing the effect of such a rupture in the pending legislative program and its influences for ill in the coming campaign.

So far Speaker Clark has taken none but his intimates into his confidence concerning the tenor of the address that he will make on Tuesday. It is known that he has sought counsel and advice on this particular speech. There is good reason to believe that he has conferred with former Senator Fred T. Dubois of Idaho and former Senator Frank R. Pettigrew of South Dakota, who managed the Clark candidacy in the Baltimore convention. Messrs. Dubois and Pettigrew, soured by their defeat at Baltimore, are regarded as enemies of the administration.

To the blunders committed by Dubois and Pettigrew at Baltimore was attributed in part at least the defeat of Mr. Clark by Woodrow Wilson. Just how much influence Messrs. Dubois and Pettigrew exercise with the speaker these days is a matter of lively speculation. It is generally believed that the two former senators would be glad to see open combat between the president and the speaker in the hope that thereby the way would be opened for an attack on the administration that would damage Mr. Wilson in the event that he stands for renomination.

LEAPS BEFORE SUBWAY TRAIN

Young Man Worried Over Mother—Dies In Third Attempt.

New York, March 30.—George Bernstein twenty-two years old, of 29 Montgomery street, committed suicide by leaping in front of a southbound Van Cortlandt park express in the Bowling Green subway station.

He was employed as a lithographer by the Gill Engraving company, 140 Fifth avenue. The body was identified at the morgue by an uncle, Aaron S. Bernstein of 386 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, who said the young man had worried about his mother, now in Gouverneur hospital, and had attempted suicide twice last week.

KILL NEGRO IN STRIKE WAR.

Johnson, a Fugitive, Falls In Exchange of Shots With Militiamen.

Trinidad, Colo., March 30.—James Johnson, a negro, was shot by militiamen in search of the assailant of Clinton Robinson, marshal at Hastings, who was shot and seriously wounded while attempting to quell a disturbance at the mining camp. After the shooting of Robinson Johnson escaped to the hills, and a detail of state troops in command of Lieutenant Lawrence started in pursuit. Johnson, who is said to have opened fire on the soldiers, was killed in the exchange of shots.

A MAN'S GAME WHICH DELIGHTS WOMEN AND CHILDREN

By special arrangement with the publisher, the Daily Press will distribute to its readers the new, up-to-date and interesting game known as

CHANCE BASEBALL.

The game is a scientific arrangement of nearly fifty different plays in baseball. Practically every play arising in the National game including the famous "Squeeze Play" of the Champion Athletics, and the spectacular "Double Steal" of the New York Giants. It is so simple that a person with only a smattering of baseball knowledge can play it and the person who knows nothing about baseball can learn the game in a short time and in a practical manner.

THE WAY IT WORKS.

Walter Johnson is pitching. Ty Cobb at the bat. Ty hits for a single. Watch him steal second. Then down to third on a sacrifice. Now what do you think of that "dub?" He's out napping at third. The plays are all there and you're sure to make 'em.

GET IN THE GAME.

MAKE A HIT

With the folks by obtaining one. You'll make an error if you don't. It is as much fun for the grown-ups as it is for the youngsters. Get a grand stand seat for the price of a score-card and make rooters out of the entire family.

To get this miniature baseball game, which is superior to all others that have ever been offered, clip the coupon below and bring it to the Daily Press office, with 8 cents in stamps or money. If you want it mailed, add two cents more.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Not another American playwright—not even the late Clyde Fitch, who wrote fifty plays in his brief lifetime—has shown such fecundity as the author of "Romance." He is Edward H. Sheldon, of Chicago. He is still well under thirty years of age. His first play was not written until 1908. It was produced in that year, in the autumn, by Mrs. Fiske. It was called "Salvation Nell;" and, while it was heartily condemned by many critics, there was something in it which gripped even those who found the most fault with it as a drama. Since then Sheldon has written "The Nigger," "The Princess Zim Zim," "Egypt," "The High Road," and "Romance." Of them all, "Romance" has been by far the most successful. It ran all of last season in New York city, and for the best part of six months this season in Chicago. It will be acted here on Saturday afternoon and evening, April 4, in the Plainfield theatre, by a company specially organized by Charles Dillingham.

A THOUGHT FOR ALL.

"Leave the summer more beautiful than you found it."

Here is a working motto for Plainfield people. It should be memorized by the individual and inscribed by the civic organizations whose summer's work should be devoted largely to the successful beautification of the community. Emphasize it in the schools and hint it at public meetings. Introduce it to street cleaners, garbage men, laborers, mechanics, clerks, merchants, preachers, physicians and lawyers.

The motto means neater gardens and cleaning up of vacant lots now, it means planting trees and shrubs and beautification of the home yards this summer. It is work for everybody; particularly for community welfare societies. It is work to bring joy and satisfaction, and not disappointment, to the workers and to those who profit in happiness from the work.

It is easy to put off such work until another year, to plan too late, to fail to get into action despite best-made desires and best-laid plans. Many other times, tasks are only partially completed for lack of stimulus. Here we have a "Do It Now" slogan which embraces everything from the pictures on the walls at home to better lighting on the streets. The latter we are getting now in Plainfield. It means more shade trees planted this spring, more flower gardens, more flower boxes, improved streets, cleaner streets and alleys, more attractive school yards, better housing, more beautiful factory surroundings, a clean-up campaign, a more efficient citizenship.

Good intention is not enough; making of plans is not sufficient; action is essential. This can be a summer of better things; a summer of beautification of public property and thoroughfares, of private possessions, of parks, of business houses and residences, of life itself. Then let us adopt and remember our motto to "leave the summer more beautiful than we found it." Every citizen and society should pledge to do at least something to make Plainfield better and more attractive to the eye.

FREE TOLL REPEAL.

We have never been in sympathy with the compelling of our coastwise ships to pay toll on the Panama Canal. We have felt that the treaty with Great Britain was susceptible of construction to avoid this. But the President of the United States, in a formal message to Congress, has declared such a construction is not possible, hence it is foolish now to try to maintain such a position. How would the United States get on in the Court of the Hague contending for the exemption from tolls of coastwise vessels, when the head of the nation had construed the provisions of the treaty against our contention?

The present situation is quite clear. Repeal the law, and again open the whole subject. The Government would then be in a much better position to renew the submission of the whole matter to the Court of the Hague, where it should have gone in the first place, and to which proposition the Taft administration should have at once consented and avoided all the controversy or any necessity for repeal.

In dealing with international matters all should be frank and open. There should be no hidden purpose. The American people want nothing that is not theirs, and if our officials have made an error in negotiating the Panama treaty, let us live up to it until modified. Just now the vital question is, shall we follow the President in his request for the repeal of the free tolls act? There seems to be but one answer which leads to an honorable outcome for us, and that is to repeal the act. The House has passed the repealer and it is now up to the Senate.

At the Dixie Lane fire, which resulted in the loss of a handsome residence and its entire furnishings early on Saturday morning, the firemen had a hard time locating a hydrant. It was said by some bystanders that the time lost hunting for it was twenty-five minutes, and even firemen admit that it was ten minutes. The lesson was an expensive one, but now that it has been learned the authorities will probably take some method of making the hydrant more conspicuous. Painting them white might be as good a plan as any, but a better method would be to make the firemen carefully familiarize themselves with the location of every hydrant in the city.

Speaker Clark seems to see a chance to swat the President. He has never quite forgiven Mr. Wilson for defeating him at Baltimore in 1912. A disappointed man is often a great nuisance, but is usually of no other account. The disgruntled man never gets very far with his opposition.

THE FORUM.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

We think the people of the State should be made fully conversant of the effect of Hennessy's Bill, Senate 240, diverting $312,000 from the rail road tax money to pay for expenses now paid by the State. The fact that this measure has been made a party measure shows that it will not pass of its own merit but must be forced through under party lash. The principle involved in this bill is vitally important.

Some years ago an attempt was made to divert the railroad taxes from the public schools, to which they were then apportioned. The patriotic orders of the State protested against this act, and when the supporters of the act found out that it would meet with defeat, an agreement was entered into by which the dangerous provisions of the bill were eliminated and a certain amount of the money used for State school purposes. The patriotic orders felt then that they had yielded as much as they conscientiously could of the principle established when the act was passed in 1906 providing that the increased railroad taxes should be returned to the municipalities for school purposes. The Hennessy bill is a further diversion of this fund for the purpose of avoiding a State tax. Its effect will afford no relief, however, to the taxpayer, for the relief it affords to the State treasury will have to be made up by local taxpayers in an increased tax rate to supply the deficiency thus diverted from our various municipalities.

Computations made by a State official, at the request of Assemblyman Richards, of Atlantic county, shows that the Hennessy bill means a loss to the counties of 10½% of the total amount of money heretofore distributed on account of schools. In actual dollars this means Atlantic county would receive $15,131 less, Mercer county $14,018 less, Essex county $79,550 less, and means that the tax rate in Newark would have to be raised from $2.02 to $2.03; Trenton from $2.18 to $2.19; Atlantic City from $1.87 to $1.88. In other words you will note that this means an additional tax of one per cent. upon ratables and we do not believe that the cities will take kindly to this boost in the rate. The taxpayers of the State ought to be made fully aware of the proposal involved in the Hennessy bill and exercise their own judgment. The taxpayers we are sure, will agree with us that it is no solution of the State's financial problem to take money from the localities and thus compel the tax payers to make up the amount by an increased tax rate. That is robbing Peter to pay Paul with a vengeance.

In this connection let us call attention to the history of increased railroad taxation. The money from this source does not and never did belong to the State. It belongs to the localities. The agitation for increased railroad taxation came not from the State but from the localities. It was the localities who claimed that they were not receiving a proper amount of taxes from the railroads; that the railroads were occupying their taxable property; decreasing their ratables and were then paying upon their, "i. e.," the railroads, holding a less tax than the local rate and a less tax than the localities were fairly entitled to. After an investigation by a commission, and after legislative consideration, it was decided that the contention of the localities were well founded, that they were not receiving a proper amount of tax from the railroads. Nobody ever claimed that the State was not receiving a sufficient amount. It was the localities that fell short in this respect. The increase in railroad taxes was made out of deference to this demand upon the part of the localities, and there was never any question but that it belonged to the localities. There was a question as to the method of taxation, whether the property should be taxed in parcels by the various taxing districts or whether the State should act as the agent of taxation and tax the railroad property as a whole, and the latter method was adopted, but it was unanimously agreed that the increased taxes belonged to the localities and not to the State; otherwise the localities would not have been benefitted and their agitation would have gone for naught. This money, therefore, belongs rightfully to the various taxing districts and not to the State, just as the taxes raised locally belongs to the taxing districts, and when the State takes a part of the money because it happens to be passing through its hands as a distributing agent it is appropriating funds that do not belong to it.

If the Hennessy bill passes it lays down the principle that the State has a right to take part of the moneys that belong to localities. If it can take part it can take all, and under this principle the revenues of the localities would be seriously drained. If the State needs more money, why doesn't it face the issue and declare a State tax instead of trying to artfully dodge the issue by taking money out of the local treasury?

BENEVOLENT COUNCIL, No. 256, JR. O. U. A. M., Plainfield, N. J. March 30, 1914.

ELOQUENT EULOGY AT FUNERAL OF YOUNG MAN

The funeral service of John F. Rutledge, who died at his home on Franklin avenue, last Thursday, of pneumonia, was held at the Grace M. E. church, the borough, Saturday afternoon, Rev. C. C. Cain officiating. Many friends and members of Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., were in attendance. The pulpit of the church was a mass of flowers, including set pieces from the Epworth League of the church, of which he was a member, the Sunday-school class and the lodge, of which he was a past officer. Two of the young man's favorite hymns were sung by Miss Maud Bullman and Miss Marian Bleecher, accompanied on the organ by Miss Grace Carrol.

Rev. Mr. Cain, during his sermon, said in part: "While for us, as for St. Peter, it is difficult to understand some of the dealings of Divine Providence, we are now living on their side of Pentecost, and therefore, even now, in part, enjoy the blessings of that hereafter promised by Peter. Since Pentecost, spiritual things may be understood to an extent impossible before. From the earthly viewpoint, our young brother's life, cut off at the age of twenty-one, seems best represented by a broken pillow. But ,when measured from the viewpoint of the Eternal God, twenty-one or ninety-one, it matters not; either is but a handbreath.

"Those who knew John Rutledge best, know that he lived as he spoke when he told a Christian friend that it was the passion of his life to be a man of God. In Christ, his life had reached a degree of completeness which many men of eighty might covet. Before God, a Godless life, though it be a hundred years long is a broken pillar; a Christ filled life transferred to heaven in youth is complete, a perfect life. For such the removal is a promotion to high service in the celestial ranks. John has reached the goal of the mothering passion of God and his parents. More honored than if elected a bishop of the church on earth, he has reached his coronation as a prince with God."

The bearers were members of Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M. The burial was made in the Presbyterian church.

TOOK $1,250 FROM POUCH CHARGE AGAINST MESSENGER

Hoboken, March 3—Accused of taking $1,250 from a leather pouch while it was in transit under his care in a car of the Lackawanna Railroad from Washington, D. C., to Bangor, Pa., and then destroying the pouch by fire, William F. Conklin, of 25 Elizabeth street, Paterson, a United States Express Company railroad messenger, has been held in $2,500 bail for a hearing by United States Commissioner E. R. Stanton. The man was arrested at his home in Paterson by United States Deputy Marshal Louis Beekman.

The money was shipped last Monday in charge of Conklin via the Lackawanna in care of the United States Express Company, the bag being delivered sealed to the express company here. Conklin, according to the rules, should have placed the pouch in the safe. He says he put it on a shelf over a stove in the car and that the pouch and its contents, with the exception of the locks, were burned.

The charred remains of the pouch were found in the car when the conductor of the train met Conklin in another car and asked him what was burning. Because of the suspicious circumstances surrounding the case an inspection was made and Special Agent Frederick Guermeyer of the express company swore out a warrant charging Conklin with violating the provisions of the interstate shipment laws by embezzling money while in transit from one State to another.

CHAMP CLARK GIVES PRESIDENCY A JOLT

Speaker Says 10,000 Men Could Fill the Place.

New York, March 30.—"I believe there are in the United States at least 10,000 men who would make good presidents if they could enough votes. Anyhow, it doesn't take as much sense to be a president as it does to be a congressman. A president has a cabinet of wise men to guide him. A congressman has to do his own thinking," said Champ Clark, speaker of the house, at the Young Men's Christian association, Bedford avenue and Monroe street, Brooklyn.

"If every public official from the president down to the janitor of the capitol, and that includes all of us, were to die tonight, you would have another government in a month that would be just as good as the one that passed away. With me, practicing law is my business. Politics is a mere recreation, so to speak."

Mr. Clark gave his opinion of the presidency in a speech on "The United States In the Twentieth Century." There was one big public question to which he gave a wide berth and that was the repeal of the exemption clause in the Panama canal bill and the other, as he himself put it, was that "there has already been too darn much talk about it."

But the speaker did talk about the Mouroe doctrine. He insisted that a more honest body of men lived nowhere than were those now in congress. He expressed the opinion that there were at least 10,000 men in the United States in every way qualified to fill the presidential chair, that the Mexicans are not much worse off now than we ourselves were in the early sixties and that if let alone they would emerge from the conflict stronger and better in every way than before the civil strife started.

A. boys' camp at Lake Wawayanda, which will be held in Elizabeth on Friday and Saturday, will be C. William Bingeman, director of boys work in the local Y. M. C. A. and association camp director; Randolph N. J. Chandler, the local health officer and a leader at the camp last year, and Joseph S. Sattels, one of the local campers.

Mr. Bingeman will blow the whistle that will call the reunionists together; Mr. Chandler will speak on "The Wawayanda School of Engineering,' and Mr. Sattels will read a paper on "Birds around the Camp. A dinner will be served Friday night to the campers and will be presided over by Charles T. Kilbourne, of Orange.

George E. Anderson, of Ridgewood, will sound the call for the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," which will open the reunion and William Woodruff, of Elizabeth, will deliver the address of welcome on behalf of the Elizabeth association. Paul R. Molineaux will respond as the delegates' representative. Besides the three local speakers the following will deliver talks during the meeting: Minor C.Smith, of Jersey City, "Wawayanda University;" Joseph N. Brown and Randolph Merrill, of Paterson, "Romeo and Juliet;" Harry S. Park, Ridgewood "The Ladies;" Randolph S. Merrill, Paterson, "Loving Cups," J. Clement Body,Upper Montclair,"Knocks;" Rev. Charles O. Wright, Ridgewood, "Putting the 'Act' in Character."

A song service will be held Saturday morning and will be in charge of Joseph N. 'Nicodemus" Brown, of Paterson. Rev. T. T. Crawford, of Bernardsville, will conduct the Bible study. Saturday morning Frederick N. Esher, of Jersey City, will furnish the entertainment with a talk on "Experiences in an English Boys Camp.",B. Burgoyne Chapman, of Nanking, China, will deliver "A Message from China," and a letter from George Allen Owl, the Indian representative at Hampton Institute, will be read. A conference for the discussion of the camp program led by Charles R. Scott, camp director, and assisted by Howard LeRoy, of Ridgewood, and others, will conclude the morning session.

Saturday afternoon the delegates will witness a presentation in dramatic form of "Hiawatha," by Mrs. Margaret Asaya Hesse, assisted by the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls of Elizabeth. Charles R. Scott will present "Camping in Wawayanda's Forest," illustrated with stereopticon views of the camp.

A large delegation of boys will go from the Plainfield association under the leadership of C. William Bingeman and Randolph N. J. Chandler and will be entertained in Elizabeth by parents of the campers in that city.

MRS. CAMPBELL'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. David S. Campbell, of Dunellen, was held from her late residence, Saturday afternoon, Rev. Ernest Brown, of the Presbyterian church, officiating. Many relatives were present from Whitehouse and Lebanon. Several floral tributes from her friends, among which were several set pieces, were sent as tokens of the profound sympathy. The interment was made at Hillside cemetery, Plainfield.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Sr., of Central avenue, will return tomorrow from Atlantic City, where they have been sojourning for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Warne, of Lawrenceville, spent the week-end with Mrs. Warne's sister, Mrs. R. O. Howell, of Westervelt avenue.

Miss Martha Bantuyl, of Denver, Col., is spending a few days visiting her cousin, Mrs. E. H. Perry, of Watchung avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cole, of Somerset street, have removed to Fair view avenue.

Harry Moulton, of Chatham place, the borough, has accepted a position with the Public Service Corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hopewell, of 438 Watchung avenue, have removed to 518 East Seventh street the property which they recently purchased.

Mrs. Brynairski and daughter, Helen, of 448 West Second street, spent the week-end with friends at Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hand, of Regent street, are the parents of a boy, born to them on Saturday.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Women's Guild, of the Heavenly Rest church, is arranging a manufacturers' demonstration dinner to be held Tuesday, April 14.

Rev. John G. Currier, assistant rector of the Church of the Advocate, Philadelphia, will preach at the Church of the Heavenly Rest next Sunday evening.

Arrangements are now being made for the union Good Friday service to be held at Crescent Avenue church on the evening of that day.

"The Freedmen" is the subject to be discussed at the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church on Friday afternoon.

The McAll Auxiliary will meet at the Y. W. C. A. at 11 o'clock on Thursday morning.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Gustav Johnson, of 1,500 West Front street, while trying to board a moving train at the North avenue station, Saturday night, slipped and narrowly escaped being run over by one of the trucks. His left leg was grazed by a passing wheel and the limb was injured slightly. The police claim that Johnson had been drinking.

RESTORING SERVICE.

The Western Union Telegraph Company expects to be able to restore its usual service in Plainfield within a short time. New poles and wires have been installed as far as the Netherwood section going west, and when Plainfield is reached additional wires will be "cut in" at the local telegraph office. At present the office has one commercial wire.

TO CALL A PASTOR.

Rev. Mr. Alquist, of Montclair, will preside at a special meeting of the Swedish Lutheran church, on Grove street, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, when it is expected that a call will be extended to a pastor. Hereafter the Sunday services will be held at 8 o'clock in the evening, instead of the afternoon. Rev. Mr. Nelson, of Upsala College, will preach next Sunday night.

MOFFAT ROAD AFFAIR TO END

Receivers Will Probably Be Discharged at Their Request Today.

Denver, March 30.—The new Denver and Salt Lake company, known as the Moffat road, will be out of the hands of receivers in all probability. Counsel for David C. Dodge and Samuel C. Perry, the receivers, will apply to Judge Lewis in the federal district court for discharge of the receivers, and the lawyers say there is no doubt that the application will be granted, thus ending nearly two years of negotiations and litigation.

The road is headed by Newman Erb of New York, who will build the Moffat tunnel and who entered into the refinancing plan of the former Denver, Northwestern and Pacific company during its receivership. When the receivers are discharged Mr. Dodge will go to New York to figure on how much each bondholder of the old road is entitled to receive.

Launch Japanese Dreadnought.

SKOBELEV, THE MADCAP.

Millet Thought Him Almost a Reincarnation of Napoleon.

A few days before he sailed for Europe on the trip which ended with his death on the Titanic, Frank D. Millet said to a friend in his studio:

"Skobelev! How well I remember him! We used to call him the Madcap. That was when he swam the Danube against orders, dashed into Plevna without re-enforcements and committed other little indiscretions of that sort which only a madman or a genius would attempt.

"Later I came to recognize him as almost a reincarnation of Napoleon. His ambition was literally about the same as Napoleon's. He wanted Russia to conquer the world. I stood with him once on the heights above Constantinople—it was in March, 1878, just before the treaty of San Stefano—when he outlined to me his schemes, which began with the absorption of the Ottoman empire, then extended to a conquest of India and concluded with piratical designs on England in Europe.

"It was unbelievably naive, and I should have dismissed the talk as the veriest moonshine had I not been a witness during the preceding months to the man's rise from an inferior position, where he was under a cloud, to a lieutenant generalship, with which he had become the hero of the war. He was then the practical hand which Russia held on Turkey's throat. He died only a few years later, miserable wasted, futile. A strange man, a great man; I think the most remarkable man I have ever known."—Richard Barry in Century.

Doubles of Famous Men.

Tennyson, who resembled Dickens, had, despite disparity of years, an almost perfect "double" in Sir Leslie Stephen. Perhaps it is similarity of occupation or interests that breeds resemblance, for Professor Schrader was so like Huxley that even their intimate friend Grant Duff mistook one for the other, and Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema was scarcely distinguishable from his brother artist, Du Maurier. The theory, however, hardly accounts for the ludicrous resemblance of Edmund Yates and the late shah of Persia.—London Chronicle.

SAMUEL J. BOWDEN FREED FROM PAIN

Well Known West End Man Dies After Three Years of Suffering.

Following a lingering illness of nearly three years' duration, Samuel J. Bowden, a well known resident of the West End, died yesterday afternoon at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Brown, of Bergen street. His became afflicted with a cancerous growth and at various times had been in hospitals in the hope of relief, but without avail. He had been a great sufferer during the past six months, but bore it patiently until death came as a relief.

Mr. Bowden was a native of Scotland, where he was born sixty-two years ago. He came to Plainfield with his family in 1888, and with the exception of a short time spent at South River, continued to make his home here. He entered the employ of Herman Auken and Company, the South River handkerchief manufacturers, twenty-five years ago, as supervisor of machines, being a machinist by trade. He was so well thought of by the firm that he was placed on a pension shortly after his illness began. Mr. Bowden was of genial temperament, and enjoyed the confidence and respect of his neighbors and friends. He was a member of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W.

Beside Mrs. Brown, Mr. Bowden is survived by his wife and three other daughters, Mrs. Reginald Horscroft, of New York, Miss Annie Bowden, of Jersey City, and Miss Dorothy Bowden, of Plainfield; also three sons, Samuel, David and Walter, all living at the parental home on West Third street. He also leaves one brother, David Bowden, of East Front street. The funeral will be held at Mrs. Brown's home Wednesday noon, and will be private. Burial will be in the family plot at South River.

RECONCILIATION EFFECTED.

Walter J. Ulmer, of Elmwood place, who was arraigned in the city court, Saturday morning, charged with the non-support of his wife and three children and was held under $400 bail to provide $7 a week for their maintenance, was arraigned again this morning and given another chance to make good. Mrs. Ulmer was in court today and expressed a desire to have her husband released and he was placed in her custody by Judge William G. DeMeza.

FLOWER GUILD TO ORGANIZE.

ARGENTINA KILLS AMERICAN'S HORSES

Forty-eight Head Owned by Edward Arlington Lost in South America.

Lamenting the death of forty-eight trained horses shot to death by the Argentina government, Edward Arlington, one of the owners of the 101 Ranch, which will follow Barnum & Bailey's circus at the Madison Square Garden, New York, is in New York today from Buenos Ayres. Mr. Arlington was forced to buy more horses in South America, and after paying an export duty of $30 on each head declared that each animal cost him $200.

According to Mr. Arlington, his horses were placed in Quarantine for the usual period of twelve days. After a few days one of the animals developed a disease, which the Argentina veternarians said resembled glanders. By an order of the government every one of the animals was put to death. An appeal was made to the American Charge d'Affaires, but he could do nothing.

Mr. Arlington was in Rio Janiero at the same time as Mr. Roosevelt and asserted that there was no doubt in the city but Mr. Roosevelt put in a bill for $3,000 for his lecture. Other passengers on board the Vasari, the steamship which brought Mr. Arlington, declared they had also heard this rumor in Rio Janiero.

GIRL CLERK IN WILSON'S HEADQUARTERS IS ACCUSED

Trenton, March 30.—Miss May Haven, of Trenton, who is held in New York in $1,000 bail, charged with the larceny of a diamond ring from Mrs. Lora Studebaker, was a stenographer in the Wilson campaign headquarters for the Presidency When the headquarters was abandoned, Miss Haven went to Washington, where she obtained employment in one of the departments, but later resigned her place.

Hervey S. Moore, counsel for Miss Haven, said Friday that his client had waived extradition papers and went to New York, Friday, appearing before the authorities to answer the charge. He also said that the bail fixed by the New York court was the minimum and that the complainant, Mrs. Studebaker, did not appear and would not appear to prosecute the complaint against Miss Haven, to which the latter pleaded not guilty.

FIERCE CONTEST WON BY 'PLAINS

Battle Royal Staged on the Y. M. C. A. Court Saturday Night Between Rivals.

CONTEST A THRILLER

Association Team Led at the End of the First Half By a Score of 13 to 12—Final Score 26 to 24—Dallas Led the Scoring.

Two gruelling sessions of warfare, staged under the title of basketball, culminated in a two point victory for the Scotch Plains Parish House quintet on the Y. M. C. A. court, Saturday night, when the association crew was sent down to a 26 to 24 defeat. The closeness with which the issue was contested had a tendency to inject a scrappy element into the contest and many big chances were taken by the ten participants in the encounter. The game was one of the fiercest ever played on the association court and every point was battled for with vengeance by the contending forces.

From a spectator's point of view the affair was a thriller and a constant din of enthusiasm was kept up from start to finish. There was little to choose between the two teams and the scoring for the most part was executed in a point for point style. During the last few minutes of play, following an intermission taken out for injuries, the Scotch Plains team swept to the front with a six point lead, but the home players came back with two field goals in quick succession and were within two points of a tie when the last whistle shrieked. Some disagreement arose when time was called, it being contended that Carty, the 'Plains scorer, had called the contest before the allotted time was played. The allegations were made by the Y. M. C. A. scorer, but the losing side made no effort to uphold the claim and relinquished the decision to the 'Plains five.

Although fouls were conspicuous, many being made by both sides, few were called and still fewer turned into points, each team making two from the fifteen foot mark. During the first ten minutes of the opening period but eight points were scored, each team getting a quartet on a pair of field throws. At the conclusion of the initial stanza the Y. M. C. A. led by a count of 13 to 12. Weight played a prominent part in the second half, the 'Plains team using its advantage in advoirdupois as a means of wearing out its lighter rival, and many hard spills were taken by various members of both teams in this session.

Dallas played the most conspicuous game on the floor Saturday night rolling up six field goals for twelve of his team's points and putting up a wonderful all around exhibition of passing. Moulton did the most scoring for the Y. M. C. A. five, getting a trio of field goals and two fouls, while Glover pulled up second with three from the field of play. Ricketts tallied three pretty two point scores from difficult angles and bagged a pair of fouls. He was guarded in fine style by Ted Gavett, while Naylor and Smith did some fine work in holding the Y. M. C. A. forwards down to a low water level. Marsten and Joe Gavett had a battle all their own in Saturday's games and both did some good work around the pivot position, the latter getting a two point tally in the first half.

The score:

Y. M. C. A.	G.	F.	P.
Moulton, f	3	2	8
McNamee, f	2	0	4
J. Gavett, c	1	0	2
Glover, g	3	0	6

RANDOLPH IS ONE OF 40 CANDIDATES

Cliff's Boss Has Signed a Wealth of Material From the Sandlots of Jersey.

Cliff Randolph will be one of the forty candidates turned over to Bob Ganley, manager of the Perth Amboy team in the Atlantic League, to report for duty May 1. This announcement was made by Billy Pfau, secretary of the Atlantic League, today, and he accompanied it with a statement that no new men need apply.

Billy is well known to baseball enthusiasts in this section of the State and likes to lend a helping hand to all ambitious youths but finds it inconvenient to answer the daily requests from fifteen to twenty aspirants to jobs in the minor league. Pfau claims that there are enough baseball players with high ambitions around these parts to equip a dozen minor leagues.

Pfau is the father of the Atlantic League and is credited with having accomplished the difficult task of inducing business men and sportsmen of every city on the circuit to enter the league which he originally organized as the New York and New Jersey League.

FINAL DETAILS FOR UNION COUNTY MEET

Plainfield High School, Leals and North Plainfield May Be Entered.

Coach Ralph Patch, of the Plainfield High School athletic teams, will attend the meeting of the Union County Athletic League to be held in the auditorium of the Roselle Hign School next Thursday afternoon, when the final plans will be announced for the annual athletic meet of the organization which will be held either on Parker Field, this city, or Pingry Oval, Elizabeth, the place to be selected at that time.

It is understood that Mr. Patch will suggest that the date for the meet which was originally announced for June 13, be changed to May 30. This happens to be a holiday and many of the schoolboy athletes will be free to compete on that date.

Every high school in the league has been invited to send a delegate to the meeting Thursday. New Brunswick and North Plainfield High Schools have been invited to compete: although they are in Middlesex and Somerset counties respectively, and it is understood that an invitation will also be extended to Leal School.

PLAINFIELD OUT FOR PIN TITLE

Watchung Council Knights Enter Eastern Championships Opening Tonight.

FIFTY TEAMS TO ROLL

Something New In the Line of Bowling Championships Has Attracted Elizabeth and Plainfield Rollers.

According to a bulletin sent out by the officials in charge of the Eastern championships of the Knights of Columbus bowling teams Plainfield and Elizabeth are among the teams entered in competitions which will get under way on Thum's White Elephant Alleys, Thirty-first street and Broadway, New York, tonight. This tournament is open to all councils in the East, and by the way the entries have been coming in during the limited time in which the committee has been working, the results have been very gratifying to the tournament committee.

Besides Plainfield and Elizabeth entries have come from Bridgeport Conn.; Peekskill, N. Y.; Newark Passaic, Jersey City, Bayonne, Hoboken, Yonkers, New Rochelle, White Plains, College Point, Long Island City, Far Rockaway, Jamaica and eleven from Brooklyn. The bulk of the entries, however, will come from New York city, the tournament being conducted by the Knights of Columbus Bowling League of Manhattan and the Bronx, in which some forty-eight councils are entered.

There will be three events, five men, two men and individual, and three games will be rolled in each event. The tournament will be conduced on the same plan as the metropolitan championships of the New York Bowling Association, the only difference being that in this tournament all games will be rolled at night each team completing its entry in one visit to the alleys. In order to carry out the spirit of fraternity and good fellowship, no out-of-town council will be scheduled with a New York council, as far as possible. It is expected that from fifty to seventy-five councils will compete.

SPRING SHOOT AT WHITEHOUSE.

Whitehouse, March 30—The Crescent Gun Club, of Whitehouse Station, will hold its annual spring shooting tournament next Friday afternoon. The feature of the program is a team race, between marksmen from Flemington and Whitehouse. There will be ten men on each team and each will shoot at 50 blue rocks Two match shoots have been arranged also. The first will be between Dr. J. J. Rufe and former Assemblyman George H. Cramer, of High Bridge, each shooting at fifty birds The other will be between Bert L Lindsley and David Landon, both of Whitehouse Station, who will shoot at fifty birds apiece.

BETTER START NOW.

Juanita, N. D., March 30.—A baseball team has been organized here from the best of the material in this section, and agreements have been drawn up between the members to walk to the San Francisco exposition playing one game every day en route.

VICTIM OF DRUGS.

Americus, Ga., March 30.—The Cleveland A. A. team lost a good southpaw recruit and Stamps, Ask., won a good druggist Saturday, when Harry Hinton quit baseball because his father offered him a drug store to quit the game.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Although the game played between the Y. M. C. A. and Scotch Plains basketball teams on the Association court Saturday night was one of the hardest and gruelling battles waged this year at that rendezvous, good sportsmanship prevailed on every hand following the forty minutes of the worst kind of rough and tumble fighting. The scrap was a mere alibi for the previously announced exhibition of basketball while it lasted, but immediately upon the sounding of the final whistle the ten combatants laid aside all animosity and good feeling was apparent where hostility had prevailed a few minutes before. Scotch Plains players had the glory of victory to smooth down their ruffled feathers while the Association youths found condolence in extending congratulations to their conquerors. The two point defeat was far from a disgrace and the fact that it was lost to a team the calibre of Scotch Plains made the performance of the Y. M. C. A. crew all the more commendable. More games of this nature where the teams fight for blood during the game and display good sportsmanship after it is over, would go along way toward elevating the popular indoor pastime to a higher plane hereabouts.

Scotch Plains victory over the Y. M. C. A. gives it the undisputed championship in this section of central New Jersey. The fact that the Association five defeated North Plainfield and Plainfield High Schools and the 'Plains five in turn defeated the Y. M. C. A. gives the villagers the right to the title and all that goes with it. The new champions are superior to anything in this vicinity as evidenced by their work of Saturday night. Capable of going through forty minutes of plunging, fighting and aggressive basketball such as was staged Saturday night, the Scotch Plains five deserves the crown and there is none to dispute their right hereabouts. Ricketts and his men are fighters clean through and the players who oppose them must expect to have their hair mussed and their feelings ruffled at one time or another.

A commendable movement is on foot in this city at the present time to organize an athletic club to represent Plainfield in every branch of athletic endeavor and several clubs hereabouts are pushing the project with earnestness. Although the Queen City ranks high in New Jersey's sport calendar of ratings never has she been represented by her athletes as a city, and a municipal sport club would go a long way toward promoting and fostering clean sprtsmanship hereabouts. Independent factions have competed on court, track and field for Plainfield for the past decade and some good individual records have been made. It is proposed to amalgamate interests and by combining forces to place this municipality in one of the upper berths. It's a good thing, push it along.

This week will probably mark the inauguration of the 1914 baseball season in scholastic circles, North Plainfield being carded to meet Roselle next Saturday afternoon. The weather man will probably have a whole lot to do with the opening date and should we encounter a blizzard or flood before that date hostilities will probably be pushed ahead a little.

Haven't heard anything concerning the election of a basketball captain in the Plainfield High School during the last couple of weeks. All of the high school quintets hereabouts seem to be experiencing more or less trouble in selecting a leader for next year.

Dunellen will be represented in the Sunday School League this year, according to recent reports. It's one safe bet that Warry McLaughlin won't be the slab artist for the baseball representatives of that burg in the S. S. League.

A High Bridge baseball magnate has sent to this office for a Central New Jersey League schedule for 1914. The baseball bug was evidently delayed in reaching that village this season. There will be no league this year, old man.

It might be appropriate to suggest at this time that those Sunday School League magnates invite the new postmaster to toss out the first baseball this season. Providing, of course, that the appointment is made prior to the opening date.

Only a few days now remains before the first game of glorified rounders will bring the baseball bugs swarming from every nook and corner.

A number of other papers are publishing a story today concerning the probabilities of Jack Martin returning to the Rochester Hustlers. There is absolutely no truth in the report that Jack is being sought by Joe Ganzel and the erroneous reports should not be taken seriously by Jack's admirers.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—I have noticed in a number of metropolitan papers that the gunmen who were convicted with Lieut. Becker are making an appeal to the public, but to date I have been unable to ascertain the date on which they will be put to death. The stories all refer to the date as sometime in the near future. Can you furnish me with this information?—H. J. G.

Answer—Unless Governor Glynn interferes the gunmen will be put to death on Easter Monday.

Query—Will you please tell me if you have to pass a High School examination before you can study to be an architect? If not, would bookkeeping be a good course to pursue? Will you kindly advise me what kind of a course would be advisable to take up?—K. S. I.

Answer—Any person desiring to study architecture and practise it successfully will need a High School education. We cannot advise you, whom we do not know, what you would be likely to succeed in. Consult the principal of the local or borough high schools, the institutions which you will probably enter.

Sporting Editor:

Will you please publish the date Robert Ingersoll, the great atheist, died —J. H. T

Answer—July 21, 1899.

Answer—Wash-day (Monday).

Sporting Editor:

Query—What place in New Brunswick can I obtain your paper as I am a constant reader?—K. F.

Answer—The better plan would be to leave your name at the office and have it mailed to you.

Sporting Editor:

Query—We have had a bet over the Lackawanna and New York Central railroads. A bets the Lackawanna is the leader in that section, and B bets the New York Central leads. Who is right?—J. E. O.

Answer—We are not prepared to offer any opinion as to the relative "leads" of the railroads you mention. It is a matter there is no use betting about. It can be settled only by the federal government.

FITZ APPEARING ON INDIANAPOLIS STAGE

Young Bob Initiated Into Order of Buffalos Last Night.

Robert Fitzsimmons, former heavyweight champion of the world, opened a week's engagement at the Majestic theatre, Indianapolis, Saturday, accompanied by his son, Bob, Jr. Lanky Bob, the same old spotted Cornishman, opened his act with a monologue that showed careful preparation and closed it by boxing three rounds with his son. Bob was enthusiastically received Saturday by the fistic fraternity and the sporting public in general, but the main interest was in his much-advertised son.

The Indianapolis News says, "While Bob, Jr., certainly has the build necessary for a good white hope, he appeared to be fat and slow, although he did not show to best advantage in his sparring match with his father, seeming to be afraid to hit the older man. In his monologue, the former champ says his son is only eighteen years old and that he has never received a boxing lesson in his life, but that before long, the boy will be sent out to conquer the heavyweight fighters of the world. The son will have to show a lot of improvement over his present form before he goes out to 'conquer the world' or he will be likely to suffer the same fate that other white hopes have who have received much advance advertising. Fighting in his present form, the younger son would hardly be a match for Jack Dillon."

Saturday night the younger fighter was initiated into the order of the Buffaloes at the regular weekly "wallow" at the Hotel Severin. Colonel Russell B. Harrison conferred the degree.

SOME SIDELIGHTS IN BASEBALL DOPE

How the Various Teams Have Figured in Pennant Winning the Last 10 Years.

Baseball dope is a very peculiar thing. Looking over the major league openings for the last ten years, one finds that the Pirates, who in their time have won only one flag, have landed eight of their opening contests and so have the Braves, who generally have finished way down in the ruck. The Naps, also non-pennant winners, have done splendidly at the kickoff, capturing seven contests. The White Elephants, with a record of four pennants in ten years, have broken away in front just six times, and the Giants, who have annexed five gonfalons, have had only an even split in their pry-off combats. The McGrawites, moreover, have been blanked on opening day on four occasions. Six times have the Cardinals had to be content with one tally in their first chatampionship contests.

Star pitchers do not always fare well when real hostilities commence. Cy Young was the twirler for the Boston Red Sox in four of their openers and he was bracketed only once. Joe Wood's record on getaway day shows one victory, two defeats and one tie. Nap Rucker has gone down to defeat three times when the championship lid was lifted and only once has led the Superbas to a triumph in an opening game. It was when Napoleon was operating on the mound, in 1912, that the Giants set a modern record of runs on the first day of the season by a cumulating eighteen.

A luckless individual at the start of campaigns has been Arthur Fromme, of the Giants. He worked in three openers for the Reds and one for the Cardinals and defeat was his portion on each occasion.

Irving Melrose Young (Cy II) was delegated three times while with the Braves to pitch the opening battle and on all three occasions he came through with wins. Once he let his opponents down with a safety. That trick also has been turned on opening day by Walter Johnson, the Chalmers car winner last season; Frank Paderewski Smith and George Mullin.

Johnson has won two of the three games he has pitched on opening day. So have Jack Coombs, Eddie Plank, Howard Camnitz, Addie Joss and Jeff Overall. Christy Mathewson copped both of the pry-off contests in which he toiled, as did "Babe" Adams.

These figures show the way the major league club have fared on the

ALL AMERICAN GRIDIRON STAR AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Another athlete was added to the teaching corps of the Plainfield High School, this morning, when C. L. Woodman took up his duties as assistant in the scientific department to Instructor Beers. He is being sought as a player for the faculty basketball team against the senior class five this afternoon.

Mr. Woodman is a graduate of Colgate University in the class of 1910 and played fullback on the university football eleven. He was picked for the All-American team in 1910.

SOUTH ORANGE SCORER ADMITS A DISCREPANCY

It has been admitted by the manager of the South Orange High School girls basketball team that the contest played between her team and the Plainfield High School girls on the South Orange court Friday afternoon ended in a 22 to 22 tie instead of a score as was announced following the game. The South Orange scorer discovered an error in her tally immediately after the game ended but it was then too late to reconvene the players for an extra period.

The South Orange scorer neglected to give Miss Dorothy Crane credit for a free throw and this one point tied the score between the contending forces. There is a bare possibility that the play-off will be staged during the next two weeks.

SCOTCH PLAINS SECOND RAN AWAY FROM GRACE QUINTET

The Scotch Plains Parish House second basketball team won the second game of the series arranged with the Grace Church five on the Y. M. C. A. court, Saturday night, by a score of 28 to 16. The Scotch Plains crew held the upper hand from start to finish and although the local youngsters held on pugnaciously they never really had a chance to win.

The Grace boys were plainly experiencing an off-day along the shooting line and many easy opportunities to score points were passed by the forwards. The Saunders brothers and Hall did the bulk of the scoring for the winners, while Williams and Cottrell led the losing side.

BASKETBALL TEAMS WILL BE BANQUETED

Scotch Plains and the Y. M. C. A. Fives Arrange for Dinner.

Following the basketball game played on the Y. M. C. A. court Saturday night, officials of the two teams held a short meeting and plans were made at that time for a banquet which will be held during the next two weeks and to which the members of the two forces will be invited.

It has not been definitely decided where the affair will be held, but further details will be announced during the next few days. Although there is a keen spirit of rivalry existing between these two teams the feeling among the players is a friendly one and this means is taken of winding up the season.

PLAINFIELD SECOND ON FORMIDABLE SCHEDULE

Plainfield High School baseball players have been granted a place on one of the best baseball schedules ever compiled for the Central High School ball tossers, of Newark, and if the Queen City nine wants to keep in the running with the Newark delegation it will have to do considerable polishing up between now and April 17. Plainfield is one of the preliminary performers on the Central schedule, being second on the list. Manager Harry Wagner has revised his list of teams considerably and the dropping of Passaic and East Orange gave New Brunswick and Plainfield an opportunity to break in.

The schedule:

April 14—Battin H. S., at City Field.

April 17—Plainfield H. S., at Plainfield.

April 21—Stevens Prep., at Hoboken.

April 25—Rutgers Freshmen, at City Field.

*April 29—Barringer H. S., at City Field.

May 6—Newark Academy, at City Field.

May 8—Irvington H. S., at Irvington.

*May 12—East Side H. S., at City Field.

May 15—St. Benedict's Prep., at City Field.

*May 20—South Side H. S., at City

May 22—South Orange H. S., at

May 26—Roselle H. S., at City Field.

May 28—South Side H. S., at City Field.

*June 9—East Side H. S., at City Field.

LOG CABIN CLUB GUNNERS OUTSHOOT BALTUSROL CLUB

The Log Cabin Gun Club, of Plainfield, defeated the Baltusrol shooters at Baltusrol, Saturday. At the finish the local gunners had winged eleven more birds than Baltusrol.

Benjamin C. Fincke, with a score of 47 points, won the take-home trophy. Fincke also received the special prize offered by C. H. Stout. The March Cup was taken by Marshall Geer for the best individual monthly score.

LOCAL SCHOOLBOYS WILL VISIT N. Y. U.

Delegation of Plainfield Athletes to Attend Preparatory Day Exercises.

Captain Alfred Day, of the Plainfield High School track team, and a group of his huskies, will be the guests of the Athletic Association of New York University, April 18, when that institution will hold a preparatory school day. Invitations have been sent to fully one hundred preparatory schools in the metropolitan district and Plainfield is one of the schools that will be represented at the big affair.

Chairman W. O. Partisch, of N. Y. U., is making preparations to handle a record breaking crowd on that date and all indications point to a successful day. A feature of the day's outing will be an athletic meet held in the afternoon in which Day and his men will take part. It is expected that some N. Y. U. graduates living in this city will be assigned to the local delegation and be in charge of their entertainment while they are in New York.

Competitors are expected from all of the high and preparatory schools in New York and neighboring cities and five hundred entries will be received for the games, it is estimated. In addition to individual prizes of gold, silver and bronze medals, the school scoring the highest number of points will be presented with a trophy.

POPULAR LOCAL YOUTH BACK IN SPRINGFIELD

George Townley Decides to Take up Physical Work at the Training School.

North Plainfield High School lost its most promising aspirant for the pitching job on the school baseball team, yesterday afternoon, when George Townley, '13, was spirited back to the Springfield Training School by "Hub" Stine and Charlie Line at the conclusion of the college's Easter recess. Townley entered Springfield last fall but returned to his home in this city after two months' study at the institution, having decided that the work was not what he was after.

While in the Y. M. C. A. Training School, Townley was recognized as one of the most popular members of the freshman class and his sudden departure spread a gloom over the athletic faction of the institution. Last fall he played on the incoming students' baseball team against a squad of veterans and established such a good showing that he was looked upon as sure varsity material this fall. Since his return to this city he has been sought by both the student body and the head of the faculty and the entreaties have finally resulted in his return.

When a student in the college before Townley pursued a secretarial course, but has now changed that to a physical one, this being more to his liking. Townley's return to N. P. H. S. as a post-graduate was a cause for much enthusiasm in the baseball camp as he is a clever fielder and a mainstay on the mound. He won the Yale cup for all around efficiency in last year's graduating class.

DIXON LEAVES WEDNESDAY.

Louis Dixon, the local ball player, who has signed with a minor league outfit, severed his connection with the Saurer Motor Company, Saturday noon and was presented with a leather suitcase by fellow employes. He will leave Wednesday for the South. Dixon is a Plainfield bred catcher and has performed for Dunellen in the Central New Jersey League and the West End A. C., during the greater portion of his diamond career.

BRUGGY WAS ELEVENTH.

Frank Bruggy, a local baseball player, who sported the colors of the Gloversville basketball quintet in the New York State League, ranked eleventh in the scoring table. Sugarman, of Cohoes, lead with a record of 538 points while the Elizabethan tallied 360. Bruggy shot 139 field goals and forty-two from the penalty mark.

ATHLETE WILL RETURN.

Irving Schenck, a member of the Plainfield High School baseball and football teams of last year, will return to the school for a post-graduate course following the Easter vacation. He will pursue a course in mathematics prior to entering Cornell in the fall.

MOTORISTS TO MEET.

The regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Motorcycle Club will be held in the temporary quarters in Depot Park next Thursday evening.

"PACKEY" M'CABE.

His Appointment by Glynn Causes Much Criticism.

The appointment of Patrick E. McCabe by Governor Glynn as a member of the conservation commission has caused howls of protest from the anti-Tammany men, who claim that McCabe is a Murphy man. Regarding his appointment Governor Glynn said: "McCabe is the nightmare of the hypocritical hypercritical. How many men who are criticising McCabe know him or ever saw him? Well, I know him, and I say he is a man of honesty and brains. The people who turn up their noses at McCabe are unable to attack either his character or his ability. McCabe is a better read man than many of his critics. His private life is without stain. He reads and, what is more, he thinks."

GOV. GLYNN DEFENDS HIS APPOINTMENTS

Denies Tammany Influenced Him In Any Way.

Albany, N. Y., March 30.—Governor Glynn gave out a statement defending his appointments made in the closing hours of the legislature, appointments which have been widely attacked, the assertion being baldly made that in respect to some of them the governor yielded to the influence of Tammany Hall. The statement follows:

"No matter what my critics may say, I believe that my appointments as governor have brought more ability and capacity to the service of New York state than the appointments of any governor of recent years—not that I flatter myself upon selective powers, but because existing conditions have induced the right sort of men to enter public life. Can you think of any judicial appointments that match Hornblower and Cardozo to the court of appeals? Has any other governor named a state commissioner of health who can bear a comparison with Dr. Biggs? Was not Riley a good appointee as superintendent of prisons, Husan as commissioner of agriculture and Lynch as commissioner of labor? Can any one name their superiors in these respective positions?

"It seems to me that Seymour Van Santvoord, William Temple Emmet and Professor Irvine of Cornell are ideal appointments to the up state public service commission. These three men make the commission stronger than it has been since its creation.

"Those who say that Tammany named Emmet are dreaming. Tammany was against Emmet. Tammany opposed Emmet. I forced Emmet's appointment on account of his ability and integrity. Tammany had as much to do with the appointment of Emmet as it had to do with Professor Irvine and Mr. Van Santvoord."

COMPENSATION LAWS WIN.

Federal Report Shows Twenty-three States Have Adopted Such Acts.

Washington, March 30.—Workmen's compensation laws are rapidly superseding employers' liability laws as a method of dealing with the results of industrial accidents, according to the federal bureau of labor in a report made public.

The report shows that twenty-three states have enacted workmen's compensation laws and that these laws have thus far been declared constitutional by the courts of last resort in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio Washington and Wisconsin. The law was declared invalid, however, in Montana, because it permitted double liability, and in New York because it was held to be in conflict with the state constitution. In New York, however, a new law was passed which met constitutional requirements.

First Mothers' Pensions.

Pittsburgh, March 30.—Payment of mothers' pensions under the new Pennsylvania law was commenced here when four checks for a total of $33.30 were issued. Thirteen more will be given out. Seventeen new cases were favorably acted upon.

TORREON'S FATE STILL UNKNOWN

Villa Is Fighting to Crush the City.

SURRENDER NOW IMMINENT

It Is Estimated That Over 4,000 Have Been Killed In Battle That Has Lasted a Week—Rebel Leader Determined to Capture Velasco.

Juarez, Mexico, March 30.—Torreon has not yet fallen before the assaults of Villa's rebel host.

An official message from the front states that fighting is still going on for the possession of the city.

The telegram says that the rebels now hold all the positions in the city except the main barracks and two smaller barracks. In the last twenty-four hours, it is reported, General Villa has taken Cerro de la Cruz (the Hill of the Cross) and the machine shops and foundry.

The batteries on Cerro de la Pilar have also been silenced by Generals Servin and Angeles with their artillery. The streets have been cleared of fighters except in the downtown district, and all that remains between Villa's men and victory are the three barracks near the plaza.

Villa sent back word from the firing line that the surrender of the garrison is imminent. At the same time, with a tremendous loss of life, his men forced an entrance into the northern part of the city, at which General Angeles' artillery had been hammering for days.

As he penetrated the federal northern lines General Velasco's men sought to evacuate the city by cutting their way out through the southeast and were hurled back by the brigades of Herrera and Benavides.

Tremendous Loss of Life.

The loss of life in the heavy fighting, which began a week ago, has been heavier than in all the other battles of the revolution.

It is estimated that at least 2,000 rebels have fallen, and the federal loss is believed to be as great, if not more so.

The Zaragoza brigade, which went into the fighting 1,300 strong, is reported to have lost 25 per cent of its men. The Durango veterans, under General Herrera, which shared with the Zaragoza brigade in the brunt of the work, has lost almost as heavily. When General Herrera made the charge into the southern outskirts of Torreon, which gave the rebels the first foothold in the city itself, he lost more than a hundred men in that one engagement. He reports that 800 federals were killed.

Villa received reports that federal reinforcements are approaching eastward from Coahuila and detached a force to patrol the road and intercept them. He telegraphed orders to Juarez for a detachment to leave there on the same errand.

Villa would have had possession of Torreon probably forty-eight hours ago, it was learned, had it not been for his determination to capture General Velasco and the entire federal army. If he had permitted them to evacuate the city they would have been able to join the strong federal garrison at Saltillo and Monterey and make most difficult the capture of those places, which must be accomplished before he resumes his march to Mexico City.

The rebels effected their entrance into the northern part of the city after an incessant artillery fire, kept up for hours, had leveled the greater part of that portion of the town and forced the federals, harassed on the east by Herrera and Benavides, to fall back on to the southwest of the city.

FLORIDA EXPRESS HELD UP.

Three Masked Men Rob Express Car In South Carolina.

Norfolk, Va., March 30.—Three men held up the Florida limited on the Seaboard Air line in South Carolina between Columbia and the fair grounds. One masked man entered the express car and at the point of a pistol compelled the messenger to open the safe. He secured a bag of valuables, but officials of the Seaboard here say they have not yet learned what the bag contained.

A second report stating that the robbers secured several bags of registered mail has not been confirmed. The robbers are believed to have boarded the train at Columbia. The masked man in the express car leaped from the train after taking the bag from the safe. The other two men are believed to have stood guard on the platform of the car.

ANTHONY JANUS.

Noted Aviator Who Will Fly From New York to Florida

Anthony Janus, the noted aviator, will attempt a flight from New York to Florida next week. Janus, after making several flights around New York, went to Florida and established the world's first aerial ferry. His route lay from St. Petersburg to Tampa, and in two months he flew over 8,000 miles, carrying passengers.

SON OF RICH MAN MURDERED IN CELLAR

Slayer In Mysterious Crime Wielded an Ax.

New York March 30.—With his ear severed with a hatchet and a belt twisted around his neck so that it choked the jugular vein, the body of Arthur J. Slevin, who came here from Boston six months ago, was found in the basement of 637 Sixth avenue.

Slevin had apparently been dead several hours. His pockets had been turned inside out, but Captain William H. Ward of the West Thirtieth street police station, who was on the scene a few minutes after the body was found, said he does not believe robbery was the motive. On the floor near the body were found several postcards sent to Slevin from a girl in Boston.

Slevin when he came here could not find work and to tide over the time until he found the employment he desired became lunchman in the saloon of Costello & Boles, in the cellar of which the body was found. Above the saloon is a Greek restaurant, and after the discovery of the murder the police began to round up some of the Greeks in the neighborhood.

Slevin was twenty-six years old and an athlete. His father is well to do in Boston. Slevin was born in Denver and educated at St. Francis' college in Montreal. After leaving college he became a salesman for a packing house in Chicago and later went to Boston. He was considered, it is said, one of the best salesmen in the firm. After he arrived here from Boston he acted as referee on several occasions for basketball and indoor baseball games.

The dark cellar where the murder occurred showed that Slevin had put up a great fight for his life until he was brought down, probably unconscious from the blow on his head from the hatchet. Much of the space in the cellar is taken up by a furnace. There were a few pieces of discarded furniture in the place and two small stoves. These stoves had been overturned and broken in the struggle.

R. M'COY, FEUDIST, DEAD.

His Dispute Over Hogs With Hatfield Started Killings In 1860.

Pikeville, Ky., March 30.—Randall McCoy, with whose dispute with "Devil Anse" Hatfield the famous Hatfield-McCoy feud began, died here in the home of his grandson. He was over ninety years old.

The feud, which cost many lives and long terrorized the Kentucky-West Virginia border, is said to have started in 1860 over a dispute about the ownership of some hogs. The civil war halted the feud, but it was taken up again and the killings went on.

In 1887 a fight took place which lasted a week and resulted in many deaths on both sides. The governors of Kentucky and West Virginia joined forces to stamp out the feud, and many members of the warring clans moved west.

WOMAN KILLED; THREE HELD

Coroner Believes She Was Shot In Trying to Stop Fight.

New York, March 30.—A woman who was known as Mrs. Emma Trinks, twenty-two years old, was found dead with a bullet over her heart in a furnished room at 843 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn.

After an investigation in which assistant district attorneys and Coroner Wagner took part Ralph d'Robbio and a woman said to be his wife and Max Trinks, with whom the dead woman had been living, were held by the police.

NEEDLEWORK

14267

Very often one wishes to embroider names of articles on the cases and bags for toilet utensils, laundry bags, baby carriage-covers and other gifts. Pattern 14267 includes these names in script, to be embroidered in either outline-stitch or unpadded solid work. The word "Laundry" to be used on a soiled clothes bag, is 9 by 13 inches; "Baby" for marking a carriage-robe, crib-cover, or bassinette-cover is 9 by 13 inches. The traveler always appreciates a case like the one illustrated, which may be of linen [illegible] or cretonne [illegible] with all [illegible] a case [illegible] all [illegible] in lit[illegible] and the [illegible] prevents even when they are wet. The words "Soap," "Comb and Brush," and "Gloves" are each two inches high while "Wash Cloth," "Tooth Brush" and "Handkerchiefs" measure 1½ inches high and "Hair-pins" and "Pins" are each one inch high. Cases and bags for toilet articles and accessories are welcome gifts to the European traveler and if you are planning a steamer gift for some friend, these are inexpensive and easy to make. Cases such as these are always saleable at church fairs and charity bazaars.

Transfer pattern 14267, which includes all these words, can be supplied to readers on receipt of price.

U. S. GETS SERVICES OF PROFESSIONALS CHEAPL

MISS ALICE HENKEL

Members of the United States Cabinet, upon taking up their duties, expressed astonishment at the number of high class professional persons in the various divisions, bureaus and sections of their departments. As a rule the salaries do not exceed $2,500 a year and investigations have shown that while these persons could probably obtain twice or treble this amount for their services in the commercial world, they are content to give their services to the government for a much less sum, chiefly for patriotic reasons.

Not a few of these professional persons are women. One instance is that of Miss Alice Henkel, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture. She is the author of many important bulletins on subjects relating to botany.

ON account of the acid which it contains grapefruit is an admirable fruit for salads. It combines well with other fruits and is an excellent appetizer.

Grapefruit Aids Digestion.

Grapefruit salad is an excellent digester at the close of a heavy meal. It is better with French dressing than with mayonnaise and should be marinaded for at least half an hour.

Grapefruit Cocktail.—The use of halves of grapefruit as receptacles for oyster cocktails is much favored. To prepare the grapefruit for this purpose first remove the seeds and core and then, having filled the center with small raw oysters, dress them as for a cocktail, with tomato ketchup, grated horseradish, tabasco sauce, etc., without, of course, the use of any lemon.

A Fruit and Vegetable Salad.

Grapefruit and Green Pepper Salad.—Take six green peppers. Cut slices from the stem ends. Remove the seeds and refill the pepper shells with pulp of grapefruit finely cut, minced celery and English walnut meats broken in small pieces, in the proportion of twice as much grapefruit as celery and two nut meats to each pepper. Arrange the peppers on lettuce heart leaves, and on each one put mayonnaise.

Mixed Grapefruit Salad.—First prepare the dressing as fonows: Use one-half cupful of sugar, one-third of a cupful of sherry wine, two tablespoonfuls of grape juice. Shake well and often until the sugar is all dissolved. Take two small grapefruit and two oranges, pared, seeded and lobes cut in half inch pieces and all the juice; one-half pound of white grapes, halved and seeded; two red apples, pared, cored and cut into small dice and twelve or fifteen maraschino cherries. Pour over this fruit the dressing and serve very cold.

Chicken Raising In a Department Store

One of the most unique and interesting demonstrations ever attempted by a department store is now on view in the Greenhut Building of the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Company on Sixth Ave.

This consists of a complete visualized exhibition of practical chicken raising and illustrates the growth of the chick from the egg to maturity.

Considerable experimenting has been done in preparation for this remarkable demonstration. A series of glass bottles have been employed, showing the egg in various stages of development, a liquid preservative having been utilized in the process. Daily examinations were made with a view to marking the progress of incubation.

A scientific incubator—the "Hatchalot," capable of containing 60 eggs, has been erected. This incubator presents novel points not contained in any other. The judicious use of asbestos in its make-up has tended to evenness of temperature and to durability, as has the employment of cypress wood in its construction.

Shown in conjunction with the incubator, is a machine designed to make the expensive brooder house a thing of the past, and to effectively perform all that was required of such a house. This is called "The Sanitary Hover," which possesses many novel points designed to reduce labor and produce results. The Hover is provided with a curtain, and, by an ingeniously contrived arrangement, it is warmest near the curtain, thus enabling the chicks to distribute themselves over the given space without crowding. No draught can affect the chicks though it is perfectly ventilated.

In connection with the incubator and hover, a miniature poultry run has been laid out. This is truly a chicken ranch in miniature, supplied with every appliance demanded by the most up-to-date methods of scientific chicken-raising. Every possible accessory is shown, and competent demonstrators are on hand to amplify the literature (which is given free to all comers) by word of mouth.

Apart from the scientific interest of of the Big Store's demonstration, the exhibition possesses a vast number of points of interest to all who have hitherto hesitated to set apart a small portion of their land for a chicken run. In these highcost-of-living days, one might do much worse than take up this "side line," even on a small scale. With incubators and appliances that are inexpensive, not liable to get out of order, and which require absolutely no expenditure for installation, the hint given here is well worthy of consideration.

Children, too, will be vastly interested in seeing little chicks emerge from their shells, and The Big Store cordially invites parents to bring their youngsters with them to view the demonstration.

The Loveliest White Boat Appeared.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Fairies' Trip In the Glass Bottom Boat.

"THE lake had the loveliest pink, purple and other pale shades in it, and it looked as if it really very much enjoyed feeling warmer again. It was not a very large lake, but it was plenty large enough for the fairies. It was most beautifully situated. It was just off the woods, and the trees skirted the shore," said daddy.

"The fairy queen had suggested that, as it had grown so much warmer and as the lake looked so absolutely lovely, there could be nothing nicer than to take a sail on it. All of the fairies thought that it would be delightful too. The fairy queen said that they would start on their trip at 3 o'clock, for it would be so much nicer to go when it was sunny. Then they could see the beautiful reflections in the water and the shadows.

"At 3 all the fairies were ready. They saw the fairy queen waiting for them by the shore.

"'Where's the boat?' they asked her. 'We don't see any boat. Aren't we going? Oh, what's happened? We were looking forward so much to going on a boat trip.'

"The fairy queen smiled and said, 'Don't be impatient, little fairies.'

"Then she waved her magic wand and said, 'Come, boat!'

"Whereupon the loveliest white boat appeared. It came right up to the edge of the shore.

"It certainly was a beautiful boat. It was very, very long with two big white sails. On either end of the boat stood a big green frog. They acted as steerers. They looked very fine indeed in their bright green suits. They almost looked as if they'd bought their suits new for the occasion.

"But when the fairies got in the boat the biggest surprise was waiting them, for it was far from being an ordinary boat. The bottom of the boat was all glass. The fairies cried out with delight when they saw it, and the fairy queen was so happy that they liked it.

"Then they started on a lovely trip around the lake, then up and down the lake. Not only could they see the pretty shore, but through the glass they could see all the fishes and green grasses and weeds that grew down under that water. Never had the fairies been able to see such interesting things. They watched some of the fishes playing and swimming around. Other fishes they watched were sleeping quite peacefully.

"You can well believe how interesting it was and how much they enjoyed it. Of course the fairy queen is always perfectly happy as long as the little fairies are happy.

"The fairies said after it was all over that it was the most wonderful and interesting boat trip they had ever had."

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER VI.

THE newspapers were full of the Ladley case, with its curious solution and many surprises. It was considered unique in many ways. Mr. Pitman had always read all the murder trials and used to talk about the corpus delicti and writs of habeas corpus, corpus being the legal way, I believe, of spelling corpse. But I came out of the Ladley trial—for it came to trial ultimately—with only one point of law that I was sure of. That was that it is mighty hard to prove a man a murderer unless you can show what he killed.

And that was the weakness in the Ladley case. There was a body, but it could not be identified.

The police held Mr. Ladley for a day or two, and then, nothing appearing, they let him go. Mr. Holcombe, who was still occupying the second floor front, almost wept with rage and despair when he read the news in the papers. He was still working on the case in his curious way, wandering along the wharfs at night and writing letters all over the country to learn about Philip Ladley's previous life and his wife's. But he did not seem to get anywhere.

The newspapers had been full of the Jennie Brice disappearance, for disappearance it proved to be. So far as could be learned she had not left the city that night or since, and as she was a striking looking woman, very blond, as I have said, with a full voice and a languid manner, she could hardly have taken refuge anywhere without being discovered. The morning after her disappearance a young woman, tall, like Jennie Brice, and fair, had been seen in the Union station But as she was accompanied by a young man, who bought her magazines and papers and bade her an excited farewell, sending his love to various members of a family and promising to feed the canary, this was not seriously considered. A sort of general alarm went over the country. When she was younger she had been pretty well known at the Broadway theaters in New York. One way or another, the Liberty theater got a lot of free advertising from the case, and, I believe, Miss Hope's salary was raised.

The police communicated with Jennie Brice's people—she had a sister in Olean, N. Y., but she had not heard from her. The sister wrote—I heard later—that Jennie had been unhappy with Philip Ladley, and afraid he would kill her. And Miss Hope told the same story. But—there was no corpus, as the lawyers say, and finally the police had to free Mr. Ladley.

Beyond making an attempt to get bail, and failing, he had done nothing. Asked about his wife, he merely shrugged his shoulders and said she had left him and would turn up all right. He was unconcerned, smoked cigarettes all day, ate and slept well and looked better since he had had nothing to drink. And two or three days after the arrest he sent for the manuscript of his play.

Mr. Howell came for it on the Thursday of that week.

I was on my knees scrubbing the parlor floor when he rang the bell I let him in, and it seemed to me that he looked tired and pale.

"Well, Mrs. Pitman," he said, smiling, "what did you find in the cellar when the water went down?"

"I'm glad to say that I didn't find what I feared, Mr. Howell."

"Not even the onyx clock?"

"Not even the clock," I replied. "And I feel as if I'd lost a friend. A clock is a lot of company."

"Do you know what I think?" he said, looking at me closely. "I think you put that clock away yourself in the excitement and have forgotten all about it."

"Nonsense."

"Think hard." He was very much in earnest. "You knew the water was rising and the Ladleys would have to be moved up to the second floor front, where the clock stood. You went in there and looked around to see if the room was ready, and you saw the clock. And knowing that the Ladleys quarreled now and then and were apt to throw things"—

"Nothing but a soap dish, and that only once."

—"you took the clock to the attic and put it, say, in an old trunk."

"I did nothing of the sort. I went in, as you say, and I put up an old splasher, because of the way he throws ink about. Then I wound the clock, put the key under it and went out."

"And the key is gone, too!" he said thoughtfully. "I wish I could find that clock, Mrs. Pitman."

"So do I."

"Ladley went out Sunday afternoon about 3, didn't he—and got back at 5?"

I turned and looked at him. "Yes, Mr. Howell," I said. "Perhaps you know something about that."

"I?" He changed color. Twenty years of dunning boarders has made me pretty sharp at reading faces, and he looked as uncomfortable as if he owed me money. "I!" I knew then that I had been right about the voice. It had been him.

"You!" I retorted. "You were here Sunday morning and spent some time with the Ladleys. I am the old she devil. I notice you didn't tell your friend, Mr. Holcombe, about having been here on Sunday."

He was quick to recover. "I'll tell you all about it, Mrs. Pitman," he said smilingly. "You see, all my life, I have wished for an onyx clock. It has been my ambition, my great desire. Leaving the house that Sunday morning and hearing the ticking of the clock upstairs I recognized it was an onyx clock, clambered from my boat through an upper window and so reached it. The clock showed fight, but after stunning it with a chair"—

"Exactly!" I said. "Then the thing Mrs. Ladley said she would not do was probably to wind the clock?"

He dropped his bantering manner at once. "Mrs. Pitman," he said, "I don't know what you heard or did not hear. But I want you to give me a little time before you tell anybody that I was here that Sunday morning. And in return I'll find your clock."

I hesitated, but however put out he was he didn't look like a criminal. Besides, he was a friend of my niece's, and blood is thicker than flood water.

"There was nothing wrong about my being here," he went on, "but I don't want it known. Don't spoil a good story, Mrs. Pitman."

I did not quite understand that, although those who followed the trial carefully may do so. Poor Mr. Howell! I am sure he believed that it was only a good story. He got the description of my onyx clock and wrote it down, and I gave him the manuscript for Mr. Ladley. That was the last I saw of him for some time.

That Thursday proved to be an exciting day, for late in the afternoon Terry, digging the mud out of the cellar, came across my missing gray false front near the coal vault and brought it up, grinning, and just before 6 Mr. Graves, the detective, rang the bell and then let himself in. I found him in the lower hall looking around.

"Well, Mrs. Pitman," he said, "has our friend come back yet?"

"She was no friend of mine."

"Not she—Ladley. He'll be out this evening, and he'll probably be around for his clothes."

I felt my knees waver, as they always did when he was spoken of.

"He may want to stay here," said Mr. Graves. "In fact, I think that's just what he will want."

"Not here," I protested. "The very thought of him makes me quake."

"If he comes here better take him in. I want to know where he is."

I tried to say that I wouldn't have him, but the old habit of the ward asserted itself. From taking a bottle of beer or a slice of pie to telling one where one might or might not live the police were autocrats in that neighborhood, and, respectable woman that I am, my neighbors' fears of the front office have infected me.

"Look anything like this?" he asked.

"All right, Mr. Graves," I said.

He pushed the parlor door open and looked in, whistling. "This is the place, isn't it?"

"Yes. But it was upstairs that he"—

"I see. Tall woman, Mrs. Ladley?"

"Tall and blond. Very airy in her manner."

He nodded and stood looking in and whistling. "Never heard her speak of a town named Horner, did you?"

"Horner? No."

"I see." He turned and wandered out again into the hall, still whistling. At the door, however, he stopped and turned. "Look anything like this?" he asked and held out one of his hands with a small kodak picture on the palm.

It was a snapshot of a children's frolic in a village street, with some onlookers in the background. Around one of the heads had been drawn a circle in pencil. I took it to the gas jet and looked at it closely. It was a tall woman with a hat on, not unlike Jennie Brice. She was looking over the crowd, and I could see only her face, and that in shadow. I shook my head.

"I thought not," he said. "We have a lot of stage pictures of her, but, what with false hair and their being retouched beyond recognition, they don't amount to much." He started out and stopped on the doorstep to light a cigar.

"Take him in if he comes," he said. "And keep your eyes open. Feed him well and he won't kill you!"

I had plenty to think of when I was cooking Mr. Reynolds' supper—the chance that I might have Mr. Ladley again and the woman at Horner. For it had come to me like a flash as Mr. Graves left that the "Horn—" on the paper slip might have been "Horner."

* * * * * * *

After all, there was nothing sensational about Mr. Ladley's return. He came at 8 o'clock that night, fresh shaved and with his hair cut, and, although he had a latchkey, he rang the doorbell. I knew his ring, and I thought it no harm to carry an old razor of Mr. Pitman's with the blade open and folded back on the handle, the way the colored people use them, in my left hand.

But I saw at once that he meant no mischief.

"Good evening," he said, and put out his hand. I jumped back until I saw there was nothing in it and that he only meant to shake hands. I didn't do it. I might have to take him in and make his bed and cook his meals, but I did not have to shake hands with him.

"You, too!" he said, looking at me with what I suppose he meant to be a reproachful look. But he could no more put an expression of that sort in his eyes than a fish could. "I suppose, then, there is no use asking if I may have my old room—the front room. I won't need two."

I didn't want him, and he must have seen it. But I took him. "You may have it, as far as I'm concerned," I said. "But you'll have to let the paper hanger in tomorrow."

"Assuredly." He came into the hall and stood looking around him, and I fancied he drew a breath of relief. "It isn't much yet," he said, "but it's better to look at than six feet of muddy water."

"Or than stone walls," I said.

He looked at me and smiled. "Or than stone walls," he repeated, bowing, and went into his room.

So I had him again, and if I gave him only the dull knives and locked up the breadknife the moment I had finished with it, who can blame me? I took all the precaution I could think of—had Terry put an extra bolt on every door and hid the rat poison and the carbolic acid in the cellar.

Peter would not go near him. He hobbled around on his three legs, with the splint beating a sort of tattoo on the floor, but he stayed back in the kitchen with me or in the yard.

It was Sunday night or early Monday morning that Jennie Brice disappeared. On Thursday evening her husband came back. On Friday the body of a woman was washed ashore at Beaver, but turned out to be that of a stewardess who had fallen overboard from one of the Cincinnati packets. Mr. Ladley himself showed me the article in the morning paper when I took in his breakfast.

"Public hysteria has killed a man before this," he said when I had read it. "Suppose that woman had been mangled or the screw of the steamer had cut her head off! How many people do you suppose would have been willing to swear that it was my—was Mrs. Ladley?"

"Even without a head I should know Mrs. Ladley," I retorted.

He shrugged his shoulders. "Let's trust she's still alive, for my sake," he said. "But I'm glad, anyhow, that this woman had a head. You'll allow me to be glad, won't you?"

"You can be anything you want as far as I'm concerned," I snapped and went out.

Mr. Holcombe still retained the second story front room. I think, although he said nothing more about it, that he was still "playing horse." He wrote a good bit at the washstand, and, from the loose sheets of manuscript he left, I believe actually tried to begin a play. But mostly he wandered along the water front or stood on one or another of the bridges, looking at the water and thinking. It is certain that he tried to keep in the part by smoking cigarettes, but he hated them, and usually ended by throwing the cigarette away and lighting an old pipe he carried.

On that Thursday evening he came home and sat down to supper with Mr. Reynolds. He ate little and seemed much excited. The talk ran on crime, as it always did when he was around, and Mr. Holcombe quoted Spencer a great deal—Herbert Spencer. Mr. Reynolds was impressed, not knowing much beyond silks and the National league.

"Spencer," Mr. Holcombe would say—"Spencer shows that every occurrence is the inevitable result of what has gone before and carries in its train an equally inevitable series of results. Try to interrupt this chain in the smallest degree and what follows? Chaos, my dear sir, chaos."

"We see that at the store," Mr. Reynolds would say. "Accustom a lot of women to a silk sale on Fridays and then make it tooth brushes. That's chaos, all right."

Well, Mr. Holcombe came in that night about 10 o'clock, and I told him Ladley was back. He was almost wild with excitement, wanted to have the back parlor, so he could watch him through the keyhole, and was terribly upset when I told him there was no keyhole, that the door fastened with a thumb bolt. On learning that the room was to be papered the next morning he grew calmer, however, and got the paperhanger's address from me. He went out just after that.

Friday, as I say, was very quiet. Mr. Ladley moved to the back parlor to let the paperhanger in the front room, smoked and fussed with his papers all day, and Mr. Holcombe stayed in his room, which was unusual. In the afternoon Molly Maguire put on the striped fur coat and went out, going slowly past the house so that I would be sure to see her. Beyond banging the window down, I gave her no satisfaction.

At 4 o'clock Mr. Holcombe came to my kitchen, rubbing his hands together. He had a pasteboard tube in his hand about a foot long, with an arrangement of small mirrors in it. He said it was modeled after the something or other that is used on a submarine, and that he and the paperhanger had fixed a place for it between his floor and the ceiling of Mr. Ladley's room, so that the chandelier would hide it from below. He thought he could watch Mr. Ladley through it, and as it turned out he could.

"I want to find his weak moment," he said excitedly. "I want to know what he does when the door is closed and he can take off his mask. And I want to know if he sleeps with a light."

"If he does," I replied, "I hope you'll let me know, Mr. Holcombe. The gas bills are a horror to me as it is. I think he kept it on all last night. I turned off all the other lights and went to the cellar. The meter was going around."

"Fine!" he said. "Every murderer fears the dark, and our friend of the parlor bedroom is a murderer, Mrs. Pitman. Whether he hangs or not, he's a murderer."

The mirror affair, which Mr. Holcombe called a periscope, was put in that day and worked amazingly well. I went with him to try it out, and I distinctly saw the paperhanger take a cigarette from Mr. Ladley's case and put it in his pocket. Just after that, Mr. Ladley sauntered into the room and looked at the new paper. I could both see and hear him. It was rather weird.

"Gee, what a wall paper!" he said.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

8270

The short separate coat with raglan or drop shoulders and cutaway fronts, fashioned of almost any contrasting material, will be as modish this season as the one colored tailored suit. These little coats are fashioned of taffeta, which is so generally favored for all purposes, silk poplin, moire, cloth or ratine.

No. 8270 is a smart little model, showing the raglan shoulder, the regulation coat collar and revers and an applied flounce at the bottom to give the new flare. It is a design that is suitable for any of the foregoing materials and would make a practical model to wear through the entire spring and summer.

Copy of this design in size 36 requires 3½ yards 36 inch material or 3¼ yards 42 inch material.

The pattern is cut in six sizes; 32 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Your Checking Account

may be made a source of income, as well as a convenience, if you will build up your balance to five hundred dollars, on which amount we pay

3% Interest

When once this balance is reached it will be an easy matter to maintain it and you will be credited quarterly with interest for every day that your balance has touched the $500 mark, but whether your account be large or small you may be sure that it will be given our most careful attention.

THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY

The largest financial institution in Plainfield.

CHANGE OF POLICY

On April 1st our CREDIT SYSTEM will be DISCONTINUED. We will thereafter operate our grocery business on a Strictly Cash plan.

We believe the old system of long credits is out of date. The up-to-date method of buying and selling for cash will enable us to materially reduce our prices.

At this time we will also discontinue the soliciting of orders by wagon and devote all our drivers' and wagons' time to deliveries alone, thus enabling us to give you much better service. We will cater especially to shoppers who buy over the telephone. You can depend on it that your phone order will have extra special attention.

We believe if you will give this cash buying a month's trial you will become an ardent supporter of the system when you note the saving you can make.

We will continue to handle the same high grade merchandise as heretofore at considerable lower price level.

We respectfully solicit a share of your patronage.

MANY INSPECTED ELKS' NEW HOME

Stream of 3,000 Visitors Conducted Through Elaborately Furnished Building.

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAM

Women Prominent in the Assemblage That Cast a Critical Eye Over the Recently Completed Structure.

The handsome, new $100,000 clubhouse of Plainfield Lodge of Elks located on Watchung avenue, was opened for public inspection for the first time since its completion, last night. A stream of visitors passed in and out of the building all evening, conservative estimates placing the number at 3,000. More than half of the assemblage was composed of women, all of whom cast critical eyes on furnishings, color schemes and all the things the feminine instinct jealously guards as prerogatives. If they had any adverse comment to make nobody heard it, consequently the building committee feels that the seal of approval has been placed on its efforts.

Exalted Ruler Frank H. Smith stood at the entrance to the main hall all evening bestowing regulation Elk smiles and handshakes on all who entered. Those unaccompanied by a member of the organization were turned over to an usher, of which there were thirty in waiting. They were familiar with every crook and turn of all five floors, glib of tongue and versed in details. They trailed their various parties about much the same as the rubberneck guides chaperone a rural delegation through Wall street, only there was no hustling through to get the money.

The main floors were beautified by a mass of palms, plants and flowers, arranged by Charles L. Stanley. There were banks of foliage in convenient corners, on the stairways and anywhere a good effect could be obtained. There were also festoons of bunting, Elk emblems and colors on the walls, chandeliers and archways. These were placed by Laggren & Greene and added greatly to the general pleasing appearance of the intramural view.

An orchestra of seven pieces was installed in the lodge room, rendering a most delightful program of high class selections. B. A. Paroubek and Judge William N. Runyon were in charge of this feature, so no further assurance of perfection is needed. Dancing was not included in the evening's program, but all within hearing of the musicians had a difficult time keeping still. At that, the house detective reports a score of couples broke the rules when "Nights of Gladness" reverberated through the building. The reception was supposed to be from 7:30 to 10:30, but there were several hundred still taking last fond looks at midnight. All in all the members of 885 believe the formal response of the public to its invitation shows a keen interest in their beautiful home and will have other affairs in the future for friends, wives, mothers and sweethearts.

The committee in charge of the inspection was composed of Clarence E. Teel, chairman; Harry B. MacDonald, George W. Pope and William R. Townsend. There were ably assisted by the following corps of ushers: Joseph P. Burd, Walter S. Marder, S P. T. Wilbur, Francis J. Blatz, Vincent W. Nash, Jr., Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Arthur E. Smith, Percy V. Martin, Edwin L. Allen, William Mulvey, Edwin H. Pennett, Charles H. Dunham, Chalmers L. Crist, Charles Titsworth, Charles C. Clark, Leslie R. Stewart, John V. Todd.

Th building is faced with Indiana limestone and rough brick. There are five floors, counting the basement where there is a rathskeller, four bowling alleys, kitchen, shower baths and locker-rooms. On the second floor there is a members' parlor, secretary's office, main grill room, billiard and card room. On the third floor is to be found a library, women's reception room and lodge room while on the fourth floor are four bedrooms and an organ loft for the lodge room, and on the fifth floor is a roof garden with stage and dressing rooms and living quarters for the janitor and his wife. A large exhaust fan is installed, insuring perfest ventilation.

UNDERGOES OPERATION.

Charles Jeffery, the eighteen-year-old son of William Jeffery, of Sherman avenue, underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital today for poisoning caused by a nail being run into his foot, last September. Dr. W. H. Anthony performed the operation, and it is believed to be successful at this time.

O. A. CHARLES TO ADDRESS THE "FORUM"

Under Auspices of Recreation Committee and Business Men's Association.

Under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee and the Business Men's Association, O. A. Charles, of Muncie, Ind., will speak at the "People's Forum," to be held at the Washington School, Thursday night. Mr. Charles treats the subject of town improvement in a broad spirit which brings it equally within the scope of these two organizations and it is felt to be a sign of the growing interest that Plainfield is taking in civic affairs that they should both wish to choose such a speaker.

A. E. Force will respond for the Business Men's Association with a few words of greeting and Champlain L. Riley will speak for the forum committee.

People must be well informed before they can be "efficient citizens." That is the keynote of the modern civic association. How organizations like these help civic progress is illustrated in Rochester where, at the second meeting of the pioneer Men's Civic Club, "The Duties of An Alderman" were discussed by a member of that body. In response to a vote of thanks he said: "You have given me a vote of thanks. I feel that I want to give you a vote of thanks for the privilege of speaking to you and hearing your frank discussion of my words. If you have been benefited by my coming here, I have been benefited more. If every member of the Common Council and every other public servant had, frequently, such an opportunity as this to discuss public matters with those to whom he owes his appointment it would mean that we would have much better, more intelligent representation of the people's interests and a cleaner government."

Invitations are especially extended to everyone interested in making Plainfield a better place to live in.

WILL ILLUSTRATE EVOLUTION OF DANCE

Elaborate Entertainment to Be Given by Monday Afternoon Club.

An interesting review of the past year's work was enjoyed by a large number of members of the Monday Afternoon Club at a general meeting held at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon, at which time plans for the annual meeting on Thursday, April 23, were announced. This will consist of a series of dances illustrating the evolution of the dance, from the stately step of the fifteenth century to the more modern one of the present day.

This will be the principal feature of the annual entertainment, and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Anderson, an English couple, who have gained marked success in New York and elsewhere, will do these dances in costume, accompanied by piano and violin music. Max Jacobs, of New York, will play the violin.

Mrs. Orton G. Dale, president, was in the chair yesterday and directed the program, which opened with a discussion of legal matters pertaining to the New Jersey laws for women, especially as regards policewomen, and this part was made of double interest by reason of the presence of Mrs. Nannie Melvin, of Baltimore, who at present is acting supervisor of recreation work here, taking her daughter's place.

Mrs. Melvin is known as New Jersey's first policewoman, having served in that capacity at Asbury Park last summer with marked success. She gave a most interesting talk of her experiences in that work, which proved instructive.

Then followed a presentation of work covered during the year by the various departments. These were presented by Mrs. William Griscom, Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mrs. Henry D. Hibbard and Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor. After the business session, the annual tea was held and proved delightful. Those who poured were Mrs. Frank C. Ard, Mrs. Henry D Hibbard, Mrs. William H. Murray, Mrs. Isaac L. Miller and Mrs. Henry M. Maxson. Other members of the club assisted in serving.

D. AND D.

John Keiderling of Watchung avenue, this city, was arraigned this morning in the borough court before Recorder Hand, on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. A fine of $5 was imposed.

SESAME CLUB MEETING.

The Sesame Club will meet Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. L. M. Booth, 975 Cedarbrook road.

NOT TO ACCEPT REAPPOINTMENT

Although A. B. Vossler Does Not Resign as Head of Borough School.

NO EXPLANATION GIVEN

Neither North Plainfield Board of Education Nor Principal Will Discuss the Question—Communication From State Authorities.

The anticipated resignation of Supervising Principal Arthur B. Vossler, of the North Plainfield schools, which was expected to be presented to the borough Board of Education at its meeting last night, was not presented. In a statement to a Daily Press reporter, last week, Mr. Vossler said that there was nothing to be said concerning the resignation until it was officially presented to the board last night. Mr. Vossler, however, changed his mind about resigning at this time, but he said that under no consideration would he be a candidate for re-appointment to the office next fall.

Mr. Vossler would make no comments as to why he had reconsidered a resignation, or make known the reasons for his not being a candidate for re-appointment to the office that he has occupied for the past two years. Just what led Mr. Vossler to withhold his resignation at this time could not be learned at the meeting of the board last night, all of the members present refusing to discuss the question, but admitted that the board had anticipated the resignation. Further than that, they would say nothing as to the possible reasons back of the resignation.

Dr. Justus H. Cooley presided at the meeting of the board, which only transacted routine business. The resignation of Miss Nancy Woodburn, of Waverly, N. Y., was tendered because of ill health. Miss Woodburn was forced to retire early in the term because of an attack of appendicitis.

Reports showed a registration of 1,100 at the Somerset School and 285 at the Watchung School. Arrangements were also made to have the local pupils prepare work for the exhibit of manual training, domestic science and drawing work to be held at Somerville on May 25.

A communication was received from the State board relative to the entrance of the Somerset School, and asking that it be made safe against fire and panic. Plans for these improvements are now under way.

BOARD WILL CONVENE TO CONSIDER BUDGET

Estimates for Coming School Year Will Be Reviewed at a Special Session.

A special meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education will be held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, in the high school building, to consider preliminary estimates for the annual budget for the year 1914-1915. While no official announcement of the probable figures has been made, it was learned from an authoritative source that the increase this year will be proportionately less than was the case last year, in spite of the fact that the budget will include the cost of maintaining the high school addition.

Preliminary figures of school attendance indicates that from one hundred and seventy-five to two hundred more pupils will be enrolled next fall than this year, and that while the opening of the high school addition will relieve the over-crowding of some of the graded schools for one year, this relief will not continue beyond 1915, unless at least one other school is provided.

INTERNATIONAL OFFICERS CONFER WITH MACHINISTS

President Johnson, Vice President Keppler, of Washington, and Eastern Representative Hugh V. Reilly, of Newark, officers of the International Association of Machinists, paid a business visit to Plainfield Lodge, No. 167, last night. The meeting was held in Trades Council Hall and fully 500 members were in attendance.

Something of importance brought the officials to Plainfield, but what it was no one would divulge today. The meeting was held behind closed doors. Rumor has it, however, that there is dissension among the leaders and the "get-together" was for the purpose of thrashing out the arguments.

GEORGE GLOVER IS FOUND DEAD

Fanwood Resident a Victim of Asphyxiation by Gas.

LONG IN POOR HEALTH

Lifeless Body Discovered by Wife Early This Morning—Was Accountant for American Refining Company.

George Glover, aged about 60 years, who has been a resident of Fanwood for the past twenty years, and was well-known in that section, was found dead this morning at 7:30 o'clock in the bed-room of his home on North avenue. The lifeless form was found by Mrs. Glover who became suspicious when her husband failed to appear for breakfast at the usual hour. Dr. F. W. Westcott, county physician, was summoned, and he found the man beyond medical aid. He gave as the cause of death asphyxiation.

Dr. Westcott said that upon entering the room where Mr. Glover was found dead, he detected an odor of gas, but upon investigation did not find the gas jet turned on. He thought that possibly there might have been a leak in a gas pipe. Mr. Glover, according to Dr. Westcott, had been in poor health for some time, and was inclined to be delicate, and in his opinion it would have taken but a small quantity of gas to cause asphyxiation. The rumor that Mr. Glover committed suicide could not be confirmed, in fact there is no reason why he should want to take his life.

Mr. Glover was an accountant in the employ of the American Refining Company, being located at the company's offices in New York. He was of a quiet and unassuming manner and was generally well regarded by his friends and neighbors, as well as those with whom he was associated in business in New York. Mr. Glover was a native of Canada, from which place he came to New Jersey. He was a member of the Royal Arcanum, in which he took much interest. There survives a wife, by a second marriage, two daughter, Miss Virginia Glover and a married daughter. The announcement of the funeral will be made later.

LOCAL TEACHER ONE OF SEVEN DELEGATES

Miss Evelyn Fisher Will Represent New Jersey at International Convention.

Friends of Miss Evelyn Fisher, who, for the past five years has been in charge of the kindergarten of the Washington School, of this city, are much interested in her recent appointment by the Trenton authorities as one of the seven New Jersey delegates to the convention of the International Kindergarten Union, which meets this year at Springfield, Mass., from April 20 to 25.

The leading authorities of the country in child education will be present at the convention which is recognized in the educational world as one of the most important gatherings of its nature in the country.

Those in touch with educational affairs seem to think that the interest this year will center in a discussion of the possible applications of the methods of Professor Montisorri, the Italian educator, to public school methods in this country.

NOMINATION OF A. J. DAVID SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

Trenton, March 31.—The nomination of Abe J. David, an Elizabeth lawyer, to be Judge of the District Court of that city, was sent to the Senate last night by Governor Fielder. The appointment is made to suceed Robert H. McAdams, who recently resigned, following his appointment as Clerk in Chancery.

Mr. David has been practicing law in Elizabeth since February, 1898, when he was admitted to the bar as an attorney. He became a counselor-at-law and Master in Chancery in June, 1909.

Joseph T. Hague, City Attorney of Elizabeth, and a Democrat, was also a candidate for the City District Court Judgeship.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING.

The Franklin-Stillman-Whittier Schools Parent-Teacher Association will meet tonight at the Franklin School auditorium. Miss Noel Bullock will give a practical talk to the parents.

WANT TO PLAY ALL DAY SUNDAY

Plainfield Country Club Members Will Try to Amend By-Laws.

MANY OPPOSE THE PLAN

Club Meeting to Be Held Saturday Night to Decide the Question—Golf is Now Permitted Half a Day Sunday.

Members of the Plainfield Country Club will meet in Columbus Hall on West Front street on Saturday night, to hold what promises to be a warm gathering. The question of opening the golf links on Sunday mornings during the coming season will be voted on and there is a substantial membership of the club on both sides of the question, which has been discussed more or less for the past two or three seasons.

Notices have been sent to every member, telling them of the proposed amendment, which provides that the club shall be open during the mornings, but that caddies are not to be permitted on the links before noon, thus doing away with the objection by some that these boys would be kept from Sunday-school if they were permitted all day. Those who favor the amendment have been working quietly on the matter for some weeks and have made a thorough canvas of all of the members of the club, except ones whom they are sure would be against it, before asking that the meeting be called. The fact that it has been called is taken by some to indicate that there is reasonable assurance that the amendment will be passed.

Opponents of the measure argue that many of the men who favor the all day opening are newcomers to the city and the club, and that if the Sunday morning opening is accomplished the next step will be to try to have a bar, which they claim will eventually tend to disrupt, rather than build up, the organization. There is healthy opposition to the amendment, but interested members on both sides of the question do not feel like predicting what will be the outcome. It is generally expected that there will be a very substantial turnout at the meeting on Saturday.

The opposition anticipating the action of those favoring the proposition has sent out a signed letter in which it is stated that they are opposed to such a change in the by-laws and are of the opinion that, with a full expression from the members of the club, the amendment will fail of adoption. They urged that it is of the utmost importance that there be a large representation of the club at the meeting Saturday night to vote on the proposition, and request that all may be present in order that the real feeling of the club may be expressed.

The letter is signed by Ernest R. Ackerman, Albert D. Beers, Henry J. Cochran, Henry L. DeForest, William A. Garrigues, Alexander Gilbert, Augustus V. Heely, Charles W. King, J. Albert Lane, John Doull Miller, Henry C. Munger, James P. Murray, Murray Rushmore, Townsend Rushmore and Joseph W. Sandford.

WILL INVITE EXPERTS TO SUBMIT PLANS FOR SCHOOL

The building committee of the Plainfield Board of Education met in the High School last night, and decided to extend an invitation to John T. Sampson, a Newark architect, to present tentative plans to the Board at its meeting to consider the proposed new school house to be erected on Evergreen avenue. He will probably meet with the committee sometime during the next ten days.

Plans prepared by Wilder & White caused considerable discussion and it now seems probable that before anything is determined upon that the Board will have expert opinion from several different sources in connection with the latest developments and economies in school construction.

CLASS ABANDONS PLAY.

At a meeting of the junior class of the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon, it was decided not to give a junior play as has been the custom in previous years. The class will give a dance May 15, the senior class probably being invited to attend.

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO MRS. F. G. MEAD

Y. W. C. A. Arranges Pleasing Affair in Honor of Its President.

Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead was to have been the guest of honor at a supper held last night at the Y. W. C. A., of which organization she has been president since its establishment here. About one hundred and fifty members of the association gathered for the affair and were disappointed to learn upon their arrival that the guest of honor could not be present because of illness, and they received her message of good will with much regret. The gathering was in the nature of a farewell to Mrs. Mead, who leaves shortly with her two daughters for a trip around the world.

The supper, which was similar to the usual Monday night affairs, but on a much larger scale, was served under the direction of Mrs. A. V. D Honeyman and the competent members of the supper committee, all of the guests being seated around small tables. During the evening carnations and roses were distributed to those present as a pleasant reminder from Mrs. Mead.

At the head table were seated Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Miss Margaret Mead and Miss Matthews, the latter coming as a representative of the Y. W. C. A. Training School. Remarks were made by Miss Smith, the local secretary; Miss Mead and Miss Matthews, and during the evening those present sang three improvised songs to the air of "Maryland," "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" and "Trail of the Lonesome Pines," the words all referring to Mrs. Mead.

In the absence of Mrs. Mead, her daughter, Miss Margaret Mead, gave a brief outline of the proposed trip around the world, explaining that the party would go from here to California, thence to Japan and would spend the summer in China, where her brother is engaged in mission work. Miss Matthews spoke more especially on "Association Spirit."

REVILLE'S RECORD BEING INVESTIGATED

Postal Inspector Nichols Visits Plainfield for That Purpose.

That consideration is being given to the application of former Councilman Patrick J. Reville, for the position of postmaster to succeed Elias H. Bird, was shown yesterday in the visit to this city of Postal Inspector Nichols, who came here chiefly, it is said, to examine more closely into the record of the Plainfield aspirant for the office and to inquire into the causes which led to his dismissal from the postal service as a letter-carrier.

Inspector Nichols not only examined the records at the postoffice, but called upon a number of citizens to obtain a personal opinion of the applicant and their views of the situation. It is understood that Mr. Nichols was in Plainfield last week one day for a similar purpose, but he refuses to disclose the results of his trips to this city. The appointment of a postmaster is expected within the next week or so as Mr. Bird's term expires about the middle of April.

While in the city yesterday, Mr. Nichols had pictures taken of the rural free delivery rigs and other equipment attached to the local office. He expressed himself as being well pleased with the equipment. Mr. Nichols will report his findings to Washington at once, it is believed, so as to facilitate the naming of Mr. Bird's successor. There was a rumor about today that J. V. F. Dilts is also a candidate for the position.

SALE AND MUSICALE.

Under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle of the King's Daughters, a sale and musicale will be held at the home of Mrs. Walter L. Righter, on West Seventh street, on Thursday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock. Cake, candy and fancy articles will be on sale, and the musical program will be furnished by Randall H. Trumpe, a well known tenor soloist.

HELD FIRE DRILL.

A fire drill was held in the Plainfield High School this morning, the entire school being emptied in one minute and fifty seconds. The pupils returned to the school and were back at their studies in five minutes.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 45 degrees; 11 a. m., 56 degrees; 1 p. m., 60 degrees.

FLAMES MENACED DEPEW BUILDING

Fire, Discovered by Railroad Engineer, Threatened to Destroy Structure.

FIRE AND WATER LOSS

Total Damage Estimated to Reach $3,500 — Dense Black Smoke Hampered Firemen in Their Work and Put Serious Aspect on Blaze.

Flames bursting through the frame partition in the rear of the Depew building at Park and North avenues at 1 o'clock this afternoon, were noticed by an engineer on a passing train and he sounded the fire alarm from his engine, attracting the attention of Harry Schuck, who pulled box No. 13. When the firemen arrived the entire structure was enveloped in a dense cloud of black smoke and the building, together with two adjacent structures, appeared doomed. Before the flames were extinguished damage estimated to reach $3,500 was done by smoke, fire and water. Acting-Chief Jennings expressed a belief that the fire had its origin from a spark from a passing locomotive.

The flames gained remarkable headway during the few minutes that elapsed between the sounding of the alarm and the arrival of the firemen and quick action on the part of the fire fighters was the only thing that saved the three buildings from complete destruction. The flames shot from the rear end of the Depew structure in volumes and to many it appeared as though an explosion had taken place. The entire rear half of the three floors were a mass of flames, and the smoke swept through each story, coming out the front and sides.

Streams from the new engine played with great force on the Sattel store and the home of D. W. Littell on North avenue, saving these places from ruin. Sattel's place was slightly damaged by smoke and the rubberoid roof was burned off. Fire crept through a window in the second story of the Littell property and water also did some damage to building and contents. Reports of a big conflagration in the business section of the city spread quickly and it was not long before a crowd of several hundred persons had been attracted to the scene.

The density of the smoke issuing from the building hampered the firemen in their work and a number had to be assisted to the open air by companions to recover from the effects of the fumes. Smoke filled the offices of the Monarch Printing Company, the Democratic Club, Preston Clay's mechanical dentistry shop, James Lapert's barber shop and the Warnock bakery, and all of these places were damaged more or less. The fire broke out in a portion of the building directly over the baker's oven, but this, it is said, had nothing to do with the origin of the blaze, a three foot solid brick wall separating it from the exterior.

The above mentioned concerns were flooded with water and although insurance is carried by all of those affected business will be slightly interfered with in each case to allow for repairs. The Warnock bakery store was only slightly damaged by smoke and business is being carried on as usual this afternoon.

IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY GIVES A SURPRISE PARTY

A surprise party arranged by a committee under the direction of William de LaR. Anderson, was tendered to Albert Brokaw at the Watchung Improvement Society Hall, Watchung, last night. An old fashioned dance that entertained so many of the parents was a feature of the occasion. Many friends from this city and the borough were in attendance. Among those who assisted Mr. Anderson in planning the affair were Mrs. M. H. Caleen, Mrs. E. T. Canning, Mr. and Mrs. George Mobus and John Mobus.

TO OPEN NEW RESTAURANT.

"BILLY" SUNDAY SUED FOR LIBEL BY BROKER

The complaint in the action for alleged libel in the sum of $25,000, recently begun by Charles A. Bell, a broker, against William A. Sunday, the evangelist, in on file today in the Supreme Court, New York. The utterances to which Mr. Bell takes exception are said to have been made by Mr. Sunday in Wilkesbarre, Pa., on March 13, when, it is alleged, the evangelist referred to testimony said to have been given by Mrs. Bell, wife of the complainant, at the trial of an action for separation before Justice Tompkins, at White Plains, N. Y. Mr Bell says that the alleged utterances are malicious and false.

The congregation of the First M. E. church held a business session last night and elected the following trustees: Samuel Bingaman, William R. Codington and James R. Joy, all of whom have been serving during the past year.

NOT A GOOD JAILER.

Still, the Burman Sentry Was Somewhat In a Quandary.

The warders in Burmese jails are nearly always men from the Punjab and northern India. They are large and muscular, but the principal reason for selecting them is that they are not Buddhists. The Burman is sometimes employed as a warder, but his Buddhist education often causes his prejudices to come in collision with his official duties, as in the case of one warder.

A phoongyee, or Buddhist priest, in jail for stealing, had been placed in solitary confinement for disobeying the prison rules. His influence as a priest had persuaded a Burman warder to procure him some betel nuts, which, being discovered in his possession, caused his punishment.

The stone cell in which the priest was confined had a plank supported at both ends by insertion into slots in the walls. The plank served as a bed, and at night the priest jumped on it again and again in order to force the ends out of the shallow sockets.

The Burman sentry peeped into the aperture of the door and asked him to desist.

The convict replied that he was a priest and, as such, forbidden to sleep upon a raised bed.

By this time he had got the board free and, to disarm the sentry's suspicions, lay down upon it and feigned sleep. The sentry returned to his post, but a few hours later he was alarmed to see the phoongyee walking softly down the passage. He had used the board as a lever to force out two of the bars in the door and had managed to squeeze himself through the aperture.

The sentry, a Buddhist, was embarrassed. To lay violent hands upon the holy convict was out of the question; to allow him to escape would bring punishment upon himself. As the passage doors were locked and the priest safe for the present, the sentry ventured to remonstrate with his charge on the impropriety of his behavior.

The tramp of the relief guard was heard outside. The sentry knelt and implored the priest to return to his cell. The door opened upon the tableau—a uniformed sentry in an attitude of supplication before a convict.

The Punjabese who formed the relief guard, not being Buddhists, had no respect for phoongyees. The convict priest was promptly bundled into a new cell.—Boston Herald.

Led Up to a Fall.

Anticlimax frequently occurs in the literary efforts of natives in India, particularly when they have occasion to petition Europeans for favors. The following is a fair example:

"Will the presence, whose reputation for justice is known from east to west and whose countenance spreads joy among his inferiors, who are as the sands of the seashore in number, graciously deign to take but an instant's notice of him who has the almost delirious honor to name himself as one of the most unworthy among the servants of the protector of the poor, and will the favorite son of the Lord of the universe magnanimously overlook the amazing presumption in asking him for the payment of a bill of two annas for hen feed?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Life on Broadway.

"Hey! Git outer th' way! Do you t'ink you own th' street?"

"Go on, you big stiff! You got about as much brains as a weasel!"

"Come down here and I'll lick you!"

"You couldn't lick a postage stamp, you boob!"

Sit behind the motorman on a Broadway car some afternoon and this is some of the repartee you will hear between the truck driver who insists on sticking to the car tracks and the motorman trying to keep to schedule. Of course nothing serious happens. There are lots of "cops" along Broadway, good big ones.—New York Tribune.

Native Home of the Novel.

England is the native home of the novel, as is Normandy of the apple or Valencia of the orange. Why? That question can be answered only in a large volume or in a single word. Let us answer it in a word. Lord Redesdale has already suggested the answer to us. It is that the novel is in its nature intimate, cordial and homely and that the English mind is homely, intimate and cordial.—Anatole France in a London Address.

Rinse the Lamp Every Two Weeks.

To keep a lamp in good condition the oil should be entirely emptied out at least every two weeks. Rinse every particle of sediment from the bowl of the lamp with a little clean oil. Never use water for this, for even a drop will cause the flame to sputter. After cleaning every part thoroughly, refill the bowl with oil, to which a little salt has been added to make a more brilliant light.—Country Gentleman.

Mean Man.

Edwards—So you think your next door neighbor is mean? Matchell—Of course I think he is mean. Wouldn't you think him mean if he killed his rooster, which had wakened you and kept you awake every morning for two years, the very night before you wanted to catch a 2:10 a. m. train?—Judge.

A Possible Reason.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS HELEN ROGERS ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Rogers, of Central avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen May Rogers, to Roy Edward Titsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Titsworth, of Madison avenue. No date has been announced for the wedding.

Both are well known to a large circle of acquaintances in this city and vicinity and are active in the work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. Miss Rogers was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1909 and Mr. Titsworth from the same institution in the class of 1912.

PRIZE FOR COMPOSITION WON BY MISS JENNIE SEARS

Mrs. Charles R. Banks, representing the Continental Chaper, D. A. R., visited the North Plainfield High School, this morning, and during the assembly exercises presented the $5 gold piece offered by that organization for the best essay on a given subject to Miss Jennie Sears, a member of the senior class.

Historical topics were suggested by the Continental Chapter and the winning theme was one of the patriotic order. A number of members of the chapter attended the exercises this morning.

MRS. HENRY SIEGEL TO SUE MERCHANT FOR DIVORCE

Three women are named in the suit for divorce which has been brought against Henry Siegel, the bankrupt merchant and banker, of New York, by Mrs. Marie Vaughn Siegel, who has just returned from Paris. Two of the co-respondents she has identified, while the third Mrs. Siegel says she does not know.

Mrs. Siegel alleges in her complaint that between November 28, 1910, and the present date her husband has been guilty of misconduct with a Miss Smith both in New York at the Netherland Hotel, and at Driftwood, Mr. Siegel's country home at Mamaroneck. Miss Smith, she alleges, was described as a nurse by her husband. The second co-respondent named, a Mrs. Eddy, is said to reside in Dorchester, Mass., and to have lived with Mr. Siegel both in this city and at his country home.

Mrs. Siegel asks in her complaint that a "reasonable provision be made out of the property and income of the defendant for the support of the plaintiff." She does not state her opinion of the value of her husband's assets.

THE GOOD SHIP FRAM.

Selected to Be Among the First Ships to Pass Through Canal.

The stanch little Fram, which among ships holds the record of the farthest north and the farthest south, has recently been selected to be among the first ships to pass through the Panama canal. She was built and equipped for Dr. Fridtjof Nansen's expedition of 1893. In that year she entered the ice pack and drifted northward until

THE FRAM—SHE HAS A LONG POLAR RECORD.

March of 1895. It was on this expedition that Nansen reached the farthest north up to that time.

Subsequently Captain Roald Amundsen secured possession of the little ship and used her in his memorable expedition of 1912, when he discovered the south pole. She also was Captain Otto Sverdrup's ship in his long arctic expedition of 1898-1902, when he mapped out a considerable amount of arctic territory which up to that time was terra incognita.

CONCERT AND BALL.

Under the auspices of the Temple Sholem, of Plainfield, the recently organized reformed Hebrew organization, a grand concert and ball will be given at the Park Club, this evening. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock, followed afterward by the dance. The committee in charge has arranged for a very pleasant evening.

A MAN'S GAME WHICH DELIGHTS WOMEN AND CHILDREN

By special arrangement with the publisher, the Daily Press will distribute to its readers the new, up-to-date and interesting game known as

CHANCE BASEBALL.

The game is a scientific arrangement of nearly fifty different plays in baseball. Practically every play arising in the National game including the famous "Squeeze Play" of the Champion Athletics, and the spectacular "Double Steal" of the New York Giants. It is so simple that a person with only a smattering of baseball knowledge can play it and the person who knows nothing about baseball can learn the game in a short time and in a practical manner.

THE WAY IT WORKS.

Walter Johnson is pitching. Ty Cobb at the bat. Ty hits for a single. Watch him steal second. Then down to third on a sacrifice. Now what do you think of that "dub?" He's out napping at third. The plays are all there and you're sure to make 'em.

GET IN THE GAME.

MAKE A HIT

With the folks by obtaining one. You'll make an error if you don't. It is as much fun for the grown-ups as it is for the youngsters. Get a grand stand seat for the price of a score-card and make rooters out of the entire family.

To get this miniature baseball game, which is superior to all others that have ever been offered, clip the coupon below and bring it to the Daily Press office, with 8 cents in stamps or money. If you want it mailed, add two cents more.

PLAINFIELD PRESS COMPANY.

Please accept this coupon and enclosed eight cents (ten cents if CHANCE BASEBALL is to be mailed) for which deliver to me one game "CHANCE BASEBALL."

FLOODS IMPERILS DAMS AND RESERVOIRS IN VALLEY

Albany, N. Y., March 31.—Melting snow and continued shows are responsible today for the floods throughout the Hudson watershed. Because of the volumes of water which have been poured into the tributaries of the Mohawk, great alarm is felt today for the safety of the Amsterdam reservoir and men are constantly on duty to watch the manner in which the retaining walls stand the strain of the increasing flood. More rain, it is declared, may result in the dam giving way.

George T. Todd, government weather forecaster at Albany, predicted today rising water tomorrow and a flood in the Hudson Valley much more serious than last year, unless there is an immediate cold wave.

The danger of tremendous property loss from floods is never over until the Adirondack snows have melted. The ice in the Hudson is still solid in the river north of Glens Falls, and river men fear a record flood and the destruction of hundreds of lumber booms when the ice goes out. The river at Albany and Troy is stationary tonight, but reports from the upper Hudson indicate that it will begin rising again in a few hours.

CITY ELECTION IN DES MOINES.

Des Moines, Ia., March 31.—The campaign in Des Moines closed yesterday, preparatory to the municipal election today, when a mayor and members of the City Council will be elected. The re-election of Mayor James R. Hanna is predicted. His opponent on the ticket is Zell G. Roe, at present a member of the Council. In the primaries Mayor Hanna received more than twice as many votes as Roe.

PROCTOR'S BILL.

The special features at Proctor's today are: "The Man Who Slept," Pathe's Weekly, "The Peacock Feather Fan," "A Real Helpmate," "The Chicken Chasers" and "A Maze of Mystery." Tomorrow's program will consist of several feature films among which will be "Daniel," or "In the Den of Lions." The others are "Hogan's Alley," "In the Fall of '64," and "An Interrupted Seance."

OIL MORE COSTLY THAN COAL.

Albany, N. Y., March 31—That under present conditions oil is not likely to be substituted for coal as a fuel for railroads in this part of the country is indicated by evidence furnished at a hearing before the Public Service Commission here today. The hearing was on a request from the New York Central road for permission to use coal instead of oil in the locomotives running through the Adirondack forest reserve. The company asserts that the provision requiring oil for fuel during certain months with a view of preventing forest fires increased the operating expenses more than $100,000 last year, and that the use of coal with such precautionary measures as have been prepared would not increase the fire risk.

NEBRASKA G. O. P. HARMONY.

Lincoln Neb., March 31.—As a result of a conference begun here yesterday harmony is in sight for the Republican party in Nebraska, which has been split into two rival factions since the presidential campaign in 1912. Plans for an amalgamation of the opposing forces were discussed by the two State central committees representing the two factions of the party. The proposed agreement for a restoration of harmony calls for the retirement of the Currie committee, which supported Taft in the last campaign, in favor of the Epperson committee, representing the rival faction.

WILL BE MARRIED APRIL 14.

LESS PRUDISHNESS.

During the present session the Legislature has killed a bill which would have provided for the teaching of sex hygiene in the schools. There was a time, not many years ago, when the very mention of this subject was tabooed in polite society, but of late this has all been changed, and with the investigations of the terrible conditions which have existed in some cities the parents and welfare workers have realized that real safety for young men and women was best gained by telling them of the dangers which may confront them as they grow into manhood and womanhood.

Great magazines, such as reach the homes and are respected for their expressions of opinion, have taken up the subject and given wide prominence to it. Men prominent in the medical profession are contributing articles which are converting a large number who were formerly opposed to such teaching, and today there is a widespread demand for it. There is probably no question over which there is such a wide divergence of opinion, but the policy of silence is certainly doomed in many progressive cities and states.

The State of Oregon has set the pace for sex educationalists. Men and women of all ages and occupations have beeen reached there without a public protest as a result of a sane, tactful and efficient educational campaign. Venereal disease advertisements have been barred from newspapers of the state by law and an advisory medical and correspondence bureau has been maintained by the State Board of Health, a work for which the state appropriated $20,000 last year.

New York city has established diagnostic stations for such diseases and has made them reportable to the health authorities. The educational result has been enormous. Vice surveys and grand jury probes there and in other large cities have added impetus to the movement and created a public demand for reform which can only come by education. Vice combatants, in fact, have come to recognize that their only hope lies, not in laws, but in education. This new duty leads along a certain dangerous line, upon the one side of which lies benefit to the general public while on the other, danger lurks. There is urgent need for cool heads, standardization of educational literature distributed in the combat on vice and the censorship of popular pictures upon the subject.

It is to be hoped that the New Jersey legislators will soon see the need of laws which will make it possible for the teaching of sex hygiene, thus bringing the State to the front rank in safeguarding the public health of the future.

The candidates for Congress are beginning to get busy hereabouts. Mr. Tuttle has declared that he will seek renomination on the Democratic ticket in the Fifth District, and former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman will undoubtedly do the same thing on the Republican side. Rev. William Torrance Stuchell, who subscribes himself as one of the "common people," also thinks he would like to be the candidate of the Republican party, and there are a couple of others that are talked about. In the Fourth district, of which North Plainfield is a part, our old friend, W. de LaR. Anderson, is out for the Republican nomination with a platform of new ideas, more or less, and former Mayor Newton B. Smalley will probably make an effort to get the place. Of course, Congressman Allen B. Walsh will also again seek the job over there. If they keep on increasing at the present rate by the time the primaries roll around the voters will have a busy time knowing "who's who."

During the winter an appeal was made through the columns of the Daily Press for the birds, and the thoughts of many citizens were turned to their needs, the result being the scattering of food on the snow so that they would not starve to death. Now a humanitarian friend wants an appeal made for the horses. We would be glad to urge that drivers be more considerate, but the kind of a man who mistreats his steed and overloads it is not the kind that will give any attention to a newspaper protest. The only cure for that type is to bring him before a police judge and fine him to such an extent that he will not forget the lesson.

The Daily Press has repeatedly called attention to its rule not to publish letters unless signed, and in cases where it has appeared to us that a fictitious name has been used we have investigated always before printing. A communication received yesterday criticising the fire department for its handling of the fire in Netherwood last Friday has a signature attached to it which does not appear in the Plainfield directory and is so obviously "faked" that it will not be printed. If the writer will call at the Press office, make his true name known and sign it to the letter, the same will appear in the next issue of the Daily Press.

THE FORUM.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Will you kindly give me space to continue the argument started in the anti-suffrage column on Saturday last, to show that the wage earning girl realizes the fallacy of suggesting that a vote would raise her wages, shorten her working hours or in any way benefit her in industry. In addition to the statement made by Miss Knox, of Trenton, the following statement by Miss Alice Edith Abell at the hearing before the rules committee at Washington, December 4 last, is of interest.

"I am not a speaker. I am a stenographer, and my business is to listen; but I have a few words I would like to say on this subject.

"Now, we of the Wage Earners' Anti-Suffrage League are not doubting women of the chimney corner, as Mrs. Blatch has termed those who do not agree with her. We have convictions on this question based on our experience in man's world, the business world, and we know that the ballot would be a disadvantage to us. I myself bear testimony to the fact that the ballot has no relation to wages whatever, having started my career at four dollars a week and worked up to twenty-four a week. We wage earners think we have not lost our feminine distinctiveness, and, in fact, have many of us, sneaking aspirations toward the chimney corner ourselves, although we have been obliged to assume some masculine responsibilities. We can the better appreciate what woman's true sphere in life is, having been kept out of it daily.

"I will mention that about 75 per cent. of the women employes in the corporation for which I work are either opposed or indifferent to the vote, and I know of but 5 per cent. who are avowed suffragists. The strongest argument of the suffragists is their most feminine one—and it is also the strongest argument of the anti-suffragists—that of what women want. If it can actually be proven that the majority of the women want the ballot, the Wage Earners' Anti-Suffrage League is ready to show its democratic spirit by accepting the added responsibilities which go with it, so far as their physical limitations permit, just as they have accepted other responsibilities outside of their own sphere, when necessary."

Miss Alice Buck, a factory girl, of Trenton, said in part at the same hearing:

"A certain suffragist in Trenton says that most of the working girls are too ignorant to know what they want. The majority of working girls of today are not ignorant. We know what we want and most of us have very good reasons. We do not want the vote.

"The Suffragists claim that when women are given the right to vote it will increase the working girl's salary. How can it? In fact, the day that the working girl's salary is increased to equal that of the working man a great majority of the working girls will lost their positions. There are numberless business firms that could not afford to keep the same number of employes and increase their wages to any great extent. Therefore, if compelled to increase the wage by law they will have to discharge some of the girls to cut down expenses. In a number of instances this will necessitate one girl having to do the work of three or four.

"For the past nine years I have been out in the world earning my own living, and even before then I worked during my summer vacations, consequently most of my associates are working girls, but I do not know one of them who is a suffragist."

Here is the testimony of wage earners in varied capacities. They represent that of thousands.

R. A. LAWRENCE

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

Being a staunch advocate of the Plainfield Press, I took great pleasure in reading the Forum, as well as other items of news in your issue of March 30. I note "A Thought for All, Leave the Summer more Beautiful than You Found It." In answer to that I will say that three or four years ago, I set out eighteen young trees on Bradford avenue—not alone to beautify my residence, but I planted them as far as the corner of DeKalb avenue, two hundred feet away on both sides of the street. The first year the boys maliciously broke one down. This I replaced. The following year two more were broken, another stripped of its bark with a penknife. Complain as I would to the parents no relief was afforded. I have lost in all five trees which were maliciously broken down, only one the other day. Two rotted down and these I replaced. Last year, indirectly I attempted to get the Shade Tree Commission interested so as to protect the trees, so that after a few years we would have one of those shaded avenues envied by many cities, of which Plainfield has many. Can a citizen still have the interest to try and beautify the streets after such malicious conduct, without relief. As is emphasized in the schools, the necessity of caring for all trees, eulogize to the child the greatness of the trees, both for pleasure and comfort, when properly taken care of. Many men leave the summer more beautiful than they find it.

TAPS FROM THE GAVEL.

Lodges scheduled to meet tonight are as follows: Court Plainfield, No. 1144, I. O. F., at Junior Hall, and Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. of G. E., at the Babcock building.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 319, L. O. O. M., are anticipating entering the proposed Moose Baseball League, which is being talked of among the lodges in Northern Jersey. The committee of the local lodge who has the matter in charge is as follows: Joseph Hann, James McCarty and Charles Pagliucca, and will meet the representatives of the other lodges in the near future.

Company G, Uniformed Rank, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Garwood, will hold a dance at Turn Hall, of that place, on April 17. Members of the local rank will attend.

Plainfield Council, No. 402, United Comercial Travelers, elected the following officers at a recent meeting. Senior councilor, A. S. Olmstead; junior councilor, E. W. Poinier; past councilor, Peter H. Bennet; secretary-treasurer John M. Lewis; conductor, Frank R. Story; page, A. F. Osmun; sentinel, I. B. Hill; chaplain, Joseph D. Moon; representative to grand council, Fred A. Kirch; alternate, James C. Field; executive committee, Fred Kling, Charles A. Sturtevant, Joseph C. Allen and J. D. Moon. Three new members were introduced into the mysteries of the order.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Miss Speidel, teacher in the eighth grade, has gone to her home in Rome, N. Y., until after the Easter vacation. Her class is being taken by Miss Wardner, of this city.

Two more committees have been ratified by the senior class for commencement. Charles Beckman will make up the class and Mary Bennett Edith Dalley, Mary Martin and Edna Green will comprise the prophecy committee.

There is some talk about a senior paper that is to be issued in June as a farewell favor of the grads. Nothing definite has been decided on but it is very likely that this plan will be carried out.

The senior class received a very interesting letter from a former classmate, Charles Lindsay, who is now in the Flower Hospital, New York. He is doing very nicely and expects to be about in a month.

Somerville

A meeting of the members of the Jewish synagogue was held Sunday night for the purpose of getting up a remonstrance against the construction of a store and dwelling on a lot adjoining the synagogue on East Main street. The latter structure and the other buildings on the street at the present time are set a considerable distance back from the curb line, but the proposed building is to be set as near the curb line as the borough ordinance will allow, which is fifteen feet. This it is claimed, will injure the church property, as the new building will be close to it.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Hoffman and children, of Philadelphia, are spending a few days with Mr. Hoffman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Hoffman, of East Cliff street.

The clerks and carriers of the Somerville postoffice tendered a dinner last night, at the Somerset Hotel, to Postmaster J. G. Gaston and William E. Maxwell, who will succeed Mr. Gaston as postmaster tomorrow. All participants had a most enjoyable time.

Mrs. G. V. H. Weaver, of Mechanic street, is now much improved from her recent illness. Her daughters, Mrs. Joseph Vickery and Miss Mary Butler, of Trenton, who have been spending a month in town, will stay another month before returning to Trenton. Sunday, Mr. Vickery visited them.

Captain Albert E. Case, who recently resigned as commanding officer of Company M, will move his family out of town. Harry E. Haynes and family will occupy the house vacated by Mr. Case and family, on Grove street.

The Misses Miriam McConaughy and Doris Cleveland, students at Northfield School, are spending the spring vacation with their parents here.

Rev. and Mrs. Roy Vale are spending a few days at Philadelphia.

"The Village Postoffice" which was presented at Trinity Reformed church last Friday evening will be repeated April 17, at the same place.

SACRED HYMNS TOUCH AUDIENCE

Prof. Stout, "Gospel Singer," Conducts the Revival Service.

A "SERMON IN SONG"

Park Avenue Baptist Church Again Thronged With Worshippers—Several Persons Profess Conversion.

The Park Avenue Baptist church was again filled to capacity, last night, at the revival service conducted by Prof. B. P. Stout, who is assisting Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire. The entire service was a "Sermon in Song," the keynote of which was "The Prodigal Son," and it made a lasting impression on the hundreds of men and women present.

Prof. Stout sang "The Holy City," with sweetness and power. In "The Lost Prodigal" one could almost see the young man clasped in the arms of his father who had seen him afar off and had run to meet his wayward boy. "The Sinner and the Song" tells the story of a man who had wandered from God and was living a life of sin; passing the open door of a church he hears the sweet strains of the good old fashioned hymn his dear old mother used to sing—"Jesus Lover of My Soul." He went in and that night God touched his heart and brought him back to the fold. Prof. Stout sang with feeling "Bring Back My Wandering Boy," followed by the well known favorite "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" written by the late Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry, former pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. The wonderful sympathy which the singer put into this beautiful song touched every heart present, and when at its close he offered a word of prayer and gave an invitation to the unconverted to accept Christ, one young woman accepted the invitation and expressed her desire to start the Christian life.

"The Bird With the Broken Wing" tells the story of a bird whose wing had been broken and although it was mended the bird never soared so high again; and so with a man or woman deep down in sin—even though rescued and given a new start on the Christian road, they never can be what they were before their fall. That is man's version, but listen! God says, though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow, though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool; and by His grace and redeeming power Christ will make our reconstructed lives tell even more powerfully for Him than they did before the fall.

The "Ninety and Nine," that beautiful song that has always been associated with Ira D. Sankey, was given last evening by this gospel singer with a combined tenderness and power that touched every heart in the audience; with exquisite vividness he pictured the lone sheep, that had wandered away from the fold, the anxiety of the shepherd who missed it, his search over the rugged mountain all through the night, and the joy in the morning when he found it and carried it back to the fold. The impression upon the audience was marvelous, and when after a short prayer by Pastor Maguire and an earnest invitation for all who had wandered away from the fold of Jesus Christ, to turn back to where a loving welcome awaited them, or for those who had never known what it was to be numbered among the redeemed, four people in the audience signified their desire to be known as the followers of the Lord Jesus. The service was impressive throughout and there is a belief among the members of the Park avenue church that a great work for the Master will be done during the next two weeks.

The services will be continued this evening at 8 o'clock, when Prof Stout will sing "The Lost Chord" and a number of other songs, and Pastor Maguire will speak. A chorus choir assisted by Judge William N. Runyon will render several selections.

READY TO RACE AT NORFOLK.

Norfolk, Va., March 31.—The racing season in the East will be inaugurated tomorrow, with the opening of the spring meeting of the Jamestown Jockey Club. Several hundred horses, including many of the fast steppers seen this winter at Charleston and Juarez, are stabled at the local track and the officials of the club are looking forward to the most successful meeting ever pulled off here. The purses are more liberal than any heretofore offered by the club. The officials who will preside at the meeting are: Starter, Mars Cassidy; stewards, Joseph Murphy and Frank J. Bryan; judges, Ed Cole and F. W. Gerhardy; secretary, Joseph McLennon; clerk of the scales, H. P. Conklin, and paddock judge, Harry White.

DEAD MAN GETS APPOINTMENT

Hackettstown, March 31—Certificates as commissioners of deeds of Coursen H. Albertson, of Independence township, and Jacob M. Rockafellow, of Mansfield township, have been received at the office of the county clerk at Belvidere. Mr. Albertson has been dead more than a year, while Mr. Rockafellow moved from Warren county to Netcong nearly two years ago.

O. A. CHARLES TO SPEAK BEFORE BUSINESS MEN'S ASSN

The Business Men's Association will meet tomorrow evening at Sebring's Auditorium, when they will be addressed by O. A. Charles on questions of civic nature. Merchants and professional men of the city, as well as members of the Common Council are requested to be present and take part in the open discussion, which will follow the informal talk by the speaker.

The auditorium for the occasion has been donated by Charles Sebring. The association desire to have it known that the meeting is open to the public who desire to have their civic pride increased, and will in the nature be a get-to-gether gathering.

AVERAGE ENROLLMENT OF LOCAL SCHOOLS IS 3,521

An extensive report of the Board of Education is now in the course of preparation and will be ready for distribution by the first of the week. The report, which covers the year ending June 30, 1913, will not only cover the statistics of the various schools, but explanations of the questions which have been discussed more or less by the citizens of this city.

Among the interesting figures which are included in the report are as follows: Average enrollment, 3,251; average attendance, 3,162; number of teachers, 129; cost of schools, $185,901; from local school tax, $85,000; from the State school tax $62,000; from the county tax, $40,000, and from other sources, $14,000. Seventy per cent. of the expense is used for salaries.

Concerning the swimming pool in the high school which has caused considerable comment, Dr. Maxson has the following to say in its defense:

1—It gives him powers to save his own life, if through any chance he should be thrown into the water.

2—It puts within his reach an important instrument for pleasure and for physical recuperation in his vacations by the shore, the sea, the river or the lake.

3—It puts within his power to save the life and happiness of others in time of need. No one who has had the sad experience of seeing a shore lined with people, none of whom were able to save a drowning child because they could not swim, will ever question the importance of teaching the art of swimming.

Sale To Pay Creditors

Hackett, Carhart & Co. Stores to Be Disposed Of.

Charles Shongood, who in his official capacity is auctioneer for the United States Government for the Southern District of New York, will take charge of the affairs of Hackett, Carhart & Co., Inc., operating three stores, at Broadway and Chambers St., Broadway and 13th St., and 119 W. 42d St., New York City.

This organization, which dates back to 1856, has been struggling for an opportunity to disentangle itself from its involved financial condition. The action now taken is unique, inasmuch as it represents a stand taken by the board of directors to liquidate, paying its creditors 100 cents on the dollar. The permission of the creditors was obtained, and Mr. Shongood was selected as best equipped to convert all assets into cash. Mr. Shongood has begun a sale this week to accomplish this end.

THE DAILY PRESS IN SOMERVILLE will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon after 4:30 by Jacob Gernert, the Main stret newsdealer and stationer.

NEW JERSEY AT THE PANAMA EXPOSITION

Believed the State Will Have More Representative Showing Than Any Other.

New Jersey's commissioners for the State's participation in the Panama-Pacific Exposition next year have been complimented by chiefs of the various divisions of exhibits of the Exposition on their unusual activity in calling the attention of the State manufacturers to the advantages of an exhibit at San Francisco.

This commission was appointed by Governor Wilson and organized prior to his becoming President. Shortly thereafter fifteen hundred New Jersey manufacturers, who were considered as prospective exhibitors, were extended invitations to make an exhibit, and full and explicit information was placed at their disposal. In addition to this and other invitations that were extended, two expert solicitors toured the State for the commission, personally calling the attention of the larger manufacturers to the opportunity the Exposition offered, and to the extent that San Francisco is arranging to entertain during 1915 all the progressive merchants and discriminating buyers of the whole world, but more especially the nations of the Pacific area most directly effected by the opening of the Panama Canal, particularly the extremely rich and rapidly growing Pacific slope of our own country.

These efforts are now being supplemented by an invitation to all of the Chambers of Commerce of the State to co-operate with the commission in having any manufacturers, who have not already filed their application for exhibition facilities, to do so promptly. The exhibits must of necessity be selective in character because of the comparative limitation of space, which will be more restricted than at any other previous International Exposition owing to a much wider participation and the world's more extended productivity. The Exposition authorities plan to allot space during the month of May, and it is the intention to have the various exhibits compose only the most modern products in every field of endeavor.

Charles H. Green, chief of the division of manufacturers; Theodore Hardee, chief of liberal arts, and A. S. Lindstrom, of the department of machinery, have all commended the commission for the unusual amount of co-operation they are receiving from this commission as compared with the assistance rendered in other states. These gentlemen say that the indications now point to New Jersey having relatively a much more representative showing than any other State in the Union.

BASEBALL NOTES

Arthur Griggs, former first baseman of the Cleveland Naps, has joined the Brooklyn Federal League team.

From all accounts "Rabbit" Maranville is the real live wire of the Boston Braves, not excepting the scrappy Johnny Evers.

Young O'Mara has been holding down the regular job at short for the Brooklyn Superbas. He looks like a fixture with the Robinson crew.

Leach Schulte and Johnson stand as the Cubs' speed merchants to date. Good has been fielding well, but has not been hitting.

Ty Cobb and Sam Crawford have started to paste the pellet, which means the slaughtering of the minor league with which the Tigers engage in battle.

Manager Pieper, of the Lawrence New England League team, has signed the younger brothers of Christy Mathewson and Smoky Joe Wood. Both boys are pitchers.

Joe Oeschger, the Phillies' youthful player from California, cost President Baker $3,500. He played with the St. Mary's College team, with which Harry Krause also was developed.

The services of President Dreyfuss as a schedule maker are in great demand about this time of year. The boss of the Pirates has just completed a schedule for the Western Canadian (Twilight) League, in which the games are not started until 6 o'clock in the evening.

With so many "B's" in the training camp of the Athletics it begins to look like another sting for the other American League teams, with the world's champs copping the honey again next October. With the Mackmen are Baker, Bender, Barry, Bush, Brown, Baldwin, Bohen, Bressler, Boardman and a second Baker, who is a rookie pitcher.

A. E. Crone, of 918 Union street, has removed to 1111 Evergreen avenue.

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL'S CLASSROOM MOGULS WON ANNUAL BASKETBALL GAME FROM ATHLETES OF THE FOURTH YEAR CLASS

Plainfield High School, March 30, 1914—Male members of the Plainfield High School faculty turned in their annual report here this afternoon as follows: "Faculty 31, Seniors 30. Senior class basketball teams continue to improve. Managed to carry class room authority to the basketball court and fourth class students submitted protestingly to superiors. Seniors disappeared immediately following game. Whereabouts unknown."

Brawn and "scientific" basketball triumphed over youth and vigor in yesterday's all important match on the Plainfield High School court by a single point. Sedate and awe inspiring moguls of the class room ruled with an iron hand and the schoolboys were given little opportunity to even up old scores accumulated during four years of high school life. It was painfully evident to the Seniors that their knowledge drillers had been burning the midnight oil and had managed to squeeze all of the technicalities of the court game into their already well filled craniums.

The slightest oversight on the part of Ben Evans, the man behind the gun on this occasion, brought forth howls of protest such as are tabooed in the classroom, from the teaching corps, and all attempts launched by the students to "put one over" were steered toward the exit. Some of the victors really knew the difference between a baseball and basketball, but others were contented to sit on a senior opponent and watch the course of the illusive spheroid as it wended its way about the gym and took kick and punch without the slightest bit of remonstrance.

Curiosity seekers flocked to the P. H. S. basketball rendezvous long before the curtain rose yesterday afternoon, to capture front seats for the annual exhibition. The 1914 contest was a repetition of other such encounters and supplied the same large portion of burlesque amusement for the student body and other witnesses. What the pedagogues are prevented from duty along the lines of corporal punishment in the classroom they performed on the basketball court and as a result seniors are now relating sorrowful tales of woe and refuse to be the recipients of condolence proffered by their companions.

Drug stores in this city reported an astonishing sale of all kinds of linament last night, and many of the local pill distributors had to fall back on Dunellen, North Plainfield and Scotch Plains druggists to replenish their supplies. All of the participants in the battle royal are now suffering for their recklessness and one of the many fugitives has been absent since the whistle sounded ending the game and cannot be located by his teammates. Any stray basketball league magnates who might have happened in the Hign School gym while the game was in progress might have put a crimp in the P. H. S. teaching corps for some exceedingly clever basketball was displayed by a select few. These individuals made up for what their teammates lacked and those who remained in the gym from start to finish were convinced that the sport being assaulted by the teachers and pupils was really basketball by the time the climax was reached.

During the course of the pastiming it became necessary for several of the combatants to engage in heated arguments but on this particular occasion the students proved the equal of their teachers as debaters. Few there were who came through the duel unscathed and these few are today the self appointed representatives of those whose joints are stiff and sore. During the first few moments of the game creeking joints made stiff and rusty during several years' idleness supplied opening music for the spectators, but after a little use they worked with surprising smoothness.

The Senior team took the floor first and practiced for about ten minutes. The faculty and referee then marched into the gym Indian file, each member carrying a broom, signifying that they had come to "clean house" with the Seniors. One of the members of the faculty wore a mask, and a card around his neck with "Wriston" written on it. The Senior team heard that Mr. Beers had a friend of athletic renown visiting the school, and became so inquisitive as to delegate Harold Williams to take the mask off. He finally gathered up enough nerve and did so, revealing Mr. Woodman, the new phenom.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

We have been considerably annoyed during the past few weeks by lengthy communications of the anonymous variety coming from rabid admirers of one Robert Fitzsimmons, recently debarred from the fight game. Those who are behind these "parting shots" might better hoard up their grievances for they will find no outlet for their spleen in the columns of this paper. We, like all other true sportsmen, admire the grand old man of the prize ring and are led to believe that these letters have been issued for publication entirely without his authorization. Someone is evidently taking this means of furnishing Bob with some cheap advertising, but is ignorant of the fact that he is doing more harm than good by the methods employed. We received in this morning's mail a 2,000 word letter from a certain individual in Dunellen, who has been refused space time and again for this sort of trash when he has personally applied at this office. The object of the writers of these letters is not to degrade the boxing commission, but to gain sympathy for the Ruby Cornishman, thereby making him an object of pity and curiosity wherever he performs on his vaudeville tour. Fitzsimmons does not need condolence, but if the truth were made public it would probably be shown that he spurns such notoriety as certain persons are enedavoring to give him at this time. If the New York Boxing Commission's members were not competent to judge a specimen for the ring they would never have been appointed for the office they hold and the litigation being conducted by Manager Johnny Meek is both unwise and distasteful. Further communications of tihe variety will reach the furnace via the wastebasket route.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—I have secured letters patent in this and foreign countries. Should I get into communication with manufacturers to sell, or await results through the patent office official journal?—J. T. P. S.

Answer—The wise thing is to put yourself into communication with some of the large manufacturers at once. If one fails to want it, try another.

Sporting Editor:

Query—When will the names of the new patrolmen be announced? I mean the successful ones at the last examination.—B. S. D.

Answer—You'll have to wait until the councilmanic police board acts on the subject. No specific date has been set.

Sporting Editor:

Query—When will Parker Field be opened?—K. T.

Answer—It is opened at all times, but you probably mean the official playground opening. This will take place on or about July 4.

Sporting Editor:

Query—To whom should I apply for a position in the local postoffice?—N. D.

Answer—You will have to pass a civil service examination conducted by the government first.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Have the contracts for watering the Plainfield streets this year been given out as yet? If not, when will the Council take up this matter?—K. R.

Answer—The contracts have not been awarded as yet, but the Council will probably take up this matter at one of its meetings in the near future.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Are there any athletic meets scheduled for Parker Field during the next month?—J. R.

Answer—The field is in no condition at the present time to conduct meets of this kind. The first one is carded for July 4.

May 16—Rutgers Freshmen, at Rahway.

EIGHT FEMININE ATHLETES AWARDED THEIR INSIGNIAS

Eight members of the North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team were awarded their insignias at the assembly exercises in the borough school this morning. All of the feminine players having taken part in four or more games are eligible for this honor.

MEDALS AND TROPHY FOR BORO CHAMPIONS

The North Plainfield High School basketball team, city interscholastic champions, were honored for the last time this year, this morning, at the opening exercises when the medals and the Abrams trophy were presented. Principal Early made the presentation speech, commending the team, the spirit and the support that the student body gave the team during the entire year.

The medals are plain and suitably engraved on the back. Captain Ashley Burner presented the cup to the school on behalf of the team and it was received by Mr. Earley, who made a short speech of acceptance. Those who received the medals are Ashley Burner Duclos Van Mater, Roy Love, Hyman Abrams, Frank Dunning, Ronald Conroy, Warren Townley and Addison Newkirk.

SEASON FOR BROOK TROUT WILL OPEN

Tomorrow the First Day for Lovers of This Sport in New Jersey.

In New Jersey tomorrow the brook trout season opens. There is a bill before the Legislature which places a license fee of $5.15 on all non-residents. If the bill becomes law it will not go into effect until January 1, 1915, and, therefore, will have no effect on the New Yorker who wants to fish in New Jersey this season. All trout under six inches must be put back into the water uninjured.

The other opening days in New Jersey are: Pickerel and pike, May 20; black bass, Oswego bass, white bass, calico bass, crappie and white perch June 15.

The Delaware River and Bay and also their tributaries where the tide ebbs and flows, the season for trout, black, calico, rock and white bass, crappie, pike-perch, pickerel, pike, white and yellow perch begins on June 15.

In Pennsylvania and New York the brook trout season opens April 15. In Pennsylvania the limit is six fish and the size of the catch is limited to forty. June 15 is the opening day for lake trout, black bass, pickerel, pike, and pike-perch in Pennsylvania waters.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE OPENS.

San Francisco, Cal., March 31—The season of the Pacific Coast Baseball League opened today, with the champion Portland team playing at Sacramento, Oakland at Los Angeles and Venice in this city. The circuit remains the same as last year and nearly all of the old players are again in uniform. The only new face among the managers is that of Arthur Devlin, former Giant and later with the Boston Nationals, who has succeeded Carl Mitze as manager of the Oakland team. The league will play the longest season of any organization in the country. The schedule calls for 212 games, with October 25 as the closing date.

WITH THE BOXERS

Bob McAllister will grab a boat and sail for Australia after his bout with Sailor Grande in Oakland next month.

Victor Breyer, the French promoter, says there is nothing doing at present in the way of a muss between Georges Carpentier and Eddie McGoorty.

Nothing to it but Smith when Jeff Smith, the Jersey middleweight, meets Dave Smith, the Australian champion, in Sydney on April 10.

Frank Moran, who is matched to fight Jack Johnson in June, will sail for London, May 9. Frank Kennedy and Al Kukiak will help get Moran in condition for the bout.

It has been a great spring for the yannigans with the Giants and Red Sox. The two rookie outfits have shown up their big brothers so often in the practice games that the goats of the regulars have flown.

METUCHENS CLAIM THE SOCCER TITLE

Gridiron Warriors Have Established An Enviable Record on Many Fields.

The Metuchen Soccer Football Club is winding up a successful season. Last Saturday the Metuchens, in a well-played game, defeated Princeton University by a score of 2 to 1. The Metuchens claim to be the champions of central New Jersey and because of their defeat of Princeton have been promised a place on the regular Princeton schedule. The Metuchens have won eleven games, lost three and tied three.

Besides Princeton some of the teams vanquished by Metuchen are the Irish-Americans of Newark, the champions of the New Jersey League; Valley A. C., of Kearny, Freehold Field Club, of Freehold; Tottenville A. C., of Tottenville, Staten Island; New Brunswick Soccer Club, of New Brunswick; Michelin French Club, of Milltown; Trenton A. C., of Trenton. Only three teams defeated Metuchen, and they were the Malta A. C., of Harrison, score 1 to 0; the Irish-Americans, of Newark, and the New Brunswicks.

The next three games on the Metuchen schedule are as follows: April 4, Asbury Park Football Club; April 11, Irish-Americans, of Newark; April 18, Freehold Field Club.

CHANGE MADE IN PLAY FOR STATE TENNIS TITLE

An encouraging item for the progress of lawn tennis in New Jersey is the assent which has just been given by the executive committee of the National Lawn Tennis Association to the new arrangement for holding the annual tournament for the Jersey State championship. This fixture has been held on the courts of the Morristown Field Club since 1894 in the third week of September, and include events in singles and doubles for both men and women.

President D. T. Humphrey and P. S. Duryee, of the Englewood Field Club, and O. H. Hinck and Frank Kidde, of the Montclair Athletic Club, over a year ago approached President C. D. M. Cole and O. B. Smith, of the Morristown Club, with a proposal to run this tournament under the joint auspices of these three clubs, undoubtedly the strongest of the tennis clubs in Jersey. Both Englewood and Montclair had for a number of years held successful open tournaments under national sanction, but it was felt by all that a joint tournament under the name of the New Jersey championship would be a forward step for the game. The new arrangement now sanctioned separates the woman's State championship from the men's championship.

This year the State championship for men will be held in the week of June 8 at the Englewood Field Club, while the woman's championship will be held in the week of September 7 at Morristown. Next year the men's tournament will move in an agreed rotation to the Montclair Athletic Club, and the woman's to the Englewood Club. Good tournaments are expected as the result of the joint backing of the three big clubs.

And Now Come the Best New York Copies of Paris Tailored Suits and Dresses

Reproductions of the Most Successful February 14th Models Made Expressly for the Wanamaker Store and Offered at a Fraction of the Prices of the Original Models

One of the links which binds Paris to New York is a certain manufacturer who makes copies of Paris clothes with the very spirit of Paris. It is almost impossible to tell the difference between his copy and the original. They are alike in material, in color, in every line, in the fineness of workmanship.

In the collection we shall present tomorrow are copies of our own imported models, together with still other Paris models not represented in our Fashion Exhibition. Each model represented has been chosen because it has received the approval of Parisiennes.

The moderate prices permit women to have two, three or four exact copies of Paris suits for the usual price of one Paris original.

Some of the Tailored Suits

Suit inspired by military uniform, a reproduction of the best model of Doucet, $87.50.

Suit of gabardine with moire waistcoat and long plain tunic, successful model of Cheruit, $75.

Suit with short jacket, reproduction of Jenny model, $65.

Suit of gabardine, with apron skirt, reproduction of a success of Cheruit, $68.50.

Suit with long coat pointed over the hips, square in the back, a success of Premet, $68.50.

Suit with flare coat and tunic ending in pleated fold simulating sash, a reproduction of a model by Jenny, $67.50.

Copy of the Summer Gown of Bechoff-David

Bechoff-David called this model his ideal of a costume for Summer events, such as races at Auteuil and Longchamps. Women may remember seeing the original in our Fashion Exhibition. It created most enthusiastic approbation. Its bodice and tunic are of striped taffeta. The skirt is of white crepe. The original model cost to land, $150. This is an exact copy at $68.50.

A Jeanne Lanvin Suit Copied for $39.50

A very simple, charming suit made of blue serge with pique waistcoat, quite masculine in effect. One of the best models of Jeanne Lanvin this season. It cost to land, $150. It would be difficult to distinguish between the original and this good copy for $39.50.

Original Paris Models

We have secured a limited quantity of original imported models by Cheruit, Callot and other famous couturiers. Prices of this small collection, $65 to $125.

The Easter Preparedness of the Women's Dress Salons is absolutely complete. There is nothing lacking. The little suit at a small price—the Paris suits inspired by masculine dress, and the beautiful Paris gowns with classic Greek lines—the Garden City Golf suit, the "Arnold" dancing dress—an entire page could not tell the story.

Every woman who comes here seems to find exactly the thing she wants—and it is almost certain to fit her.

Presentation of Summer Furniture

Tomorrow, Wednesday, Opening

The Garden of the East

Whatever the weather tomorrow, here—on the Sixth Gallery of the New Wanamaker Building—it will be Summer. The new furniture for porch and lawn is to be shown in appropriate setting; with pond and pergola, vine and vista, and a general Eastern atmosphere; better to suggest the possibilities of the furniture. The garden, or any part of it, we will duplicate where desired.

Inside the gates of the garden you will find rustic cedar and hickory, maple and hard woods; outside, the willows and reeds and grasses, dainty pieces from the pretty reed rocker for milady's boudoir to the cool cane suite for the dining-room.

The entire presentation exceeds in variety and quantity anything of the kind ever done.

For Country Home, Bungalow, Porch, Lawn, Garden

Reed Furniture

Also known as wicker or rattan furniture, made from reeds grown in China and India, bleached and cleaned, and finished with clear shellac to leave the natural color, or stained and enameled in various colors. Many pieces upholstered with seat cushions or seat and back cushions, settees, rockers, chairs, tables, desks, couches, magazine stands, tea wagons, muffin, stands, lamps and jardinieres, in a price range of $2.25 for a brown stained rocker to $35.75 for an enameled upholstered chair.

Crex Furniture

Made of the wild grass that grows in some of our western States, manufactured into twine like strands, then woven or braided into many styles of furniture. Settees, rockers, chairs, tables, lamps, tea wagons, desks, trays and magazine stands, in a price range of $4 for a chair to $35 for an upholstered settee.

Rustic Cedar Furniture

Cedar in its natural state, the best outdoor furniture. Settees, rockers, chairs, tables, tabourettes and plant boxes, in a price range of $2.50 for a chair to $24 for a rustic gateway.

Bungalow or Living-Room Furniture

Frame of oak and birch finished in natural and different colors, some with cane seats, others upholstered in fabrics and Japanese grass cloth. Settees, rockers, chairs, tables, lamps, tea wagons, desks, reclining chairs, in a price range of $11 for a chair to $70 for a lounge.

Rustic Hickory Furniture

The strongest and most pliable of wood, finished with beautiful sheen and soft coloring. Settees, rockers, chairs, tables, flower boxes, swings, houses, lawn seats, hanging baskets and reclining chairs in a price range of $2.50 for a chair to $127.50 for a three-section pergola.

Porch Furniture

Frames of maple, finished natural and polished, seats and backs of double woven split cane, also slat backs and rattan or cane seats. Settees, rockers, chairs, stools, tables, and swings, in a price range of $1.10 for a chair to a swing at $20.

Willow Furniture

Finest willow known is that grown in France. Great care is taken to have this willow fine in texture, and the feature most desired is the heart of the willow itself, the soft pith shall be of the smallest possible size. The smaller this opening through the center of the wood, the stronger and more pliable the willow. Most of our willow furniture is made of this French willow. Settees, rockers, chairs, tables, couches, tea wagons, muffin stands, book racks, swings, desks, dining-room and bedroom suites, in a price range of $3.75 for a natural willow chair to $466.50 for a 12-piece bedroom suite.

Kaltex Furniture

Frames of bent wood, Kaltex being woven over the frame in twisted strands; strong and durable, in a price range of $4 for a chair to $30.75 for a combination table and 4 chairs.

Lawn Furniture

Made of hard wood, finished natural, green or red, some pieces with canvas seats, in a price range of 50c for a natural finish canvas set stool, to $10 for a canopy swing.

DR. EDGAR STRYKER.

Physician Who Was Murdered In the Korea Wilds.

Members of the medical profession and of missionary societies in New York were shocked to learn that Dr. Edgar de Mott Stryker, formerly of Raritan, N. J., and a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, had been murdered in Hoikoi, Korea, where for five years he had been the head of a large hospital and had labored hard to institute modern scientific methods of curing in a region that clung to superstition and medieval ways in the treatment of disease.

ATTACK ON TOLLS IS RESENTED BY WILSON

Charge of Diplomatic Deal an Insult, He Says.

Washington, March 31. — President Wilson characterized as an insult the charge that his attempt to repeal the free tolls clause of the Panama canal bill is the result of a deal he made with Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, through Sir William Tyrrell. He said:

"It is just the crowning insult of a number of insults which have been introduced in this debate. The whole thing reminds me of a story I used to be fond of telling of a very effective debater—I need not say where this happened—who sent a challenge down into a county very hostile to him to debate.

"The people down there did not like the job very much, but they put up the man they liked best, a great, big husky fellow, whom they all called Tom. The challenger was given the first hour of the two hours allotted to the debate, and he hadn't got more than halfway through his speech when it became evident that he was convincing the audience, when one of Tom's partisans in the back room cried out, 'Tom, Tom, call him a liar and make it a fight.' That is the stage this has reached."

The president's auditors asked him if he was going to fight, and he smilingly answered that he did not need to.

The president declared he wanted to express his regret that what had promised to be a dignified contest with genuine differences of opinion seemed to be degenerating into an attempt to discredit the administration. He said he thought it a great pity that public affairs should be handled in that way. He did not think all the opponents of the repeal felt that way, but such color had been interjected in the controversy and he did not understand the motives for it.

Mr. Wilson let it be known that he was unqualifiedly opposed to any compromise or amendments such as have been proposed in the senate.

MINE STRIKE IN ENGLAND.

35,000 Quit, 135,000 More to Follow. Demand Minimum Rate of Wages.

Leeds, England, March 31.—Thirty-five thousand coal miners in the Yorkshire pits laid down their tools, demanding the introduction of a minimum rate of wages. Notices have been handed in by 135,000 more that they will quit, and these expire at the latest on Thursday, which will bring the total up to 170,000.

The Miners' Federation of Great Britain has given its support to the strike, and a long struggle is expected.

TORREON BATTLE STILL RAGING

Hear Federals Have Asked Terms of Surrender.

MANY PRISONERS TAKEN.

Commanders on Both Sides Are Reported Wounded — Tremendous Loss of Life In Both Armies—Rumors of the Fighting Are Conflicting.

Juarez, Mexico., March 31.—That Villa has encountered unexpected difficulties in his second assault on Torreon is indicated by the dispatch of five machine guns and 350,000 rounds of ammunition from the rebel arsenal here. Even more disquieting to Constitutionalist officials is the absence of any authentic reports from the field of battle. They admit that Villa's situation must be precarious, even if he has not suffered another actual defeat.

Conflicting rumors of the fighting at Torreon have been received here and at El Paso. The Mexican consul general at the latter place, Miguel Diebold, received messages which he said were from General Refugio Velasco, saying that everything was quiet in Torreon, that the rebels had been driven back in disorder and that General Pascual Orozco was coming with 9,000 men from La Colorado.

Rumors on both sides of the border tell of Villa's having been wounded and taken prisoner, of the bull ring having been dynamited, of thousands of rebels having been killed and of the utter rout of the Constitutionalist army, but little credence is given to any of these reports.

Villa's estimate of the losses in the seven days' fighting about and in Torreon, as transmitted to Governor Chao, are: Constitutionalist dead, 900; federal dead, 2,000; Constitutionalist wounded, 1,200; federal wounded, 3,500.

Hundreds of Prisoners Taken.

Hundreds of prisoners have been taken by the rebels. More than 1,000 of them have taken the oath of allegiance to the Constitutionalist cause. The officers captured who refused to take the oath, it is reported, have been executed. General Villa reports that the regular officers have been executed in retaliation for the killing of all rebels who have fallen into the hands of the federals. The officers of the irregular troops and those known to have taken part in the revolution against Madero are being executed as traitors, a course followed since the start of the revolution.

Among the rebel commanders reported wounded are Generals Tomas Urbina, who is still at the front; Trinidad Rodriguez and Maximo Garcia, Lieutenant Colonel Saul Navarro and Major Andana. Dispatches from Chihuahua City say that some of the wounded in the hospital there declare that General Villa was wounded while leading his men, but the fact was hidden from the rank and file for fear it would demoralize them.

Federals Claim Victory at Torreon.

El Paso, Tex., March 31.—Declarations by the Mexican federal consul here that General Villa's rebel army besieging Torreon "has been defeated all along the line" caused jubilation among the federal sympathizers.

Dispatches from the Mexican consul at Eagle Pass., Tex., who said his information came direct by wire from Torreon, stated that the rebels were drawn into traps in the Torreon bull ring and smelter and that mines were exploded under them.

The consul asserts that Villa's men have retreated at all points, including Gomez Palacio and Lerdo. He quoted General Maas, a federal commander, as reporting that federal troops cut a retreating rebel column to pieces and killed 600.

An American mining man from Parral reports that city filled with rebel wounded, and two Americans from Chihuahua said the rebels have suffered terribly in dead and wounded and by no means had the successes they reported.

JUUSERAND TO GO TO LONDON

French Ambassador to U. S. May Leave For England Next Fall.

Washington, March 31.—French Ambassador Jusserand, it was stated, is to be transferred to London, probably next fall. The ambassador declined to discuss the report except to deny that he had heard anything definite as yet from his government.

Ambassador Jusserand has spent eleven years at the head of the French embassy here and is the dean of the diplomatic corps.

VICTIM OF TRAIN MAY BE MISSING BROOKLYN WOMAN

New Brunswick, March 31—A description given in a Brooklyn newspaper received by Coroner W. F. Harding of a women who has been missing in that city since February 22, and whose name is given as Sylvia Cassamassa, of 145 Conover street, South Brooklyn, tallies closely with the body of the unidentified woman who was killed here by a Pennsylvania Railroad train last Monday night. The body was buried yesterday.

Mrs. Cassamassa was five feet one inch in height, weight 106 pounds, and had chestnut hair. She was born in Italy but could talk English well. The names of her parents are given as Mr. and Mrs. Nicolo Deilo Vacone. Mrs. Cassamassa, who had been married three years, left a two-year-old daughter. A picture of a baby was found under the waist of the dead woman. This picture will be sent to the Brooklyn address to see if this woman was its mother.

GOVERNOR AT PRISON, WILL HEAR KUEHNLE AND OTHERS

Trenton, March 31—Governor Fielder visited the State prison yesterday in company with the members of the Court of Pardons, who are investigating applications for pardons and paroles to be considered at the next regular session of the court.

Particular interest is shown in the work of the present term because of the influence which has been brought to bear to accomplish the release of politicians from Atlantic and Hudson counties, who have been found guilty of crime.

[illegible] nts from Atlan- [illegible] Kuehnle, former Republican "boss" of the county; Estel D. Rightmire, former county engineer, and Frank Enderlin and John Unsworth, former members of the Board of Freeholders, who were convicted with Rightmire for conspiracy.

Former Sheriff John Zeller, of Hudson, who began his term from one to three years last December, is also an applicant for parole.

It is expected that Governor Fielder will hear in person the pleas of each one of the prisoners mentioned, and that he will give most careful attention to every phase of each case.

TRIAL OF "MONA LISA" THIEF.

Florence, March 31.—The case of Perugia, who is charged with the theft of Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, the "Mona Lisa," came up today for trial. It is expected that the trial will be brief, since Perugia confessed to the theft. The "Mona Lisa," which is classed among the most famous and valuable paintings in the world, was stolen from the Louvre in Paris on August 21, 1911. For more than two years the mystery of the disappearance remained unsolved. In the early part of last winter the painting was recovered through information furnished by an art dealer of Florence, to whom Perugia is said to have offered the picture for sale. At the time of the disappearance of the painting Perugia was employed as a workman at the Louvre and consequently was enabled to cut the painting from the frame and carry it from the building without detection. At the time of his arrest in Florence he is alleged to have made a complete confession, giving as his motive for the theft a desire to revenge himself upon the French for their despoilation of the art galleries of Italy during the Napoleonic invasion.

NEEDLEWORK

By

MARGARET LAWRENCE

A POPPY CENTERPIECE TO BE WORKED IN WHITE OR COLORS

No housekeeper ever had too many centerpieces, for a flowered piece worked in colors will often carry out the decorative scheme for the dining-table. Worked in silks on colored linen it may be used under a bowl of flowers or a jardinere holding a growing plant, on the living-room or hall table. Carried out entirely in white on white linen a centerpiece, such as this, can be used at any time in the dining-room and all white embroideries are now considered more satisfactory as well as more correct than linens embroidered in colors for use in the dining-room. If this design is to be worked in white, choose firm, round thread linen and work the edge in well, padded buttonhole-stitch with No. 20 mercerized cotton. The flowers should be developed in long-and-short-stitch with the stamens in French knots. The leaves may be done either in long-and-short-stitch or outline and seed-stitch, thus making a very handsome centerpiece without any difficult or laborious work. If, however, your prefer to embroider this design in colors, stamp the pattern on either white or natural colored linen and work the scalloped edge in the color of the material. The flowers should be done in Kensington-stitch in three or four shades of pink, yellow or red with the seed-cups green and stamens black. The leaves should be worked in two or three shades of green in Kensington-stitch.

This transfer pattern, No. 13664 which is 22 inches in diameter, can be supplied to readers on receipt of price, 15 cents.

Some Cookery Suggestions

EASTER HOT BREADS.

For Good Friday the indispensable hot cross bun must be considered, while for the Easter breakfast dainty muffins or biscuit are acceptable with eggs and fruit.

For the children charming gifts may be made by shaping the same dough as is used for hot cross buns into quaint animal figures. Rabbits may be cut out, currants being applied for the eyes and colored Easter eggs being inserted on the side of the body. Chickens and ducks may also be made and decorated, then baked in the oven.

Dainty Breakfast Muffins.

Cream Muffins.—Cream one-half cupful butter with one cupful sugar, add to two eggs well beaten, sift three cupfuls flour with three teaspoonfuls baking powder and add to the other mixture alternately with one scant cupful milk. Bake in buttered pans twenty-five minutes.

Buns For Good Friday.

Hot Cross Buns.—Take two pounds of flour and mix with a small teaspoonful of powdered spice and half a teaspoonful of salt. Rub in a quarter pound of butter. Make a hole in the flour and pour in a wineglassful of yeast and a half pint milk warmed and tinted with saffron. Mix the milk and yeast and the surrounding flour to from a batter, leaving dry flour to form walls for the mixture. Throw some of the dry flour over the batter and set the pan before the fire to rise. When it is light work into it a pound of currants, a little sugar and one egg. Then cover as before and let it stand for a half hour. Make the dough into buns. Mark them with the back of a knife, shaping a cross on each bun. Bake for fifteen or twenty minutes.

Crumpets For Tea.

Crumpets.—Take one cupful of sifted flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half cupful of milk, one egg and one tablespoonful of melted butter. Sift all dry ingredients, beat egg well and add to milk. Beat this and melted butter into flour, beating hard for a few seconds after all ingredients are in. Have muffin rings greased inside and placed on a hot griddle. Distribute the batter evenly into the rings. They should be about half full. Bake with moderate heat until batter has risen to top of ring; then with a flat knife turn ring and bake lower side until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. With a knife loosen crumpets from ring, set on hot plate and serve at once. They must never be cut; just tear apart delicately with a fork. Serve with butter and maple sirup or preserves.

Anna Thompson

He Became Quite Angry.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

What the Real Rabbits Think of The Chocolate Ones.

DADDY was certainly right on time this evening for his bedtime story, and he had a story he wanted to tell right away.

"You know," said he, "some bunny rabbits and molly cottontails and jack rabbits were almost bursting their sides laughing in the woods today.

"'Now, you'll admit,' old Grandpa Jack Rabbit was saying, 'that that is the best joke you ever did hear.'

"'Yes, we think so,' said the molly cottontails.

"The rest of the bunnies were laughing so hard they couldn't answer.

"'Really people are very silly, and they have such a funny idea as to what we look like. But imagine making bunnies out of chocolates!' And then they burst out laughing again.

"'If you could have seen them,' continued old Grandpa Jack Rabbit, 'you'd have certainly thought they were funny. You see, it was this way: It was very early in the morning, and I wanted to go through the village, as I'd heard the grocer had in a fresh supply of fine lettuce. I thought if I did my shopping very early I'd manage to secure a few nice leaves for our luncheon today. Before I got to the grocer's, though, what should I see but a huge big cardboard rabbit sitting up in the candy shop, and then in the window, besides, were just countless rabbits made out of chocolate. Imagine, did you ever hear of anything so foolish? And chickens made out of chocolate too! Chocolate eggs, too, but that's a bit more sensible. I really think it is quite an insult to us. And they looked so absurd! If they had done us justice then I wouldn't have thought so much about it. But they didn't make us look nearly so handsome and good looking as they should have.

"'Now, you take chickens. They are queer looking anyway. But a rabbit is different. There is something so grand looking about a rabbit.'

"Old Grandpa Jack Rabbit was really getting quite angry. He'd forgotten about the joke of it and only thought of the insult to his family. So the rest of the rabbits said:

"'Well, after all, it's a pretty good joke.' And then Grandpa Jack Rabbit began to laugh again.

"'But, grandpa,' piped up one of the little bunnies, 'you've told us all about the chocolate bunnies that children eat on Easter, and you haven't told the little bunnies if you got what you went for.'

"'Dear, dear,' said grandpa, 'the fresh green lettuce! After all, I didn't forget about our Easter luncheon, for, even though I was pretty mad about all those chocolate bunnies, I remembered to reach the grocer's in time to get some lettuce. So now we'll have our Easter luncheon.'"

CHAPTER VII.

THAT was Friday afternoon. All that evening and most of Saturday and Sunday Mr Holcombe sat on the floor with his eye to the reflecting mirror and his notebook beside him. I have it before me.

On the first page is the "dog meat-$2" entry. On the next, the description of what occurred on Sunday night, March 4, and Monday morning, the 5th. Following that came a sketch, made with a carbon sheet of the torn paper found behind the washstand:

And then came the entries for Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Friday evening:

6:30—Eating hearty supper.

7—Lights cigarette and paces floor. Notice that when Mrs. P. knocks he goes to desk and pretends to be writing.

8—Is examining book. Looks like a railway guide.

8:30—It is a steamship guide.

8:45—Tailor's boy brings box. Gives boy 50 cents. Query: Where does he get money now that J. B. is gone?

9—Tries on new suit (brown).

9:30—Has been spending a quarter of an hour on his knees looking behind furniture and examining baseboard.

10—He has the key to the onyx clock. Has hidden it twice—once up the chimney flue, once behind baseboard.

10:15—He has just thrown key or similar small article outside window into yard.

11:30—He cannot sleep. Is up walking the floor and smoking.

2 a. m.—Saturday. Disturbance below. He had nightmare and was calling "Jennie!" He got up, took a drink and is now reading.

8 a. m.—Must have slept. He is shaving.

12 m.—Nothing this morning. He wrote for four hours, sometimes reading aloud what he had written.

2 p. m.—He has a visitor, a man. Cannot hear all—word now and then. "Llewellyn is the very man." "Devil of a risk." "We'll see you through." "Lost the slip." "Didn't go to the hotel. She went to a private house." "Eliza Shaeffer."

Who went to a private house? Jennie Brice?

2:30—Cannot hear. Are whispering The visitor has given Ladley roll of bills.

4—Followed the visitor, a tall man with a pointed beard. He went to the Liberty theater. Found it was Bronson, business manager there. Who is Llewellyn, and who is Eliza Shaeffer?

4:15—Had Mrs. P. bring telephone book; six Llewellyns in the book; no Eliza Shaeffer. Ladley appears more cheerful since Bronson's visit. He has bought all the evening papers and is searching for something. Has not found it.

7—Ate well. Have asked Mrs. P. to take my place here while I interview the six Llewellyns.

11—Mrs. P. reports a quiet evening. He read and smoked. Has gone to bed. Light burning. Saw five Llewellyns. None of them knew Bronson or Ladley. Sixth—a lawyer—out at revival meeting. Went to the church and walked home with him. He knows something. Acknowledged he knew Bronson. Had met Ladley. Did not believe Mrs. Ladley dead. Regretted I had not been to the meeting. Good sermon. Asked me for a dollar for missions.

9 a. m.—Sunday. Ladley in bad shape. Apparently been drinking all night. Cannot eat. Sent out early for papers and has searched them all. Found entry on second page, stared at it, then flung the paper away. Have sent for same paper.

10 a. m.—Paper says: "Body of woman washed ashore yesterday at Sewickley. Much mutilated by flood debris." Ladley in bed, staring at ceiling. Wonder if he sees tube? He is ghastly.

That is the last entry in the notebook for that day. Mr. Holcombe called me in great excitement shortly after 10 and showed me the item. Neither of us doubted for a moment that it was Jennie Brice who had been found. He started for Sewickley that same afternoon, and he probably communicated with the police before he left, for once or twice I saw Mr. Graves, the detective, sauntering past the house.

Mr. Ladley ate no dinner. He went out at 4, and I had Mr. Reynolds follow him. But they were both back in a half hour. Mr. Reynolds reported that Mr. Ladley had bought some headache tablets and some bromide powders to make him sleep.

Mr. Holcombe came back that evening. He thought the body was that of Jennie Brice, but the head was gone. He was much depressed and did not immediately go back to the periscope. I asked if the head had been cut off or taken off by a steamer. He was afraid the latter, as a hand was gone too.

It was about 11 o'clock that night that the doorbell rang. It was Mr. Graves, with a small man behind him. I knew the man. He lived in a shanty boat not far from my house, a curious affair with shelves full of dishes and tinware. In the spring he would be towed up the Monongahela a hundred miles or so and float down, tying up at different landings and selling his wares. Timothy Senft was his name. We called him Tim.

Mr. Graves motioned me to be quiet. Both of us knew that behind the parlor door Ladley was probably listening.

"Sorry to get you up, Mrs. Pitman," said Mr. Graves, "but this man says he has bought beer here today. That won't do, Mrs. Pitman."

"Beer! I haven't such a thing in the house. Come in and look!" I snapped. And the two of them went back to the kitchen.

"Now," said Mr. Graves when I had shut the door, "where's the dog's meat man?"

"Upstairs."

"Bring him quietly."

I called Mr. Holcombe, and he came eagerly, notebook and all. "Ah!" he said when he saw Tim. "So you've turned up!"

"Yes, sir."

"It seems, Mr. Dog's—Mr. Holcombe," said Mr. Graves, "that you are right—partly anyhow. Tim here did help a man with a boat that night"—

"Threw him a rope, sir," Tim broke in. "He'd got out in the current, and what with the ice and his not knowing much about a boat he'd have kept on to New Orleans if I hadn't caught him—or kingdom come."

"Exactly. And what time did you say this was?"

"Between 3 and 4 last Sunday night or Monday morning. He said he couldn't sleep and went out in a boat, meaning to keep in close to shore. But he got drawn out in the current."

"Where did you see him first?"

"By the Ninth street bridge."

"Did you hail him?"

"He saw my light and hailed me. I was making fast to a coal barge after one of my ropes had busted."

"You threw the line to him there?"

"No, sir. He tried to work in to shore. I ran along River avenue to below the Sixth street bridge. He got pretty close in there, and I threw him a rope. He was about done up."

"Would you know him again?"

"Yes, sir. He gave me $5 and said to say nothing about it. He didn't want anybody to know he had been such a fool."

They took him quietly upstairs then and let him look through the periscope. He identified Mr. Ladley absolutely.

When Tim and Mr. Graves had gone Mr. Holcombe and I were left alone in the kitchen. Mr. Holcombe leaned over and patted Peter as he lay in his basket.

"We've got him, old boy," he said. "The chain is just about complete. He'll never kick you again."

But Mr. Holcombe was wrong—not about kicking Peter, although I don't believe Mr. Ladley ever did that again, but in thinking we had him.

I washed that next morning. Monday, but all the time I was rubbing and starching and hanging out my mind was with Jennie Brice. The sight of Molly Maguire next door at the window rubbing and brushing at the fur coat only made things worse.

At noon when the Maguire youngsters came home from school I bribed Tommy, the youngest, into the kitchen with the promise of a doughnut.

"I see your mother has a new fur coat," I said, with the plate of doughnuts just beyond his reach.

"Yes'm."

"She didn't buy it?"

"She didn't buy it. Say, Mrs. Pitman, gimme that doughnut."

"Oh, so the coat washed in?"

"No'm. Pap found it down by the point on a cake of ice. He thought it was a dog, and rowed out for it."

Well, I hadn't wanted the coat, as far as that goes; I'd managed well enough without furs for twenty years or more. But it was a satisfaction to know that it had not floated into Mrs. Maguire's kitchen and spread itself at her feet, as one may say. However, that was not the question after all. The real issue was that if it was Jennie Brice's coat and was found across the river on a cake of ice, then one of two things was certain: Either Jennie Brice's body wrapped in the coat had been thrown into the water out in the current, or she herself, hoping to incriminate her husband, had flung her coat into the river.

I told Mr. Holcombe, and he interviewed Joe Maguire that afternoon. The upshot of it was that Tommy had been correctly informed. Joe had witnesses who had lined up to see him rescue a dog, and had beheld his return in triumph with a wet and soggy fur coat. At 3 o'clock Mrs. Maguire, instructed by Mr. Graves, brought the coat to me for identification, turning it about for my inspection, but refusing to take her hands off it.

"If her husband says to me that he wants it back, well and good," she said, "but I don't give it up to nobody but him. Some folks I know of would be glad enough to have it."

I was certain it was Jennie Brice's coat, but the maker's name had been ripped out. With Molly holding one arm and I the other we took it to Mr Ladley's door and knocked. He opened it, grumbling.

"I have asked you not to interrupt me," he said, with his pen in his hand His eyes fell on the coat. "What's that?" he asked, changing color.

"I think it's Mrs. Ladley's fur coat," I said.

He stood there looking at it and thinking. Then: "It can't be hers," he said. "She wore hers when she went away."

"Perhaps she dropped it in the water."

He looked at me and smiled. "And why would she do that?" he asked mockingly. "Was it out of fashion?"

"That's Mrs. Ladley's coat," I persisted, but Molly Maguire jerked it from me and started away. He stood there looking at me and smiling in his nasty way.

"This excitement is telling on you, Mrs Pitman," he said coolly. "You're too emotional for detective work." Then he went in and shut the door.

When I went downstairs Molly Maguire was waiting in the kitchen and had the audacity to ask me if I thought the coat needed a new lining.

It was on Monday evening that the strangest event in years happened to me. I went to my sister's house! And the fact that I was admitted at a side entrance made it even stranger. It happened this way:

Supper was over, and I was cleaning up, when an automobile came to the door. It was Alma's car. The chauffeur gave me a note:

Dear Mrs. Pitman—I am not at all well and very anxious. Will you come to see me at once? My mother is out to dinner and I am alone. The car will bring you. Cordially, LIDA HARVEY.

I put on my best dress at once and got into the limousine. Half the neighborhood was out watching. I leaned back in the upholstered seat, fairly quivering with excitement. This was Alma's car; that was Alma's card case; the little clock had her monogram on it. Even the flowers in the flower holder, yellow tulips, reminded me of Alma, a trifle showy, but good to look at. And I was going to her house.

I was not taken to the main entrance, but to a side door. The queer dreamlike feeling was still there. In this back hall, relegated from the more conspicuous part of the house, there were even pieces of furniture from the old home, and my father's picture in an oval gilt frame hung over my head. I had not seen a picture of him for twenty years. I went over and touched it gently.

"Father, father!" I said.

Under it was the tall hall chair that I had climbed over as a child and had stood on many times to see myself in the mirror above. The chair was newly finished and looked the better for its age. I glanced in the old glass. The chair had stood time better than I. I was a middle aged woman, lined with poverty and care, shabby, prematurely gray, a little hard. I had thought my father an old man when that picture was taken, and now I was even older. "Father!" I whispered again and fell to crying in the dimly lighted hall.

Lida sent for me at once. I had only time to dry my eyes and straighten my hat. Had I met Alma on the stairs I would have passed her without a word. She would not have known me. But I saw no one.

Lida was in bed. She was lying there with a rose shaded lamp beside her and a great bowl of spring flowers on a little stand at her elbow. She sat up when I went in and had a maid place a chair for me beside the bed. She looked very childish with her hair in a braid on the pillow, and her slim young arms and throat bare.

"I'm so glad you came!" she said, and would not be satisfied until the light was just right for my eyes and my coat unfastened and thrown open.

"I'm not really ill," she informed me. "I'm—I'm just tired and nervous, and—and unhappy, Mrs. Pitman."

"I am sorry," I said. I wanted to lean over and pat her hand, to draw the covers around her and mother her a little—I had had no one to mother for so long—but I could not. She would have thought it queer and presumptuous—or no, not that. She was too sweet to have thought that.

"Mrs. Pitman," she said suddenly, "who was this Jennie Brice?"

"She was an actress. She and her husband lived at my house."

"Was she—was she beautiful?"

"Well," I said slowly, "I never thought of that. She was handsome, in a large way."

"Was she young?"

"Yes. Twenty-eight or so."

"That isn't very young," she said, looking relieved. "But I don't think men like very young women. Do you?"

"I know one who does," I said, smiling. But she sat up in bed suddenly and looked at me with her clear, childish eyes.

"I don't want him to like me," she flashed. "I—I want him to hate me."

"Tut, tut! You want nothing of the sort."

"Mrs. Pitman," she said, "I sent for you because I'm nearly crazy. Mr. Howell was a friend of that woman. He has acted like a maniac since she disappeared. He doesn't come to see me, he has given up his work on the paper, and I saw him today on the street—he looks like a ghost."

That put me to thinking.

"He might have been a friend," I admitted, "although as far as I know he was never at the house but once, and then he saw both of them."

"When was that?"

"Sunday morning, the day before she disappeared. They were arguing something."

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney troubles, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Adv.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

No more interesting announcement has been made to theatre-goers of this city in years than that which comes from the management of the Plainfield theatre. It is that Charles Dillingham will, on Saturday afternoon and evening, give the first performance here of Edward Sheldon's now-famous play, "Romance." This play ran throughout last season in New York city, in the Maxine Elliott theatre, and recently reached the end of one of the most brilliant engagements in the theatrical history of Chicago. The Dillingham name is a guarantee of high-class acting. He is a manager whose name has always been associated with the best, whether in the field of straight drama or in that of musical comedy. "Romance" he regards as one of the brilliant managerial achievements of his career.

PANAMA CANAL VIEWS.

DUDLEY FIELD MALONE.

Told He Is Not the Official "Mouthpiece" For Wilson.

President Wilson was asked if Dudley Field Malone had spoken for the administration when he expressed opposition to Governor Glynn's recent appointments in New York. The president replied that the only "mouthpiece" of the administration was his own tongue and that he did not intend to reflect on Mr. Malone's utterances, but merely wished to indicate that the views expressed were individual and not inspired.

STAY FOR GUNMEN FAVORED BY GLYNN

Governor Admits He May Delay Death Sentence.

Albany, March 31.—The four New York gunmen who were sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing the week beginning April 13 for the murder of Herman Rosenthal probably will be reprieved by Governor Glynn until after the trial of Charles Becker, who was convicted with them and got a retrial. This fact developed after an application for a respite had been filed with Owen L. Potter, the governor's pardon clerk. With the application was a petition signed by ten of the jurors who convicted the gunmen.

The governor let the intimation go out that he favors a respite, although he would not state finally whether he would grant the appeal. He declined to say whether he would apply to either District Attorney Whitman or Justice John W. Goff, who sentenced the men, for their opinion on the propriety of granting a respite, but it is improbable that he will do so. The governor believes that in such a case his own judgment is best and should be followed, as he must take full responsibility.

The petition and appeal in behalf of the gunmen were brought to Albany by H. Lionel Kringel, a New York lawyer. The application asks for either a commutation to life imprisonment or a respite until after the trial of Becker. Governor Glynn is unwilling to consider for a moment the question of commutation, but it is believed that the respite is practically assured if the papers he will examine are as convincing as they are declared to be.

CONFESSES KILLING TEACHER

Boy Tells How He Lured Her In the Woods.

Little Falls, N. Y., March 31.—Jean Gianini, under arrest for the murder of Miss Lydia Beecher, the young schoolteacher who was found beaten and stabbed to death in the woods near Poland, has confessed his guilt.

Gianini says in his confession that he had asked Miss Beecher to go with him to see his parents in regard to his reinstatement in the Poland high school, from which he had been expelled at her instigation.

He told her, he says, that his parents were at a farmhouse about half a mile beyond his home. Before their arrival Miss Beecher became frightened and insisted upon returning.

Gianini declares he then hit her with a wrench, which he had concealed in his pocket, and knocked her down.

Then he beat her, stabbed her several times with a knife, dragged her body into the bushes and went home.

FAIL TO SETTLE STRIKE.

Company and Strikers Disagree on Reinstatement Proposal.

Depew, N. Y., March 31.—The attempt to settle the strike of the Gould Coupler works ended in failure. The situation is worse than before, and both sides are getting ready for a long struggle.

George A. Hayden, general manager of the works, was in conference with representatives of the strikers who were willing to waive their demand for a closed shop, but asked for the reinstatement of all strikers within fifteen days without prejudice because of union connections. Mr. Hayden would not promise to give all of the men their former positions, but agreed to reinstate them as they were needed in the next three months.

ASQUITH TAKES CONTROL OF ARMY

He Is Now Premier and Also War Secretary.

LORD MORLEY MAY RESIGN

Asquith's Move Came Like a Bombshell Into the Disturbed Situation In Parliament as He Quits Commons In a Dramatic Manner—To Succeed Seely.

London, March 31. — The house of commons had a rich banquet of emotions.

First came the announcement that Field Marshal Sir John French, who as head of the imperial general staff was virtually commander in chief of the army, and Sir John Ewart, the adjutant general to the forces, had finally determined to resign. Then followed the news that War Secretary Seely had again tendered his resignation, which had been accepted, and afterward, as a sort of grand climax, came the announcement that the premier himself had taken over the duties of the war office.

"Acting upon legal advice, I shall now retire from the house and shall not resume my seat until I have been re-elected by my constituents."

Immediately after making this statement Premier Asquith left the house amid the most turbulent scene that has been witnessed since the beginning of the exciting events that have come with the crisis in Ulster. As he started from his seat the government side of the house broke into a terrific demonstration. The cheers and hurrahs of the Asquith supporters were met by counter jeers and shouts from the opposition.

The move of the premier had come like a bombshell into the disturbed situation. Nearly the full force of the house was present, and the galleries were crowded as the session opened.

All was expectancy concerning the forthcoming statement of the premier with regard to the government's action on the resignations of Field Marshal Sir John French and General John Spencer Ewart. Referring to these officers, the premier said that they stood firm in their intentions of resigning.

Next came the premier's announcement of the acceptance of the resignation of Colonel Seely as secretary of war. Colonel Seely had resigned after the bungling of orders to the officers as to their service in Ulster was disclosed, but the premier refused to permit him to retire.

As this announcement was made Colonel Seely left the ministerial bench and retired to the back benches, taking his seat among the rank and file of the Liberal party. Mingled cheers and jeers from the opposing sides greeted him as he made his way through the house.

Lord Morley May Resign.

Further tenseness was given to the general situation when there were indications in the house of lords that Lord Morley, lord president of the council, would probably resign. Lord Curzon demanded to know why Lord Morley had not resigned with Colonel Seely, and Lord Morley replied that he would give his answer soon.

Lord Morley made a statement recently in the house of lords that he was cognizant of all that was contained in Colonel Seely's instructions to the army officers. Two added paragraphs of orders from the army council had been sent out by the secretary of war without conference with the cabinet. Lord Morley said that he knew what these paragraphs contained.

The premier in the course of his speech had said that the shakeup in the cabinet under consideration contemplated changes in the holders of five portfolios. All those who listened to him were eagerly awaiting his next words. Then he said that he would take the war portfolio himself, and England had a surfeit of surprises for the day.

The premier stated that, while it was not necessary for him to seek re-election, he preferred to take this course so that there might be no criticism of him in the event of his not going before his constituents.

WILSON TO HELP MISS TYLER

Will Restore Her Job as Postmistress if Law Will Permit.

Washington, March 31.—President Wilson will restore to Miss Mattie R. Tyler, the aged granddaughter of President Tyler, her $650 a year postoffice job at Courtland, Va., if he can find some legal way to do so. The president personally told Miss Tyler this. The obstacle in the way is B. A. Williams, who has already been commissioned postmaster.

Miss Tyler told the president that there had been no complaint about her work.

"But they wanted the job for a man who had a vote," she added naively, "and so I had to go."

Stevens For Alaska?

Panama, March 31.—Secretary of the Interior Lane has under consideration the appointment of John F. Stevens, former chief engineer of the Panama canal, to do for the Alaska railroad comprehensive preliminary work of the character that he did for the Panama canal.

BANK STOCK BILL PASSES HOUSE

Approved After Heated Contest by 41 to 14 Vote.

BROADSIDE FOR NUGENT.

Attack by Fielder Stirs Up Much Bitterness in Assembly—Nugent Much in Evidence During Session and Did All in His Power to Defeat Plans of the Governor.

Trenton, N. J., March 31.—The New Jersey legislature reconvened in a belligerent mood. Governor Fielder and his allies were determined to force the passage of the bond stock tax bill through the house, and James R. Nugent and the forces operating with him bitterly opposed every move.

The bank stock bill passed the house by a vote of 41 to 14.

At a late hour the house adopted an amendment by Assemblyman Dobbins reducing the proposed tax from 1 per cent to three-fourths of 1 per cent and exempting real estate otherwise taxed. The vote was 35 to 21 and was considered a decided victory for the governor.

This action was taken after the opponents of the bank stock tax bill had offered a number of amendments, which were consistently voted down.

Immediately after the adoption of the Dobbins amendment, which was consented to by Governor Fielder as a compromise, Minority Leader Richards of Atlantic offered a substitute, which was lost by a vote of 5 to 51.

Assemblyman Kates added to the excitement by offering a substitute providing that the tax be fixed at one-half of 1 per cent. His substitute was finally declared out of order.

James R. Nugent was much in evidence during the session and did all in his power to defeat the plans of Governor Fielder.

The governor began his day's campaign for the bill by firing another broadside at Nugent and his supporters. He supplemented this by calling into conference throughout the afternoon members of the senate and house and impressing upon them the importance of sustaining the administration.

In his statement which was responsible for much of the bitterness stirred up Governor Fielder said:

"I shall not refer to Mr. Nugent's latest shift in position or notice his attack on me. I have refused to engage in argument with him, and I certainly decline to descend to his level and indulge in personalities. I shall not permit the issue now before the legislature to be sidetracked in any such manner. The people of the state decided last November about my personal record, when Mr. Nugent secretly endeavored to defeat me. The question still is on the merits of the bank stock tax bill, whether or not the banks shall be compelled to bear a fair and equitable portion of our taxes, and I am on the side of those who think they should.

"Mr. Nugent boasts his ownership of the assemblymen from his county and continues to assert that they will vote as he commands. I had confidence in their independence last fall when I publicly advocated their election, and I still believe that some of them will support the bill."

RECTOR'S GIFTS TO CHARITY.

Dr. Oberly Left $10,000 to His Church and $5,000 to College.

Elizabeth, N. J., March 31.—Under the will of the Rev. Dr. H. H. Oberly, which was offered for probate, institutions and individuals are to receive more than $30,000 in bequests if his widow consents. The widow, Mrs. Jane Averill Oberly, is made sole executrix and is to have the residue of the estate. No value is placed upon it, but it is understood to be extensive.

Christ church, of which Dr. Oberly was rector up to the time of his death, will receive a lace altar piece valued at $500, which Dr. Oberly obtained in Italy some years ago. To the trustees of the church property of the diocese of New Jersey $10,000 is left in trust, the income to be paid to the rector of Christ church. Trinity college, Hartford, Conn., receives $5,000.

Also Interest For Twelve Years—New-ark Chancellor Renders Decision.

Newark, N. J., March 31.—Vice Chancellor Emery rendered a decision to the effect that Nathan Bijur, now a justice of the New York supreme court, is entitled to 6 per cent compound interest on $33,406.76 for twelve years. The interest will amount to about as much as the principal.

The chancery court decided that Justice Bijur was entitled to $33,406.76 on 404 shares of preferred stock of the Spirits Distilling company, of which he was the holder when that concern sold out to the Distilling Company of America.

The case has been in litigation for twelve years.

FOUND BODY OF SLAIN CHILD.

Boy In Satchel Discovered in Baggage Room of Railroad.

Trenton, N. J., March 31.—City and county authorities are investigating the finding of the body of a male child, weighing fourteen pounds, in a satchel in the baggage room of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad here.

The satchel containing the body had been checked from Philadelphia Jan. 1 last and had lain in the baggage room here ever since.

JAMES P. CLARKE.

His Renomination to United States Senate Still In Doubt.

Official reports of the county central committees, which will meet today to canvass the vote cast in the Democratic primary election of last Wednesday, are awaited to determine whether United States Senator James P. Clarke has been renominated or will be succeeded by William F. Kirby, associate justice of the Arkansas supreme court. With about 100 small townships missing, the normal vote of which does not exceed 3,000, returns made unofficially give Mr. Kirby a lead of eight votes in 131,112 reported.

CENTRAL LINES HAVE LAID OFF 27,600 MEN

Reductions Since Last September Are Announced.

New York, March 31.—The total number of employees laid off on all the lines of the New York Central system between September and March, as reckoned for the first time by New York Central authorities, is 27,600. Until yesterday only the number laid off on the lines east of Buffalo, 15,000, had been known.

On the Erie 6,000 men had been laid off since December, and the road is now manned by a force 18,000 less than at the height of the maintenance and improvement work of last summer. This latter decrease is in large part due to the nearing of completion of double tracking and improvement work that the Erie has been doing on a large scale. Decrease in business is making itself felt to such an extent, however, that slashes in the shop forces, superintendence staffs and clerical forces are in immediate prospect.

At the offices of the Delaware and Hudson it was said that as soon as the traffic stalled by storms is out of the way—inside of a week or ten days—labor reductions will have to be seriously considered.

The New Haven had no figures available on the retrenchment in labor, but it was said that the number laid off has been heavy as the result of the decrease of $3,000,000 in net earnings for the seven months ended Jan. 31. The Readville shops have been particularly affected.

Additional point was given to the prevailing railroad retrenchment in the last six months by the announcement of another cut in railroad dividends. The St. Louis Southwestern (the "Cotton Belt") cut the quarterly rate on the preferred in half to one-half of 1 per cent, an annual basis of 2 per cent, instead of 4 per cent. The company paid 5 per cent in 1912 and 4 per cent last year.

Will Sell Stock to Pay Dollar for Dollar

At the request of the directors of Hackett, Carhart & Co., Inc., Retail, and with the consent of the creditors, Charles Shongood, who officially is auctioneer for the government, will take charge of the concern's three stores in this city.

The stocks of men's clothing and haberdashery together with the fixtures and leases of the stores will be put up for sale next week, a method which Hackett, Carhart & Co. will employ to liquidate and pay its creditors dollar for dollar. The organization was founded in 1856. It has been in an involved financial condition for several years.

Charles Shongood, who in his official capacity is auctioneer for the United States Government for the Southern District of New York, will take charge of the affairs of Hackett, Carhart & Co., Inc., operating three stores in this city, at Broadway and Chambers street, Broadway and Thirteenth street, and 119 West Forty-second street.

This organization, which dates back to 1856, has been struggling for an opportunity to disentangle itself from its involved financial condition. The action now taken is unique, inasmuch as it represents a stand taken by the board of directors to liquidate, paying its creditors 100 cents on the dollar. The permission of the creditors was obtained, and Mr. Shongood was selected as best equipped to convert all assets into cash. Mr. Shongood will begin a sale next week to accomplish this end.

NEW SPRING CLOTHES

For Men and Young Men—Below Cost

The Hackett Carhart Stores, under the direction of their Creditors, have selected Charles Shongood to convert their stocks into cash. Some time before the Hackett Carhart stores found themselves in their present predicament, tremendous purchases of foreign woolens had been made in anticipation of the new tariff. Since that time, having become deeply involved, they found themselves unable to take these woolens out of bond, because of lack of funds. Arrangements have now been made whereby they have secured sufficient cash to call these woolens in, and they have made them up into men's finest Spring suits, topcoats and Balmacaans.

These clothes will represent the most startling items in Mr. Shongood's liquidation sale. England, Scotland and Ireland have contributed liberally to this event, which will be the first in which the best product of foreign textile craftsmen will be placed before the public at prices, in most cases, below cost. The sale is worth coming many miles to, and is the greatest ever attempted in New York City. Men who patronize it will benefit in money saved to an extent which will warrant their buying wearing apparel for several seasons' use now.
